SELECTED STRAINS of FLORISTS' FLOWER SEEDS

New Giant Waved or Spencer SWEET PEAS

There is no other flower that ranks greater in importance to the florist than Sweet Peas. Since the introduction of Countess Spencer some years ago, they have steadily grown in favor. The florist may obtain any of his favorite colors of the Grandiflora type in the Spencers.

Flowers gigantic in size (often 2 inches in diameter), stems stiff, 12 to 15 inches long; the foliage and flower extraordinary in appearance.

Check up the successful florists in your town. You will find that practically every one of them has discarded his horse and wagon delivery outfit for the more up-to-date, time and money saving motor wagon service.

Why? Because the horse was a losing proposition. Sundays and holidays and off days, its feeding expense was the same. It required too much time to take care of, both before and after working hours.

With an Overland Delivery Wagon the expense stops when you put it in your garage. And it is ready for work and at your service any time, day or night, right through the year.

Complete equipment, including electric starter, lights and horn—speedometer, ammeter, etc., make the Overland motor wagon easy and safe to control. Any boy can drive it.

And remember this—Overland motor wagons share proportionately in the economies of our enormous production of pleasure cars. That is why we can offer such an exceptional value at so low a price.

See the nearest Overland dealer today. Let him explain the advantages of the Guaranty Time Payment Plan by which you can obtain one of these delivery wagons for immediate use on easy terms.

SIDE LINES HELP RETAILERS' SALES

While the retailer is, and should be, primarily a dealer in cut flowers and plants, there are some accessories that go with the trade and have a rightful place in the florists' stores, where they are found not only profitable, but material aids in getting and holding customers.

HE expression "painting the lily" has become man's verbal method of decrying any attempt to improve on the beautiful in Nature. There are, nevertheless, many things which will enhance that beauty without altering the original. Nature, herself, has done this same thing by giving flowers a background of green, making a striking and, at the same time, harmonious contrast.

Development of the florists' art has taught the trade the truth of these statements. The unsightly pot has been provided with a covering which harmonizes with the stock the pot contains; plants are arranged in baskets and many other methods have been devised to give proper and artistic settings.

The same is true of the modern methods of handling cut flowers. The addition of greens to the bouquet was merely following Nature's idea, but the ribbon or chiffon touch has been added by the florist, he taking care to use only such colors as will contrast, but make a harmonious whole.

These improved methods of the retail trade have brought to the florist some profitable side lines. While the store is, and should be, devoted primarily to the sale of cut flowers, potted plants and greens, he now carries many accessories.

Add to Profits.

They are profitable, aside from what their sale nets him, in that they add to the attractiveness of his store, draw a better class of trade, which means larger sales checks, and finally, but far from the least important, send into the home of the purchaser or recipient something from his store of a permanent character, which is a constant reminder of him and the flowers he offers for sale.

The accompanying illustration shows the window display of art pottery, made by the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, O., in one of its two stores. While the pottery, fancy vases and other novelties are, as they should be, side lines with this company, their sale has developed into an important part of the business. Recently it was necessary to enlarge and fit up the store basement as a salesroom, wherein is carried a large assortment of these wares, always attractively displayed.

Vases Create Flower Sales.

In this window display the Jones-Russell Co. features a single line of pottery, consisting of vases, high and low bowls, twig sticks, flower holders and wall vases, but a great variety of high class ware is handled. It will be noted that while the vases and bowls are artistic in design, they are not highly decorated. They provide attractive receptacles for the flowers and do not detract from, but rather accentuate, the natural beauty of the blooms.

There are two reasons why a customer buys a vase. One is that he desires such a vase in his home; the other is to make of it a gift.

Let us follow that vase; first, into the purchaser's home.

If, when he buys the vase, he also purchases a dozen roses, say, he takes it and the flowers home and installs them in a conspicuous place. For vases are not bought to be kept out of sight. There it stands, after the flowers have gone, a constant challenge and delight to the eye and at the same time a reminder of flowers. It may be compared to a handsome frame with the picture lacking.

What is more natural than for the owner, when he thinks of flowers, to remember the florist from whom he purchased the vase? Thus the vase becomes not only a joy to the purchaser, but a representative of the florist in that customer's home. It would be a logical conclusion that the vase has made a steady buyer for the florist.

Gifts of flowers are expressions of sentiment. When the gift flowers are accompanied by an artistic and appropriate receptacle, such as a vase, the latter, being more or less permanent, continues to express that sentiment long after the flowers are gone. Just so long as the vase lasts, it is a reminder of someone. And, in this case also, what is more natural than to associate the source of the gift with the gift and the giver?

"Harry got it for me at the Jones-Russell store," would be a natural way of expressing this association.

Is Creative.

Here, too, the vase is a constant invitation to its owner to buy flowers to refill it. Thus it helps, not only the seller, but the whole trade.

The artistic ability of the florist is constantly developing new ideas in the handling of flowers.

Not only is he designing work, but he is giving his ideas to his fellows in the trade and at the same time adopting what of theirs he believes good.

These traits of the florist have brought out many novelties, some of which have become staples in the trade. An illustration will be a reminder that some brain first conceived and directed the work on each of the funeral designs which every florist now makes. Others of the novelties are popular for a while, and then are dropped. But discarded or not, each new creation has been an inspiration not only to the designer, but to some other florist.

Individuality Makes Sales.

The mere bunching of a few flowers and displaying the result with hundreds of other bunches of much the same character does not invite custom. Viewing a field of daisies is much the same. There are so many of the flowers that the possession of a few of them means but little to the observer. But take those same bunches of flowers into the florist's store, put each into an individual setting and the chances for sales have increased tremendously.

In the exhibit of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, at the rose show in March, there were displayed several illustrations of this individual method in society work. Special debutante boxes, each made especially for the recipient and not duplicated, were shown. Then there was the floral gift for the new baby, also original and also individual.

Harmony the Keynote.

Such work as this requires accessories as well as selection and treatment of the flowers which compose it. Boxes, baskets, vases, dishes—all may thus be utilized. But, as has been emphasized, be careful that the receptacle used be in keeping with the flowers it contains. Make it a fitting background for and not a rival to, the colors of the flowers.

After the spring rush those in the retail branch of the trade have more time to give their artistic ability full sway. It is the time, too, when every original touch to the show window, arrangement of flowers and interior of the store, will be a great sales help. For each will attract attention and stimulate the desire to possess in the passer-by and the visitor to the store.

used by Mr. Pierson in his display of roses, for which he received first prize, at the New York show. The two garden vases were used in the Pierson rose garden, which also received first prize at the same show.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of carrying the invaluable accessories which act as a trade stimulus. But in broadening his business, the retailer should not go beyond reasonable limits. He should confine his side lines to natural adjuncts to his business. But first, last and all the time he should remember that his business is selling flowers and that the other things are merely aids in the accomplishment of these sales.

EXPLOITING MOTHERS' DAY

MOTHERS' DAY NATIONAL AD.

Paid For by Small Profits.

The Mothers' day advertisement of the Chicago Florists' Club, with its border of forget-me-nots, appeared in the Literary Digest for May 5 and probably has been the most talked of thing that has happened in the trade this spring.

It is well understood that the advertisement, costing something over $1,000, was paid for out of the publicity fund earned by the Chicago Florists' Club by its sales of St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day posterettes. These sticker stamps in bright colors were manufactured in large quantities, printing great sheets of them at a time, so that by selling in small lots, at moderate prices, a profit was turned into the publicity fund. A large number of florists contributed, but none contributed more than a few dollars and each contributor received full value for his money in the posterettes he obtained for his own use. It involved a large amount of work for the publicity committee, but the raising of the money was an easy matter because it came in small sums from many people and the transaction was a purchase, not a contribution.

Discussion of Details.

As the first attempt at national publicity for flowers the advertisement has attracted unusual attention from the trade. Not unnaturally, there is diversity of opinion regarding the details. Literary Digest has not been the favorite weekly publication of any considerable number of florists and many were surprised at the committee's selection and the statement of the number of readers reached. Discussion of this point gets nowhere, however, for the reason that no one would be able to pick out a publication giving a greater circulation among an equally desirable class of people unless the expenditure for a page were much greater.

The position accorded the advertisement was all that could be desired. It appeared on page 1, the first page inside the cover, a position so well esteemed that for it practically all publications charge an extra price.

Fundamentally All Right.

There are those who think the writer of the advertisement might well have put more emphasis on the sentimental appeal of the day, but it is a not uncommon fault of florists' advertising that it neglects to take into account that the public does not have the complete knowledge of the subject possessed by the writer of the advertisement; many a florist's advertisement would be well understood by the trade but is rather meaningless to the outside reader.

As an interesting experiment, however, this Mothers' day advertisement is excellent. It has shown the way. It is the work of the committee of a local florists' club, which probably will not care to carry it on indefinitely. The continuation of the work, and it undoubtedly is worth continuing, probably will rest with the S. A. F.

THE COMMITTEE'S VIEW.

"This campaign of advertising for Mothers' day was a mighty task," says Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of the publicity committee of the Chicago Florists' Club. "First of all, we got a late start because we felt that the national publicity committee of the Society of American Florists should carry on this work, and as this body met at New York March 20, our club did not wish to steal the national society's thunder by promoting a national campaign.

"Another obstacle was the fact that there was a competitive commercial Mothers' day advertising scheme in the field, and these, combined with a lack of real interest, were some of the barriers which stood in the way.

"But the obstacles mentioned should and will be easily overcome in the future and if we all get together co-operative national advertising will become a regular fixture just as much as any other item of our business.

"It is the opinion of our committee that a movement of this kind should be controlled by the highest society of our trade organizations, the Society of American Florists or the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. Either of these organizations could devise ways and means for carrying on active campaigns periodically and if the plan used by us is adopted, co-operative advertising could be made self-sustaining; likewise it would cover local advertising effectively, which would connect up with the national campaign.

"Our committee has learned considerable in handling this work, and we shall be more than pleased to give others the benefit of our experience."

EVERYBODY IS ON THE WAGON.

There is one thing certain, that if this week's Mothers' day business peters out unsatisfactorily, no one can say "I told you so" and point to the lack of advertising as the principal reason for the failure. In fact, the question at this writing as to how the day's business could possibly fail to break all records would be no less pertinent than the celebrated inquiry as to how a man is to get out of his trousers in a sleeping-car berth while he is sitting on them. For nearly every florist seems to be "doing his bit" in advertising the day, and the nation's mothers undoubtedly are surprised by the week's outburst of maternal love.

Of all the publicity work already done for the day, that of a large florists' club probably ranks first. This organization not only distributed stickers and posters, but also inserted a full-page advertisement in a weekly of national circulation, the benefits of which the trade at large enjoyed. National advertising also was employed by nine aggressive concerns, under the co-operative plan, in this case the advertisement bearing the signatures of the participants in the scheme. A printing concern specializing in sales literature for florists is reported to have sold innumerable stickers and posters.

Last, but not least, florists of many of the leading cities pooled their appropriations and thereby gave the flower message of the day a good showing in the papers. #### COBÆA SCANDENS FOR ARBOR.

I have an arbor that is surrounded by tall-growing trees. I would like to plant some kind of vine that would cover the arbor this summer. Can you tell me of anything that will do well from seed in such a place this season? I am not particular as to what it is, as long as it covers the arbor this season.

W. H.—Kan.

It is not an ideal place for any vine, but I think Cobæa scandens would cover the arbor more satisfactorily than anything else you can grow from seed. If you can secure a few plants in pots and plant them out now, you are more sure of getting a good covering than by starting seeds at this rather late date. They can be had from the majority of country florists doing a retail business. Give them well manured soil and they will make a rapid growth. C. W.

These traits of the florist have brought out many novelties, some of which have become staples in the trade. An illustration will be a reminder that some brain first conceived and directed the work on each of the funeral designs which every florist now makes. Others of the novelties are popular for a while, and then are dropped. But discarded or not, each new creation has been an inspiration not only to the designer, but to some other florist.

Individuality Makes Sales.

The mere bunching of a few flowers and displaying the result with hundreds of other bunches of much the same character does not invite custom. Viewing a field of daisies is much the same. There are so many of the flowers that the possession of a few of them means but little to the observer. But take those same bunches of flowers into the florist's store, put each into an individual setting and the chances for sales have increased tremendously.

In the exhibit of Pennoek Bros., Philadelphia, at the rose show in March, there were displayed several illustrations of this individual method in society work. Special debutante boxes, each made especially for the recipient and not duplicated, were shown. Then there was the floral gift for the new baby, also original and also individual.

Harmony the Keynote.

Such work as this requires accessories as well as selection and treatment of the flowers which compose it. Boxes, baskets, vases, dishes—all may thus be utilized. But, as has been emphasized, be careful that the receptacle used be in keeping with the flowers it contains. Make it a fitting background for and not a rival to, the colors of the flowers.

After the spring rush those in the retail branch of the trade have more time to give their artistic ability full sway. It is the time, too, when every original touch to the show window, arrangement of flowers and interior of the store, will be a great sales help. For each will attract attention and stimulate the desire to possess in the passer-by and the visitor to the store.

used by Mr. Pierson in his display of roses, for which he received first prize, at the New York show. The two garden vases were used in the Pierson rose garden, which also received first prize at the same show.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of carrying the invaluable accessories which act as a trade stimulus. But in broadening his business, the retailer should not go beyond reasonable limits. He should confine his side lines to natural adjuncts to his business. But first, last and all the time he should remember that his business is selling flowers and that the other things are merely aids in the accomplishment of these sales.

EXPLOITING MOTHERS' DAY

MOTHERS' DAY NATIONAL AD.

Paid For by Small Profits.

The Mothers' day advertisement of the Chicago Florists' Club, with its border of forget-me-nots, appeared in the Literary Digest for May 5 and probably has been the most talked of thing that has happened in the trade this spring.

It is well understood that the advertisement, costing something over $1,000, was paid for out of the publicity fund earned by the Chicago Florists' Club by its sales of St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day posterettes. These sticker stamps in bright colors were manufactured in large quantities, printing great sheets of them at a time, so that by selling in small lots, at moderate prices, a profit was turned into the publicity fund. A large number of florists contributed, but none contributed more than a few dollars and each contributor received full value for his money in the posterettes he obtained for his own use. It involved a large amount of work for the publicity committee, but the raising of the money was an easy matter because it came in small sums from many people and the transaction was a purchase, not a contribution.

Discussion of Details.

As the first attempt at national publicity for flowers the advertisement has attracted unusual attention from the trade. Not unnaturally, there is diversity of opinion regarding the details. Literary Digest has not been the favorite weekly publication of any considerable number of florists and many were surprised at the committee's selection and the statement of the number of readers reached. Discussion of this point gets nowhere, however, for the reason that no one would be able to pick out a publication giving a greater circulation among an equally desirable class of people unless the expenditure for a page were much greater.

The position accorded the advertisement was all that could be desired. It appeared on page 1, the first page inside the cover, a position so well esteemed that for it practically all publications charge an extra price.

Fundamentally All Right.

There are those who think the writer of the advertisement might well have put more emphasis on the sentimental appeal of the day, but it is a not uncommon fault of florists' advertising that it neglects to take into account that the public does not have the complete knowledge of the subject possessed by the writer of the advertisement; many a florist's advertisement would be well understood by the trade but is rather meaningless to the outside reader.

As an interesting experiment, however, this Mothers' day advertisement is excellent. It has shown the way. It is the work of the committee of a local florists' club, which probably will not care to carry it on indefinitely. The continuation of the work, and it undoubtedly is worth continuing, probably will rest with the S. A. F.

THE COMMITTEE'S VIEW.

"This campaign of advertising for Mothers' day was a mighty task," says Fred Lautenschlager, chairman of the publicity committee of the Chicago Florists' Club. "First of all, we got a late start because we felt that the national publicity committee of the Society of American Florists should carry on this work, and as this body met at New York March 20, our club did not wish to steal the national society's thunder by promoting a national campaign.

"Another obstacle was the fact that there was a competitive commercial Mothers' day advertising scheme in the field, and these, combined with a lack of real interest, were some of the barriers which stood in the way.

"But the obstacles mentioned should and will be easily overcome in the future and if we all get together co-operative national advertising will become a regular fixture just as much as any other item of our business.

"It is the opinion of our committee that a movement of this kind should be controlled by the highest society of our trade organizations, the Society of American Florists or the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. Either of these organizations could devise ways and means for carrying on active campaigns periodically and if the plan used by us is adopted, co-operative advertising could be made self-sustaining; likewise it would cover local advertising effectively, which would connect up with the national campaign.

EVERYBODY IS ON THE WAGON.

There is one thing certain, that if this week's Mothers' day business peters out unsatisfactorily, no one can say "I told you so" and point to the lack of advertising as the principal reason for the failure. In fact, the question at this writing as to how the day's business could possibly fail to break all records would be no less pertinent than the celebrated inquiry as to how a man is to get out of his trousers in a sleeping-car berth while he is sitting on them. For nearly every florist seems to be "doing his bit" in advertising the day, and the nation's mothers undoubtedly are surprised by the week's outburst of maternal love.

Of all the publicity work already done for the day, that of a large florists' club probably ranks first. This organization not only distributed stickers and posters, but also inserted a full-page advertisement in a weekly of national circulation, the benefits of which the trade at large enjoyed. National advertising also was employed by nine aggressive concerns, under the co-operative plan, in this case the advertisement bearing the signatures of the participants in the scheme. A printing concern specializing in sales literature for florists is reported to have sold innumerable stickers and posters.

Last, but not least, florists of many of the leading cities pooled their appropriations and thereby gave the flower message of the day a good showing in the papers. ## THE DELIVERY PROBLEM

HOW MOTORS SOLVED IT.

Florists Were Pioneers.

Manufacturers of automobiles for delivery purposes generally recognize that florists were among the first to test motors for commercial purposes and that there are few lines of business in which the automobile has been so generally adopted for delivery work.

Indeed, florists began to try out motor delivery before there were any widely known commercial motor vehicles. The desire for speedy, stylish delivery prompted many a florist to buy a pleasure car, remove its body and put on a specially built panel top for delivery work, before there were any solicitous salesmen offering vehicles specially built for the purpose.

A Special Problem.

A florist's delivery problem is different from that of most other business men. To begin with, nearly all flower orders are rush orders; quick action is demanded. If the customer does not put off ordering, the florist likes to delay delivery as long as he can. Flowers never benefit by waiting an event; they do not improve after they have left the florist's hands. Consequently, if it is a funeral design or a corsage bouquet, delivery is made as near the hour of use as safety will permit. It was obvious that the motor car, traveling fifteen to twenty miles an hour in city streets, would have many advantages over a horse-drawn vehicle traveling at best not more than six miles per hour, and that only for short distances.

With a motor the florist can delay the start on his route until hours after the limit with his slower conveyance. He accomplishes as much in one hour with his car as he could do in three hours with his wagon. There are not so many florists who keep a car going continuously as there are who provide a good load for a late afternoon trip.

The Advertising Value.

In addition to enabling the florist to deliver his flowers in a fresh condition, to increase the rapidity of his special service and to extend the radius of his operations, the motor car supplies the florist's need of a stylish turnout. Unlike coal, ice, milk and groceries, flowers seldom are delivered at the back door. Far be it from any florist to intimate that his service contemplates such a thing, but the fact is that the business of many a florist comes to him largely because of his reputation; those who buy do so at least partly because they wish to have his well known, stylish outfit seen making deliveries at the front door.

A motor car, especially in the earlier days, afforded a marked advance in the tone of the delivery outfit; it was exactly what society's favorite florist needed in his business. It has an advertising value and helps greatly in giving the service which is so essential a part of the better class retail flower business.

Efficiency That Decides.

But the general adoption of the motor car for delivery purposes never would have resulted from anything except efficiency, which is another word for economy. It was demonstrated that an automobile will do as much work as three wagons. If a florist needed three outfits, in the old days, he reduced his expense by using one motor truck. If his needs were met by one horse and wagon, a truck gave him the opportunity of extending his business without adding to his overhead expense, as would be done by putting on a second wagon. Even if his needs did not fully occupy the time of one wagon, a motor car does not eat its head off in the stable any faster than does a horse.

Taking consideration of all the points of view, today there is scarcely any florist who does not run at least one car. It makes no difference whether a florist runs a little 8x10 store in an office building in some big city, or if he has a big range of greenhouses in the country; in either case he has his car. It is not uncommon for fairly busy florists to operate large fleets. For instance, that of W. L. Rock Flower Co., of Kansas City, is shown in the accompanying illustration. He has five cars in service.

A Field for Frequent Sales.

The manufacturers of delivery trucks now find the florists' trade one of the best fields for their attention. While most florists already have trucks, none would think of going back to the old methods and the need for a dependable service and a stylish appearance necessitates frequent renewals; not even the best of trucks will last forever when given the hard service 365 days in the year that the florist demands.

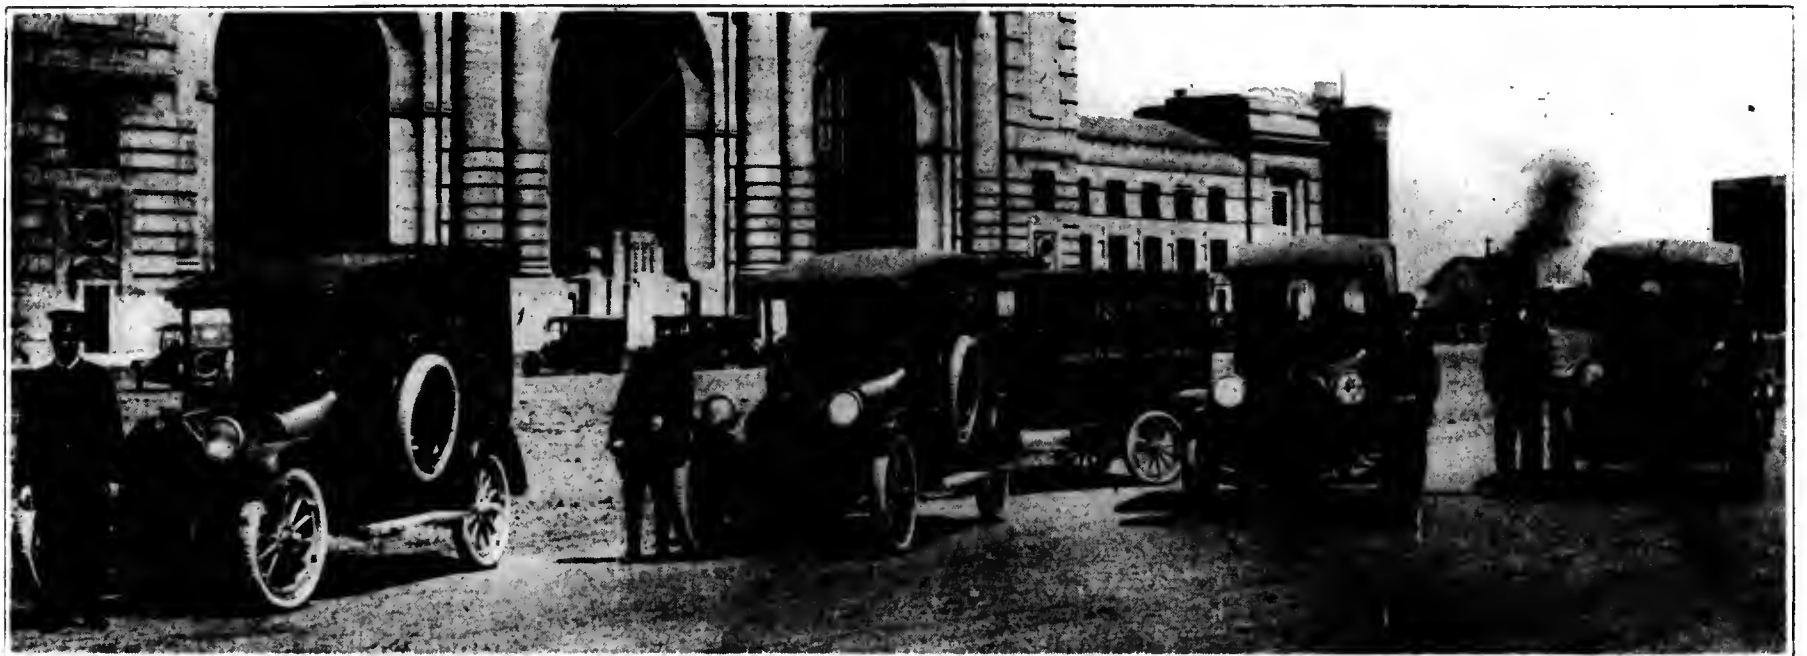

Experience has shown that the average florists' truck is good for about two years. After that it is cheaper to trade in the old machine on the purchase of a new one. Consequently, florists afford an inexhaustible field for the motor truck salesman.

Light Truck Now Chosen.

The first truck manufacturers who gave special attention to the florists' trade were prompted by the sales that came to them without solicitation. In that day the light truck was unknown. The vehicles were heavy and they were expensive to operate, though it must be said for them that they demonstrated wearing qualities that have not been found in all the later lighter vehicles.

The average retail florist seldom loads his truck to anything like its capacity. For that reason some of them still buy used pleasure cars and put on commercial bodies. Such a machine, designed to carry perhaps 800 pounds of passengers, usually is equal to the light merchandise load the florist gives it, but the average touring car is not designed for the short around-the-neighborhood trips which constitute the greater part of the florist's deliveries. The design of a truck is radically different from the design of a touring car, being built to meet a special purpose, and the rebuilt pleasure car idea is rapidly being dispelled.

In the light of experience, although growers and those having to do with moderately heavy loads still find a heavy truck desirable, most of the retail store florists have displaced the heavy cars with one or another of the popular, inexpensive light machines of 1,000 pounds to 1,500 pounds capacity. There are thousands of these doing duty for florists today. No florist who has had one would for a moment think of getting along without it. Nothing ever came into his business that was so great a help to it, for the delivery problem of all classes of flower stores and greenhouse operators is solved.

A WINDOW OF BEAUTIES.

When the window decorator of the Marshall Field & Co. retail store, Chicago, Ill., said to be one of the highest salaried men in his profession in the world, designed a window in honor of the visit of the French commission, he chose, as the central feature, a huge bunch of American Beauty roses, atop of which he placed the American eagle, while in the background were the American and French flags. In the foreground and under the overhanging flowers were strewn the petals of many more natural roses. The window display is shown in the accompanying illustration. Needless to say, such lavish use of these flowers attracted a great amount of attention from the crowds in the heart of Chicago's retail district, wherein the store is located. The selection of the roses and the interest they aroused show that Beauties are among the most popular flowers with the public.

HOOSIERS' MAY MEETING.

The Coal Situation Discussed.

The May 1 meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association, at the establishment of the Smith & Young Co., was one of the most interesting and profitable sessions held by the organization in a long time. President Bertermann presided and after the preliminary business the name of Allen Humason was proposed for associate membership. The pot situation was discussed and samples of pots were exhibited by the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., of St. Louis. The various kinds and sizes, ranging from 2 to 8-inch, were on hand for inspection. The pots were examined and pronounced good by several of the members.

The coal situation was another interesting topic. Secretary Steinkamp read a letter from the Sargent Coal Co., Newburg, Ind., stating the company's willingness to cooperate with the members of the association. Mr. Steinkamp advised members to write for prices. A. Rasmussen told of his experience last year and is convinced that the high prices of coal were a hold-up and that the same conditions still exist, only to a still greater degree. A. F. J. Baur told of his experience and said it was his belief that the poorest grades of coal brought the highest prices. The operators of good mines were booked up on contract orders which they were compelled to fill. The operators who mined poor coal, which was practically unsalable, did not have this to contend with and were in a position to demand any price they wanted for their coal. President Bertermann told of an incident in his endeavor to secure a contract for Pocahontas coal for this season's use. When he telegraphed to the C. C. C. & B. coal contractors he received a reply to the effect that they were sold out of Pocahontas coal but could furnish Virginia Splint, as stated in the letter to follow. This letter quoted prices, but at the bottom was a postscript saying that before the letter was mailed the entire lot of coal had been sold and that the contractors were not in the position to take any more orders.

Arthur L. Pett, of Crawfordsville, had on exhibition a new self-watering vase, for lawn and cemetery use. It was a handsome article of concrete and granite and was greatly admired. It is manufactured by a concern in Crawfordsville and has proved to be a success. The makers expect to place the vase on the general market next year.

Florists' Tornado Insurance.

A. Rasmussen thanked the association for its letter of sympathy on his heavy loss by the tornado. He explained his plan for the new insurance association, which is to cover damages by hail, tornado and snow cave-ins. It is Mr. Rasmussen's intention to form a national insurance association, but he felt it an honor to see its birth among his fellow-craftsmen of the state association and to have their indorsement. A general discussion of the subject provoked great enthusiasm. Herman Junge gave his views and is heartily in favor of the idea, but felt that it would be a difficult task to work out the premiums and scales. He felt that all should help to shoulder the responsibility. President Bertermann was of the same opinion and announced his company to be ready to promote the organization. W. W. Coles felt that to make the policies cover damages done by snow was a good thing. Joseph Wilkins made a few remarks in favor of the scheme, after which each member was polled, and each member deemed the new insurance a good guarantee for florists. A committee of five was appointed to work out a plan for such a mutual insurance association. The committee is composed of the following: Anders Rasmussen, chairman; A. F. J. Baur, L. Elder, Herman Junge, Charles Pahud. The expenses of this committee are to be met by the association and its report will be made at the next meeting.

Secretary Steinkamp read letters from E. G. Hill and the Frank brothers, expressing regrets at their absence and saying that they were in favor of the insurance plan.

W. W. Coles spoke on "Good Fellowship." Secretary Steinkamp read a letter to Governor Goodrich indorsing Mr. Lieber's plan for the botanical gardens.

After adjournment the members enjoyed a social hour and buffet luncheon. The meeting was attended by the following:

GROWERS! HOW ABOUT IT?

RETURNS FROM ROSES.

As Viewed by an Eastern Grower.

The question now open for discussion in the columns of The Review, with reference to the increase or decline of revenue from rose production in the first three months of 1917 as compared with the corresponding period of 1916, is worthy of the intense consideration of every man in the business who is devoting space under glass to the cultivation of roses.

The report from Bassett & Washburn in The Review of April 12, page 14, showing the percentage of varietal price decline for March, with comment as to the probable cause thereof, has a most pleasing ring of candor to one who experienced a like happening, and would prove, if accurate production and revenue statistics could be compiled from the records of every rose and carnation growing establishment in the country, to be the rule rather than the exception. Business was appallingly poor during the month of March, statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

A superabundance of bulbous stock, as Bassett & Washburn state, had a tremendous effect in diminishing the demand for roses and carnations and the reason is obvious—

For who would purchase roses or carnations
When a ten spot a thousand daffs would buy?

Larger Output, but Lower Prices.

Yet it is a deplorable state of affairs when cheap and easily grown flowers are sold below actual cost and thus impede the disposal of stock the culture of which requires brains, ability and high expense.

Our experience, at the Lakeview Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., during the month of March, is similar to that of Bassett & Washburn in so far as price decline is concerned, and similar to that of the Wendland & Keimel Co., as reported in The Review of April 26, in increased production. Our gross sales for March were twenty-five per cent greater than for the same month in 1916, but the twenty-five per cent increase was the result of pre-Easter plant sales. The revenue received from the sale of roses and carnations was about the same as that of last year, and this, considering the increased production, showed a price decline of about equal proportion to that reported by Bassett & Washburn.

Our operating expenses during the period in question were approximately twenty per cent greater than in the corresponding period of the preceding year. Hence we echo the question used as a caption for the subject by The Review—"Growers! How about it?"—with a feeling principally noteworthy for its lack of optimism.

How about it? Will present economic conditions have a tendency to minimize the demand for flowers? Will the increased cost of labor, coal and important accessories permit operating without sustaining a loss? Will an increase in selling price, providing it is possible to secure it, offset the increased operating costs? Who can answer?

Effects of the War.

B. C. Forbes, in an article in the current issue of Hearst's Magazine, entitled "What Would War Do to America?" cites the following cycle of possible developments:

First—A shock felt almost acutely in security markets and financial circles.

Second—Disorganization of industry through the calling of workers to arms, the cancellation of many contracts and paralysis in the ordering of numerous classes of merchandise.

Third—A rise in prices of all supplies needed by armies, such as foodstuffs, clothing and munition-fabrication necessities.

Fourth—Increased demand for labor and consequent advance in wages.

Fifth—Irregular recovery in security markets, with more or less wild speculations in stocks benefited by military requirements.

Sixth—Revival in general business and in speculation.

Seventh—War-inflated prosperity, overtrading and overexpansion, intensified by prospects of peace.

Eighth—Tightening of bank credits, influenced by government borrowing and considerations of safety.

Ninth—Excessive activity caused by rehabilitation activity.

Tenth—A relapse, not immediate, but sure.

If all those possible happenings materialize into actuality, our immediate future, based on present conditions, does not appear any too rosy. Conservation of resources, increased efficiency and increasing vigilance are our only means of salvation.

Efficiency has prospered mightily during the last few years and reaction is inevitable. The great natural law of rhythm is about to execute its downward course, and lucky is he who can hold fast until the great reëmerging into the plane of prosperity takes place.

Chas. N. Cotter.

TULIPS FOR EASTER, 1918.

Please state if the following Darwin and cottage tulips are good commercial varieties, and give the best treatment for them to have them bloom for Easter, 1918, or later: Glory, King Harold, Mrs. Cleveland, Nora Ware, Bouton d'Or, Vitellina, Mrs. Moon and Parisian White.

N. F. C.—Ia.

The cottage tulips, while splendid outdoors, are less valuable for indoor culture and are not so good for cutting as the Darwins. Instead of growing the Darwins you mention, I would suggest Pride of Haarlem, the finest of all Darwins for forcing; William Copeland, Baronne de la Tonnaye and Mme. Darwins grow much taller than the early forcing tulips and take somewhat longer to flower. They can be given a temperature of 55 degrees for a time, reducing this 5 to 10 degrees as they approach the flowering period. For flowering later than Easter, keep the plants later in the cellar. ### THE PRICE PROBLEM.

Our firm would like to hear an expression from florists in various parts of the country upon the subject of advancing prices. In view of the rapidly rising prices of everything that enters into our business, what are we to do to maintain a fair and reasonable margin of profit for ourselves?

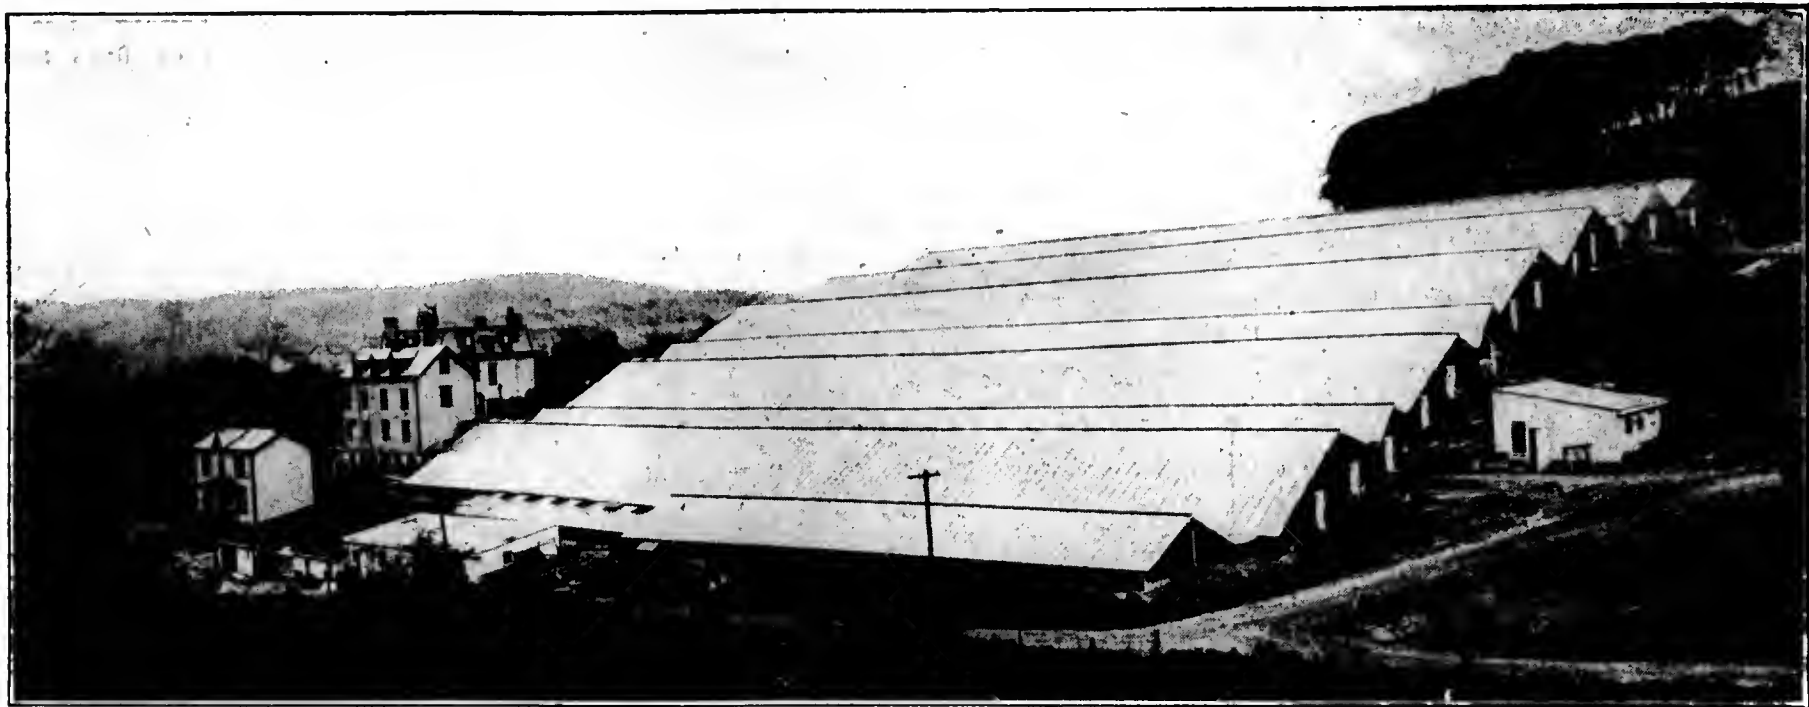

We are fully mindful of the views of a considerable portion of the trade, that we deal in a luxury, and that an advance in our price might drive away business. We believe too much stress is laid upon this danger. Is it not more reasonable to believe, in view of the advances in every other business, that our customers fully expect a reasonable increase in cost from us, and would accept it without complaint?

If we are making no more money now than we should make, and we accept and absorb all these advancing costs ourselves, clearly our profits are going to be seriously impaired or entirely swept away.

Our firm believes that if the larger dealers throughout the country lead in a reasonable price revision, the other florists, with a few exceptions, will fall in line. Take a few articles, to illustrate: Who will deny that good, well-grown geraniums in 4-inch pots are sold too cheaply at the generally prevailing price of $8 per hundred wholesale, and $1.50 per dozen retail? The writer easily recalls that his father used to get 25 cents each, or $2.50 per dozen, for 4-inch geraniums. It could be done even more easily now, in the more prosperous condition of the country.

The same proportion may be fairly applied to other bedding stock. In cut flower stock, carnations at this season ought to be maintained at a selling price of 75 cents to $1 per dozen, and at a wholesale figure of $3 to $4 per hundred. Certainly no customer would be injured by paying such a figure, but all of us, wholesaler and retailer, would be greatly benefited, and with the close of each trade season we should feel that we had worked to some purpose.

A BIG PITTSBURGH RANGE.

Besides having one of the best equipped stores in Pittsburgh, Pa., the Ludwig Floral Co. ranks among the largest growers in western Pennsylvania. At its range at Castle Shannon, Pa., shown in the accompanying illustration, the company produces principally roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and lilies for the Pittsburgh store. The range consists of 150,000 feet of glass and before the company took it over five years ago was known as the Saxonwald Greenhouses. The officers of the company all are well known to the trade in Pittsburgh. They are: President, Gustav Ludwig; vice-president, J. W. Ludwig; secretary, Gilbert Ludwig; treasurer, Henry Meuschke.

FRIEDLEY A CRACK BOWLER.

Frank A. Friedley, of Cleveland, O., is a versatile young man. He not only manages the greenhouses of the Friedley Co., at East Cleveland, is secretary of the Cleveland Florists' Club, and a leader in Cleveland trade circles, but is a proficient bowler as well. He is a crack member of the Cleveland Florists' Bowling Club, which, during the last season, won the Michigan Cut Flower Co. trophy by defeating the Detroit Florists' Bowling Club. The accompanying reproduction of his photograph shows Mr. Friedley about to make a strike. Mr. Friedley served his apprenticeship as a grower with the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., remaining there five years. He was later with the Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O., Frank Huntsman and William Murphy, Cincinnati, O., the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., and Miss Bell Miller, Springfield, Ill., leaving the last named nine years ago to become superintendent of the J. M. Gasser Co. greenhouses at Rocky River, O., a suburb of Cleveland.

Later Mr. Friedley went into business for himself.

PROPAGATION OF PHLOXES.

By Seeds and Cuttings.

Phloxes may be propagated by seeds, cuttings or divisions. The hybrid phloxes will not breed true from seed, but it is found that about forty per cent of the seedlings will be as good as the parents. In order to secure the best results with seed, cross pollination is necessary. The seed should be sown in February in a moderate temperature, and as soon as the seedlings are large enough to handle they should be placed singly in 2½-inch pots and grown in coldframes or a greenhouse. The new plants should be set out early in the spring, allowing two to two and one-half feet between the plants. In this manner it is possible to secure bloom the first season from seed.

To perpetuate varieties of especial merit, propagation by cuttings is resorted to. Cuttings may be taken in the fall from flowering stems which had been previously cut back immediately after flowering. Cuttings two to three inches long should be selected, preferably with a heel, and rooted in sand in a shady coldframe. They should then be potted in light, sandy loam, and kept in the coldframe over winter, with a protection of sash and straw. Early in the spring these young plants should be set out similarly to seedlings, or placed in a nursery row until they have attained sufficient size for permanent planting. Another method employed where greenhouse facilities are available is to take up old plants from the garden in December, pot them and force growth. Good, strong cuttings may then be obtained in March, which are rooted and potted in the usual manner.

By Dividing the Clumps.

The easiest and most common method of propagation, especially among amateurs, consists of taking up the plants in the fall or spring and dividing the clumps with a spade or knife. Phloxes increase by underground stolons growing outward, and it is these young, vigorous shoots on the outside which produce the best plants. The newly divided plants should be set out at once. In the case of the dwarf and creeping species, P. subulata, large plants may be converted into numerous small ones by shaking some light soil among them in the summer and then dividing in the fall, when the trailing branches will be found to have rooted.

The garden culture of phloxes is quite simple. As they are gross feeders, the soil should be worked up to a depth of eighteen inches to two feet and well enriched with well-rotted manure. The manure is especially necessary in light, sandy soil, to conserve moisture. It should be used sparingly in stiff, heavy soil, however, in view of a prevalent spot disease caused by a fungus, Cercospora phlogina. The disease is characterized by circular brown spots on the foli-

GROWERS! HOW ABOUT IT?

RETURNS FROM ROSES.

As Viewed by an Eastern Grower.

The question now open for discussion in the columns of The Review, with reference to the increase or decline of revenue from rose production in the first three months of 1917 as compared with the corresponding period of 1916, is worthy of the intense consideration of every man in the business who is devoting space under glass to the cultivation of roses.

The report from Bassett & Washburn in The Review of April 12, page 14, showing the percentage of varietal price decline for March, with comment as to the probable cause thereof, has a most pleasing ring of candor to one who experienced a like happening, and would prove, if accurate production and revenue statistics could be compiled from the records of every rose and carnation growing establishment in the country, to be the rule rather than the exception. Business was appallingly poor during the month of March, statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

A superabundance of bulbous stock, as Bassett & Washburn state, had a tremendous effect in diminishing the demand for roses and carnations and the reason is obvious—

For who would purchase roses or carnations when a ten spot a thousand daffs would buy?

Larger Output, but Lower Prices.

Yet it is a deplorable state of affairs when cheap and easily grown flowers are sold below actual cost and thus impede the disposal of stock the culture of which requires brains, ability and high expense.

Our experience, at the Lakeview Rose Gardens, Jamestown, N. Y., during the month of March, is similar to that of Bassett & Washburn in so far as price decline is concerned, and similar to that of the Wendland & Keimel Co., as reported in The Review of April 26, in increased production. Our gross sales for March were twenty-five per cent greater than for the same month in 1916, but the twenty-five per cent increase was the result of pre-Easter plant sales. The revenue received from the sale of roses and carnations was about the same as that of last year, and this, considering the increased production, showed a price decline of about equal proportion to that reported by Bassett & Washburn.

Our operating expenses during the period in question were approximately twenty per cent greater than in the corresponding period of the preceding year. Hence we echo the question used as a caption for the subject by The Review—"Growers! How about it?"—with a feeling principally noteworthy for its lack of optimism.

How about it? Will present economic conditions have a tendency to minimize the demand for flowers? Will the increased cost of labor, coal and important accessories permit operating without sustaining a loss? Will an increase in selling price, providing it is possible to secure it, offset the increased operating costs? Who can answer?

Effects of the War.

B. C. Forbes, in an article in the current issue of Hearst's Magazine, entitled "What Would War Do to America?" cites the following cycle of possible developments:

First—A shock felt almost acutely in security markets and financial circles.

Second—Disorganization of industry through the calling of workers to arms, the cancellation of many contracts and paralysis in the ordering of numerous classes of merchandise.

Third—A rise in prices of all supplies needed by armies, such as foodstuffs, clothing and munition-fabrication necessities.

Fourth—Increased demand for labor and consequent advance in wages.

Fifth—Irregular recovery in security markets, with more or less wild speculations in stocks benefited by military requirements.

Sixth—Revival in general business and in speculation.

Seventh—War-inflated prosperity, overtrading and overexpansion, intensified by prospects of peace.

Eighth—Tightening of bank credits, influenced by government borrowing and considerations of safety.

Tenth—A relapse, not immediate, but sure.

If all those possible happenings materialize into actuality, our immediate future, based on present conditions, does not appear any too rosy. Conservation of resources, increased efficiency and increased vigilance are our only means of salvation.

Efficiency has prospered mightily during the last few years and reaction is inevitable. The great natural law of rhythm is about to execute its downward course, and lucky is he who can hold fast until the great reëmerging into the plane of prosperity takes place.

age, which on the upper surface show a dark brown border. The distance of planting should vary from two to three feet, depending upon the effects desired. For color grouping, clumps may be set two feet apart without being overcrowded. Phloxes suffer in hot weather because of their tendency to form roots at the surface. To avoid this, mulching with well-decayed cow manure should be resorted to in June. Moderate shade is also beneficial during the hot part of the day, so that an eastern or western border is preferable to one facing south. For the best results, phloxes should be divided every three or four years.

best strains of seeds are bought. Seeds should be sown in pans or flats and later transferred to flats or small pots. They should be allowed to run up to flower before being pinched back, at which time it is easy to weed out any rogues, and if shifted into 4-inch pots they can be held in them until benched, which should be early in August. These snapdragons will throw a crop of flowers in October and can be depended upon to bloom until the following July.

Cyclamens.

Cyclamen plants now are making good growth and by this time should be in 4-inch pots. They like a fairly warm house; one held at 55 degrees at night will suit them to a nicety. In potting use a light, fairly open compost containing plenty of flaky leaf-mold, and be sure to keep the corms elevated above the soil. Cyclamens now will need a light shade on bright days, but it is better to use a removable rather than a permanent shade. Late-sown cyclamens are just ready to move from flats into 2½-inch pots. These will make nice plants in 5-inch or 6-inch pots for next Thanksgiving or Christmas.

Nerines and Amaryllis Belladonna.

The foliage now will be turning yellow on both Guernsey lilies and Belladonna lilies. Plants may now be placed in a coldframe and the water supply gradually decreased. As soon as the foliage has died down lay the plants on their sides either outdoors, on a warm, sunny bank, or, better still, in coldframes, with sashes above them. These bulbous plants must have a thorough baking right through the summer if a good crop of flower spikes is wanted in the fall. Leave the plants alone until flower spikes appear. Plants recently repotted will flower sparsely. Nerines especially will not bloom freely until the pots are a mass of roots. These are beautiful fall-flowering subjects and come in at a season when flowers are not any too abundant.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Window Boxes.

One of the most satisfactory signs of the times, horticulturally, has been the great development in the use of window boxes, not only on private residences but also on hotels, apartment houses, stores and even factories. This is something that both growers and retailers should encourage, develop and push, as indicated in the leading article in The Review for April 26.

If you have a store, why not fill one or two boxes, to say nothing of vases, and give prospective customers an idea of what they look like and what their cost will be?

One or two growers of my acquaintance use boxes and vases at their own houses and they find them to be the best possible advertisements. Why not try it yourself and see how it works?

If you send printed circulars to your customers, mention the fact that now is the time to fill piazza boxes, window boxes, vases and hanging boxes. If you have advertisements in your local paper, do the same. Have good samples planted for customers to look over and quite a few are sure to buy.

Get the Soil Ready.

Procure a good pile of compost specially prepared for the boxes and baskets. Remember that the plants are to occupy the boxes for several months, that they will have but a limited rooting area and that they in all probability will get none too much water and no feeding, in many cases. Any soil will not do, as some imagine. It must be rich and fully one-third of it should be well rotted cow or horse manure. If these fertilizers are not to be had, use sheep manure of the pulverized brand, and some fine bone, in addition. If the soil is not a heavy one no sand is needed, but add a little sand if the loam is stiff and retentive. Throw the soil into a heap and turn it a couple of times to mix it well.

Plants for Vases and Boxes.

In the April 26 issue of The Review there appeared a list of some of the plants suitable for boxes. As a general rule, the geranium finds most favor as a flowering plant, as it is a perpetual bloomer and the plants certainly make a splendid showing where they are carefully watered. Some other good flowering subjects for boxes are petunias, fuchsias, in partial shade; lantanas, Marguerite Mrs. Sander, vincas, verbenas, ageratums, Lobelia gracilis, nasturtiums, abutilons and the dwarfed cannas. Mixtures of flowering plants are not effective. It is best to stick to one or, at the most, two varieties. Some good trailing plants are green and variegated vincas, Evonymus radicans, English ivy, German ivy and Asparagus Sprengeri. Good, full plants should be used for hanging. The following are suitable for basket work: English ivy, ivy-leaved geraniums, browallias, fuchsias, particularly the variety Trailing Queen; German ivy and tradescantias. For shaded locations baskets of Boston ferns are fine. Boxes of ferns are satisfactory for similar locations. Many foliage plants can, of course, be effectively used in boxes and vases, but for summer use flowering subjects are rather more effective.

Snapdragons for Next Winter.

It now is time to sow seeds or take cuttings of snapdragons where a fall and winter crop is wanted next season. Cuttings are necessary to perpetuate some special varieties, but if seeds of these same sorts are procurable I would advise using them instead of cuttings, on account of the greater vigor of the plants and their greater resistance to disease. There will be a few rogues when snapdragons are grown from seeds, but the number is comparatively trifling if the

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CALLAS IN THE SOUTH.

Although the end of the calla flowering season is at hand in the south, do not withhold water altogether from the plants. It is a most difficult job to carry calla bulbs through the summer season without the crowns rotting. I have tried resting them in the ground, or in pots, and also digging them and placing them in a cool, shady place, but never with any degree of success. The only way I have succeeded is to give the plants enough water to keep them in a half growing condition all summer, and start them into active growth again about the end of August. I have always had better results from growing them in beds or on benches than in pots, but others may have had results directly the opposite. Some growers throw away the old bulbs at the end of each season and start new ones. If these growers will give the above plan a fair trial, I think they will be convinced that by it they can save money. L.

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

Although warm weather is here, much can be done to prolong the flowering season of carnations in the south. The glass requires a heavier shading. A thin coat of whiting can easily be applied with a spray pump, on the inside of the houses. In this way the summer rains have no effect on it and it is easily removed in the fall by spraying with the hose. A mulch one inch in depth, of any old rotted manure, will help to keep the roots cool, as well as supply fertilizer. The plants must be well supplied with water and syringed often. Keep thrips, which are active now, in subjection by using any of the standard remedies. Keep the doors and ventilators wide open day and night, except during storms, of course. L.

SOUTHERN DECORATIVE STOCK.

Palms and other plants in the south that have been used during the winter season may now be overhauled before placing them in a lath house for the summer. It is not always practical to give such plants a shift into larger pots or tubs, because the handling of large pots is a burdensome affair. If the plants are taken from their pots and as much as possible of the old soil removed, they may be repotted in the same pots, using, of course, a rich potting soil, to which has been added a good sprinkling of bone meal. Arecas and latanias may have many of their roots cut away before repotting without any bad effect, but kentias are more particular in this respect. Syringe the plants thoroughly daily and give them lots of space. A palm is more particular in the matter of head room than root room. L.

READY FOR MOTHERS' DAY.

Charles L. Baum, who in addition to his retail store has a range consisting of two and one-half acres under glass at Knoxville, Tenn., is a grower who believes that Mothers' day is one of the biggest flower-selling days of the year. The accompanying illustration shows a house of Mr. Baum's new white seedling carnation, Dr. Sam. Fifteen thousand of this variety alone will be cut for the Mothers' day sales. Dr. Sam is described as a trifle smaller than some varieties of carnations, but is a free and easy bloomer, keeps well and is unsurpassed at this season of the year.

THE RETAIL FLOWER STORE.

[Rudolph J. Mohr, a graduate of the Missouri Botanical Garden with the class of 1902, contributed an article on retail store management to a recent issue of the Garden Bulletin. It is herewith reprinted in part.]

The retail flower business of today is quite different from what it was in the past. A few years ago it was considered outside the florists' trade to carry anything besides flowers or material directly connected with them; but now the up-to-date florist will supply the sun-parlor not only with plants, but also with bird-cages, chairs, tables, fountain aquariums, goldfish and artificial flowers, while for the garden he will furnish cement benches, sundials, gazing-globes and many other novelties. Moreover, such a diversified stock does not in any way interfere with the sale of fresh flowers, but rather encourages it, as it attracts a wider class of people into the store.

A retail flower shop should at all times be a place of beauty. The plants in the store should be fresh, the pots covered, the cut flowers neatly arranged in vases or baskets and the workroom separated from the salesroom by at least a screen.

A good buyer is of the utmost importance in conducting a retail business. The proprietor should do his own buying, as he is in the best position to know just what the trade demands, but if this is not possible, the buyer should be a conscientious employee, one who has the store's interest at heart and is a good judge of values and qualities.

Salesmanship is no small item in establishing the success of a retail flower store. No matter how good the stock or how fine the location, one must have a good salesman in order to draw the trade. He should at all times be courteous and ready and willing to show the stock; he should be able to arrange the plants in an attractive manner, be a good judge of their appropriateness for special occasions and he should know enough about them to be able to give advice and suggestions concerning their care. Moreover, he should never sell or promise anything not in stock or that there is the slightest doubt about securing in time, for misrepresentation and unreliability do more injury to a business than anything else.

In this day of competition among retail stores, advertising is a great consideration, whether it be a small neighborhood florist or a large concern that caters to a city and suburban trade. If direct advertising is used—and it is a good method—a neat and attractive circular or card will suffice. This could be sent before a holiday or at a time when a special bargain is to be obtained. A card index could be kept of all to whom circulars or cards have been sent, and if they have not purchased after sending a certain number, their names might be dropped from the list. Window decoration as a means of advertising should not be overlooked. The manner of packing and delivering an order could also be classed as advertising, and part of the appropriation for such purpose should be spent in attractive boxes and tags.

Indirect advertising offers a wide choice of mediums, such as posters, signboards, programs and notices in street-cars or newspapers. Newspaper advertising is probably the best, the choice of paper depending upon its circulation, class of people reading it and the localities reached. A large space is, of course, more desirable, as more details can be given and the principal selling points brought out, but a neat and attractive advertisement, whether large or small, is sure to bring good results.

Rudolph J. Mohr.

Akron, O.—The boiler room of the McFarlands greenhouses on Wooster avenue last week was damaged by fire to the extent of $2,000, the blaze originating in an adjoining building. A large quantity of paper and boxes purchased last summer and stored above the boiler room was destroyed. The boiler and a delivery truck were also badly damaged by the flames.

BAIT THAT DRAWS CROWDS.

The progressive retailer, ever on the lookout for ideas that will make his window displays out of the ordinary and therefore attractive and valuable, will appreciate the possibilities suggested by the accompanying illustrations of the Easter flower display at the Phipps Conservatory, Schenley park, Pittsburgh, Pa. The display was called "The Springtime of Life," and proved an attraction that drew thousands of Pittsburghers to the conservatory.

J. W. Jones, foreman, discovered several years ago that it took more than an ordinary arrangement of flowers and plants to excite much interest in the conservatory among the people of Pittsburgh. Consequently in making displays for special days, such as Easter, he has conceived and executed novelties which have accomplished their purpose of bringing crowds, who, after they had arrived, were more delighted with the flowers than they realized they would be.

Easter this year came only a few days before the opening of the baseball season, so that sport was selected as the thing around which to build the display. A miniature playing field, with grandstand and bleachers, was built. Dolls represented the players and spectators. No detail was omitted, even the small boy viewing the game through a knothole being present. On the tennis court outside the ball park, also, there was a game in progress, while nearby were three boys fishing in a basin containing goldfish. And around the whole, or nearly so, was arranged the flower and plant display.

In speaking of the display, Mr. Jones declared it had eclipsed all his previous efforts, causing quite a sensation, not only among the children, but the grown-ups as well.

The plants which formed the background for the ball park were of the following varieties: Columbines, wistaria, Azalea mollis Anthony Koster, Rhododendron Pink Pearl, Deutzia Lemoinei, lilacs, yellow marguerites, sweet peas, magnolias, nasturtiums, German iris and hydrangeas. Beds of Pelargonium Easter Greeting and Paul Crampel geraniums, bordered with artemisia and shrubs, ornamented the foreground.

Outdoor sports make a great appeal to the average American. Such a display as this, even on the much smaller scale necessary in a show window, would attract the attention of everyone who is a lover of sports. And the person who likes outdoor games is a person temperamentally fitted to like everything that pertains to the open, especially that which is beautiful.

Aside from their beauty, the greatest appeal of flowers is the suggestion they make of nature at its best. Consequently lovers of nature, of the open—and there is no one who needs so much outdoor space as the baseball enthusiast, be he fan or player—are all flower buyers in embryo. A window appealing to their greatest outdoor interest is bound to be impressive.

ESSENTIALS OF HYBRIDIZATION.

[Extracts from a paper by Floyd Bralliar, of Nashville, Tenn., read at the second annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association.]

Where the object sought is to produce in greater degree some characteristic already possessed by some individual plant, it should be carefully crossed with another plant of the same family that is as nearly like it as it is possible to find.

Mendel, a monk who did a great deal of plant breeding, announced it as a law that where two parents are allowed to breed, one-fourth of the offspring will be like one parent and one-fourth like the other parent, and that seed from either of these fourths will come true to name and will be like the parent whose character it followed; that the remaining half of the offspring of such a union will partake of the characteristics of both parents in varying degrees, and that it is among this half that we must look for improvements. In the second generation a certain fixed proportion of the seeds of these plants will revert to each of the original parents, but a portion of them will be like their own parent. By selection for a few generations, fewer and fewer of the seedlings will revert and the variety will become fixed. The announcing of this law has greatly lessened the labors of the breeder by telling him which of the offspring to throw away as being worthless to him. He no longer bothers with the half that is like one or the other of the original parents.

An Experiment with Cannas.

This law seems to be pretty generally operative where crosses are not too violent, but where the parents are too widely different the law is by no means fixed.

A concrete example of this method of procedure is before you. I have a canna with green foliage that bears flowers that are almost white. This canna has great vigor, a quality no other white canna possesses. I was desirous of producing two results. First I desired to produce a canna that would bear pure white flowers; secondly, I desired to produce a white canna with bronze foliage. Accordingly, a pink canna of equal size and vigor, with good bronze foliage, was selected. You see before you eight seedlings of this cross, using the white canna as the mother plant. Four of them have bronze foliage and four of them have green foliage. The other seeds failed to grow. Should these eight plants prove to be illustrative of all the results of such crosses, two of them should be white cannas like their mother, with green foliage; two of them should be pink cannas with bronze foliage, like their father; one should be a pink canna with green foliage, one a white canna with bronze foliage, and the other two should produce flowers that are of a lighter pink than their father but not so nearly white as their mother, while one should have bronze foliage and the other should have green foliage.

A Problem in Probabilities.

Unfortunately, all of the seed produced by the cross did not grow, and these seedlings may not, in all probability will not, follow this order. Most likely they will not produce any new variety at all, but half of them will be like each parent, or inferior to it. But this is the method that is followed to secure results, and by raising a multitude of seedlings of any cross one is likely sooner or later to secure the result he is striving for.

A View of the Phipps Conservatory, Schenley Park, Pittsburgh, Famous for Progressive Policies.

Display in Phipps Conservatory, Schenley Park, Pittsburgh, Pa., Which Affords a Suggestion to Window Trimmers.

Should one of these green-leaved seedlings prove to be identical, or approximately so, with its white-flowered mother, and were I to cross it on the mother variety, the chance of producing offspring that would be pure white and have green leaves would be greater than the chance from raising seedlings from either it or its mother, were they allowed to fertilize themselves.

The Third and Fourth Generation.

There is one other fact that is not to be overlooked by those who are engaged in plant breeding and crossing. A certain per cent of the variations that are obtained by hybridization do not appear in the first generation. Most of the variations appear in the second generation, but a certain proportion, and often the most valuable ones, do not appear until the third generation, while a few come even later than this.

I believe that where it is desired to transfer a required characteristic from one variety of plant to another of widely different characteristics, while still retaining the good qualities of the latter variety, it can be done more quickly and more surely by crossing one or both with one or more intermediate varieties, varieties that are truly intermediate in character, and then crossing the resultant progeny, than by making the direct cross itself.

The Price of Success.

I have spent no time in this paper discussing the mode of producing hybrids, for I take it for granted that all members of this society are fully as well acquainted as I with this. Only experience and painstaking observation will teach the operator when to transfer the pollen from one flower to another in order to make a successful cross in the more difficult varieties. And no one can explain why the same kind of pollen may be placed on the same kind of pistil a hundred times without being able to fertilize the ovule and so get seed, while the next time the operation is performed, under as nearly the same conditions as human skill can produce, the desired result may be secured. Other varieties cross so easily that it is difficult to fail.

To be a successful hybridizer, one must be willing to pay the price, willing to grow hundreds of seedlings that are of no value in order to get one that is of value, and then, when the result is obtained, more often than otherwise he may see the results of his toil disappear by some accident, or pass into the hands of someone else who reaps all the financial profits of it. But the pure fun of the work is worth the effort, if no other reward is ever obtained.

BAIT THAT DRAWS CROWDS.

The progressive retailer, ever on the lookout for ideas that will make his window displays out of the ordinary and therefore attractive and valuable, will appreciate the possibilities suggested by the accompanying illustrations of the Easter flower display at the Phipps Conservatory, Schenley park, Pittsburgh, Pa. The display was called "The Springtime of Life," and proved an attraction that drew thousands of Pittsburghers to the conservatory.

J. W. Jones, foreman, discovered several years ago that it took more than an ordinary arrangement of flowers and plants to excite much interest in the conservatory among the people of Pittsburgh. Consequently in making displays for special days, such as Easter, he has conceived and executed novelties which have accomplished their purpose of bringing crowds, who, after they had arrived, were more delighted with the flowers than they realized they would be.

Easter this year came only a few days before the opening of the baseball season, so that sport was selected as the thing around which to build the display. A miniature playing field, with grandstand and bleachers, was built. Dolls represented the players and spectators. # CHRYSANTHEMUMS

EARLY OUTDOOR MUMS.

Kindly let me know through your valuable paper the earliest white, pink and yellow chrysanthemums for outdoor cultivation. Also let me know about what time they bloom. I refer to the large-blooming varieties, of course.

W. F. B.—Md.

I presume you mean the strictly greenhouse varieties in early types. For these I would recommend Smith's Advance and Early Frost, white; Unaka and Pacific Supreme, pink; Comoleta and Marigold, yellow; Tint of Gold, bronze. These varieties come into flower during the first week of October. Marigold cannot always be depended on to come in this early and one cannot guarantee that the bud will set early enough. However, it is a fine variety and well worth a trial. There is another type of mums known as early flowering, which does splendidly in your section and which will come into flower earlier than the above-mentioned kinds. These would be: White, Dorothy, Cranford White and Petite Jean; pink, Normandie, Chas. Jolly and Hortense Malgat; yellow, Carrie and Cranfordia. These are not so tall-growing as the average greenhouse varieties, but they are more hardy and will begin to flower earlier. With us they are in flower the last week of September and continue to flower during the month of October. This early-flowering type is the kind we have been working to popularize for the last four or five years, and is just now coming into its own, particularly in sections where the earlier frosts are not too severe.

Chas. H. Totty.

STOCK FROM FROZEN MUMS.

I have several thousand chrysanthemum plants that were nipped by the cold, cut down, in fact; but now young growths have started at the roots of the old plants. Do you think these shoots will make good flowering plants by fall, or do you think they have been too severely stunted by the cold? I am situated in the southern part of Louisiana and grow my mums outdoors under canvas. But the winter was severe and my plants were not sufficiently protected. Do you think these root divisions will produce as good plants as sand-grown cuttings, or would it be better to buy a new batch of stock?

I have been told that cheesecloth houses are splendid for growing mums and that Californian growers have found the method successful. What do you think about it?

Last year I had some splendid white mums, but some of the buds turned brown and never developed. The good ones, however, were hard to beat. Now, I would like to know if it would be safe to use any plants developed from that stock. Any information will be appreciated.

C. C. B.—La.

The shoots coming up around the base of the old plants will make ideal plants for flowering next fall. They are what we call "sucker" plants and are always taken whenever it is possible to secure them. There is no reason why root divisions should not be just as good as sand-grown cuttings, and if the varieties you have are satisfactory for your purpose there is no reason why you should buy others.

Cheesecloth houses, as used in California, certainly produce results. There is no reason why you could not adapt them to your conditions.

Buds turn brown instead of developing when they are scorched by sun or rotted by moisture settling in the center of the bud. Plants propagated from this stock should be all right, as the trouble is not a hereditary disease.

AN ARMY OF SOWBUGS.

The management of a large growing establishment in Illinois is waging war on legions of wood lice, or sowbugs, which are playing havoc with the stock in the houses to an extent that makes the proposition a serious one. Mixtures of Paris green and sugar and of Paris green and flour were liberally distributed, and at first the bugs ate freely, as was evidenced by the hosts of skeletons lying around. Since that time, however, not a dead one is seen, and the question arises as to whether there is animal instinct in a bug to avoid partaking of the poison that killed its companions.

There are two kinds of sowbugs in the house, one which rolls up in a ball when touched, and one which is slimmer and more active. The well-known and reliable method of trapping with scalloped potatoes would mean a Herculean task with such a large area to cover, in addition to the expense and possible prohibition by the authorities; but, as one of the owners observed, "it is a desperate case and calls for extraordinary efforts to meet it."

W. M.

THE RED SPIDER.

Please let me know at once how to get rid of red spider on the plants in my greenhouse. I have tried various remedies, but without success.

M. E. E.—Ind.

Probably your methods in dealing with the red spider have been too gentle. There is only one way to handle this customer, roughly, without gloves. The red spider has no objection to most of the things that are considered uncomfortable by other animal inhabitants of the greenhouse. There is only one way to make him stop and back up. That way is to hit him right in the face, a hard blow with a drop of cold water. The less water and more force, the less the spider will like it. The hose is the only thing to use, backed by the best pressure one can get. Be sure you hit the spider and not just the plants.

ANOTHER PROOF OF PROGRESS.

Progressiveness, modernity, these are the keynotes of the florists' business today. Old methods withdraw their hold of many years' standing and give way to new, and with advanced practices there comes also, as a natural concomitant, modern stores and greenhouses. The accompanying illustration shows the retail store and greenhouse of J. J. Kolar & Son, 5136 West Twenty-fifth street, Chicago, recently completed, which well typifies this pervasive spirit. As can be seen by the illustration, everything about the Kolar establishment smacks of progress.

OBITUARY

John V. Wickler.

John V. Wickler, for many years engaged in the florists' business at Grand Forks, N. D., was killed last week by a train while he was walking on the tracks near his home, at Lyons, Ill. Mr. Wickler was hard of hearing and it is believed that he did not hear the train approaching from the back. Death was instantaneous. Mr. Wickler was born in Illinois, September 4, 1858. He is survived by two daughters and a son, Fred B. Wickler.

James Stredwick.

The many American business acquaintances, as well as the considerable number of personal friends, of James Stredwick will learn with regret of his death at Silverdale Nurseries, St. Leonards, England. Mr. Stredwick was one of the most successful of latter-day raisers of new dahlias and also was widely known for his chrysanthemum seedlings.

James Hassett.

James Hassett, proprietor of the Davenport Nursery and widely known among the trade in Iowa, died Thursday, May 3, at the Mercy hospital, Davenport. He leaves a widow and five children. The members of the Tri-City Florists' Club attended the funeral in a body.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The market is rather short on flowers and the prospects for a large supply at Mothers' day are none too bright. The demand from out of town is heavy. Receipts of roses and carnations are smaller. Cloudy weather at the end of last week and the first part of this week did not serve to relieve this condition. Easter lilies are in good supply. A good cut of sweet peas is arriving and peonies are becoming more plentiful. They are from the south. A few lilacs may be had. Other offerings include snapdragons, callas, irises, valley, gladioli and marguerites. New southern ferns are in the market. Other greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell last week received the first of his new ferns from the south.

The William Murphy Co. had a larger number of advance orders than ever before for Mothers' day.

The R. G. Kootz Floral Co. is in receivership, in a suit to settle partnership affairs.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been getting in some excellent southern peonies.

Among recent visitors were Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York; Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York; Earl Smith, of Hinsdale, Mass.; H. M. Gregory, of Sabina, O. C. H. H.

News from Abroad

London, England.—The government has granted permission for the mailing, without request, of catalogues begun before the restrictive order issued here March 3.

Genoa, Italy.—The minister of agriculture has announced his intention of establishing in the chief cities of Italy large model nurseries for the production of herbaceous plants. The government will grant subsidies to cover the expenses of these establishments.

Calcutta, India.—The British government has increased the quantity of burlap requisitioned for shipment from Calcutta during May and June from 50,000,000 yards each month to 65,000,000. This is an increase of thirty per cent. It has had a bullish effect on the market.

Wiesbaden, Germany.—Ferd. Fischer, the well-known cyclamen seed specialist, wrote January 25, the letter being posted in Norway, intercepted by the British censor and delivered to the addressee in America May 7: "Many of my old customers may have ordered last spring, but I did not receive their letters or money, nothing at all in 1916; nor any money for deliveries in 1915."

London, England.—It is pointed out to carnation growers that, for those who were able to maintain their production, "flowers fetched record prices over a longer period during the season coming to a close, than ever before, and it does not need a prophet to point out that they will be scarcer still for next winter. Less labor and people concentrating on other things is bound to have this effect."

The Hague, Holland.—In 1915, 126,000 acres, or two per cent of Holland's superficial area, was devoted to gardening and 20,900 acres, or three-tenths of one per cent, to flowers and bulbs, out of a total of 2,325,000 acres (thirty-eight per cent) of arable land. August 16, 1916, a law was passed empowering the government to restrict or prohibit the planting of crops not useful for feeding human beings and animals and therefore the government has made several regulations calculated to increase the food-producing capacity of the land and at the same time to discourage the cultivation of crops whose acreage has been increasing under the stimulation of high export prices. The cultivation of several kinds of crops will be restricted to the average acreage employed for those crops during 1913, 1914 and 1915. Other crops, which are principally used for export, will be reduced to seventy or eighty per cent of the 1913 to 1915 figures. It is estimated that a total of 100,000 acres will thus be released for the production of crops for home consumption. The importance of this addition to Holland's food-producing acreage may be realized when it is noted that its entire area devoted to winter wheat in 1916 was 124,000 acres. In connection with the different schemes calculated to increase the food output of Dutch soil, it has been repeatedly stated by the Minister of Agriculture, Industry and Commerce that it will be the government's policy to discourage the raising of export crops by the interposition of export prohibitions and to encourage home crops by a system of higher maximum prices.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The West View Floral Co., of Elkhart, Ind., states that funeral work has kept it "out of the hole" this season. A glimpse of sunshine prompted the remark that "every cloud has its silver lining" and put behind the terrors of a rapidly diminishing coal pile. There is an abundant supply of well grown stock to meet a good planting season.

Henry Ehrhardt, of Sidney, O., is one of the fortunates who grew a part crop of lettuce last winter. The crop is now nearing the end and allowing space for numerous bedding plants of excellent quality.

W. D. Rettie, of South Bend, Ind., reading a price list for Mothers' day, mailed by a wholesaler, in which split carnations were quoted at 5 cents, said: "The special days furnish the rock upon which the wholesaler and retailer split. Taking the risk of loss of sales, cost of handling, etc., it remains to be seen whether there will be an appreciative surplus toward the Jarvis fund." Work on a concrete bed suggested the remark that "much going up and little coming down at this time furnishes the opportunity to prepare for a good bottom when the balance turns."

Adam Graham has returned safely to his Cleveland, O., home from his annual trip to the Isle of Pines with the usual account of the vegetation there to interest his fellow Clevelanders.

John D. Rockefeller has given instructions to A. Graham & Son, of Cleveland, O., to convert his tennis courts into a garden. The question of which is the most suitable and profitable to raise, pineapples or potatoes, is left to the judgment of Adam Graham, Jr., who will supervise the undertaking.

Aaron Shive, manager of the greenhouses of the Flick Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., was assisting in the construction of a rustic bridge. "Putting in pecky cypress for flooring," he observed. "If one wishes something equal to concrete, this is it, and a bridge, nowadays especially, must carry heavy weights."

WHY not a posterette campaign "Wear a Flower on the Fourth" this year?

STEEL prices were given another large and, apparently, arbitrary boost last week.

IF you can use a bargain in greenhouse property, keep an eye on the For Sale ads in The Review and you will find just the place to suit you.

THERE are localities in which $1.50 is the established retail price for a dozen geranium plants, but this year it won't supply the florist's family with food and fuel. The price should be not less than $2.

ONE of the principal sources of supply for glass and paint for greenhouse use makes the following statement of the present situation: "There is no doubt that the present high price of linseed oil, together with that of white lead, is having more or less of a retarding effect on the buying of paint. The demand for glass, however, seems to be pretty good; in fact,
business has been beyond expectations.
Our principal trouble this year is in getting the material in greenhouse sizes; we are not worrying about orders."

SAYS a Red Cross worker: "German guns were pounding Verdun last summer when I went to that stricken city with the consent of the French government.
When I reached Verdun, it was the first day of the annual sweet pea festival, and with little attention to the German shells, the people were paying tribute to their beautiful flowers. Even the soldiers had entries." The United States is several thousand miles removed from the war zone—a cheering note to those of the retailers who are pessimistic as to the probable effects of the war on the business.

GOOD 4-inch geraniums are worth 10 cents this spring and the time-honored standard price of 8 cents would better go into the limbo of forgotten things.

EVERYBODY knows f. o. b. and c. w. o.
soon may be equally familiar in this trade, as there is a continually strengthening demand for prompt settlements in this as in most other lines of business.

THE flower show planned for Pittsburgh, June 13 to 16, under the auspices of the Garden Club of Allegheny County, with Arthur Herrington as manager, has been abandoned because the United States has gone to war.

THE grower who first advanced the price of grafted rose plants had no cause to regret his self-reliance; those who grow good stock promptly followed and they have all cleaned up in as good shape as would have been likely at the old rates.

HAVE YOU A SURPLUS?

Look over the Classified ads in The Review. If you have a surplus of some item not offered there, quick cash can be had for it. Like this:

look as though no one else in the country had any cannas.—Floyd Bralliar, Madison, Tenn.,

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty money elsewhere than in The Review.

IF FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED.

"Collections are slow." One hears it times without number, but in certain quarters no complaints of this nature ever are made and it leads to the conclusion that the reason collections are slow with most florists is that sufficient effort to get the money is not made.

Only a small minority of those in the business make a prearranged, continuous effort to collect the accounts on their books. In many cases even the mailing of statements is an irregular matter, and, with the mailing, effort ceases. No attempt is made to follow up the debtor with a request for the payment of the neglected account, and a repetition of the request as it becomes necessary.
With a small amount of system in any part of the business, there is none at all in the matter of collections.

As the florists' business grows it will become increasingly important for each florist to organize the method by which he secures the money due him. With a business of even moderate size a florist's purchases aggregate so large a sum that the men from whom he buys cannot take the risk involved in long credits; bills must be paid monthly or one cannot buy for long in the same place and the best sources of supply soon are closed. To maintain his own prompt payments the florist must take steps to make collections from those to whom he sells.
There are not many florists who do not pay if they have the money; the trouble is they are poor collectors. Nowhere in business is it better to apply the motto,
"If at first you don't succeed, try, try

A BLESSING IN DISGUISE?

It is believed by many in the trade that the national propaganda for increased production of vegetables will result in a curtailment of bedding plant sales; but may not this intensified activity in gardening, this vast multiplication of gardens, carry with it such a demand for florists' plants that the shoe will be on the other foot? In some sections there may be a falling off in bedding plant sales, but as a whole the "back-to-the-land" spree is likely to make for a wholesale education of the public in garden-making and thereby produce a larger use of plants. Perhaps the retailer with a large quantity of bedding plants may have to turn part-time wholesaler, for the sake of distribution.

Subjoined is an interesting editorial clipped from a small-town newspaper, which may be found suitable as copy for the back of a retail plant circular, letter

WE NEED FLOWERS

In all this enthusiasm about raising potatoes and turnips and cabbage—and may it increase—we should not entirely overlook the need of flowers. There's abundance of room for the potato crop and the cabbage without giving up the flowery window box to the rambling cucumber vine and the geranium bed to the wandering squash. There is nothing else so restful for tired nerves as a little stroll among the beauty and fragrance of flowers. They give a source of pleasure and refinement that nothing else can supply. They serve a purpose quite as useful and necessary as those things that are commonly given a higher utilitarian value. What would spring and summer be if there were no flowers to hide the uglier places and to sweeten the air with fragrance?

Yes, we need flowers. And there will be time and opportunity to grow them without slighting the potato and the cabbage. If we do our duty, the rain and sunshine will cause old mother earth to produce food and fragrance enough for all.
Let us have potatoes, cabbage and flowers.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Almost as soon as Mothers' day became an established annual event there was call for a Fathers' day. To many people it seemed that a Fathers' day, following on the heels of Mothers' day, would be more or less of a joke and that it would react, destroying the sentiment that is the appeal of Mothers' day. It has been the opinion of The Review that any attempt on our part to develop a Fathers' day would be at the expense of Mothers' day, especially as there seemed no indication of an inclination to stop with the parents; special days for uncles and aunts, everybody but mother-in-law, seemed a natural consequence.

But Fathers' day does not down.
There is a Fathers' Day Association, of which Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., who says she is the Anna Jarvis of Fathers' day, is president.
This association designates June 17 as the special day in father's honor and the method of observance is to wear a rose, white for father gone before, etc.!

The Fathers' Day Association states that it has branches all over the country and has invited the interests which this season have been booming Mothers' day to do as much for Fathers' day.

It may be the trade is overlooking an opportunity by not lining up back of father and giving his day a push. The Review has thought otherwise, but opinions from the trade will be welcome.

The Market.

Business, both shipping and local, was good last week, with a tendency toward higher prices manifest. The dark, cold weather has made for a shortening of crops, and by May 3 a distinct shortage of stock began to make itself felt and it became necessary for wholesalers for the most part to cut down on orders, giving to each customer a fair proportion of stock, it being practically impossible to buy flowers from other houses.

Advance orders for Mothers' day came in heavily all week, and indications are that it will be a banner day this year. One good feature of the business lies in the fact that the demand is for all kinds of flowers this year, instead of being confined to carnations alone, as it has been for the most part in previous years. The present outlook is that stock of all kinds will be scarce.

American Beauties were a scarce item last week, and prices held firmly to quotation figures. Other varieties of roses were in short supply, with a good demand moving stock easily. If any preference at all was noticed, it was for white stock, especially on the shorter grades. Russell is in larger supply than any other rose with some wholesalers, and the quality is excellent. Needless to say, it sells well.

The shortage of carnations last week was acute, and stiff prices prevailed. There is no question but what this item will be short for Mothers' day.

Easter lilies and callas shortened up considerably last week, with a more active demand in evidence. Sweet peas also were short and cleaned up well at good prices. The first spring blooming stock made its appearance last week.

Calendulas, though not so active as other items, moved fairly well, better than they have in some time. Spanish iris was scarce, with a good demand easily cleaning up all stock that arrived on the market. Bulbous stock sold considerably better last week, especially jonquils and daffodils, tulips following at a little slower pace. The supply arriving on the market is not large, the season being almost over. Darwins now are the principal item and hold their popularity. Daisies were in fair supply, but cleared easily. Pansies, although in fairly ample supply, moved well at good prices. Snapdragons also enjoyed a fair degree of popularity and sold easily. Southern grown peonies are beginning to arrive in fair quantities and are finding a warm reception from an eager market.

There is a good call for greens, fancy flat ferns of good quality being one of the scarce items.

Various Notes.

August Poehlmann, who was seriously ill last week, is reported to be on the way to recovery. He is at the Lake View hospital.

store on North State street, near Chicago avenue, his first venture under his own name, the culmination of many years of experience in the retail field. Mr. Dunn intimates that his siege of prosperity and patronage may see the passing of several moons, but that as a besieger he has a full equipment, including patience, aggressiveness and standing.

The season of 1917-18 will be the last at Hinsdale for Bassett & Washburn. At the close of next season all the glass remaining there will be removed to the new place at Gregg's Station.

W. J. Smyth comments that his store turned out eleven high-priced casket covers during April, but he adds regretfully that May is not promising to equal the record.

Early in June Walter Adams hopes to be located at the southeast corner of North State and Division streets. This is the building that was remodeled some years ago for the north side branch store venture of the Fleischman Floral Co., under the management of John Ghormley. Since Fleischman gave it up it has been used by a milliner, the conservatory in the rear having been cleared of benches and piping and made into a workroom. The entire place required a thorough renovation and redecoration, which is now in progress. It is one of the best corners on the north side, and Mr. Adams, who has the capable assistance of Mrs. Adams as saleslady, expects to double his business there. It will be quite a florists' neighborhood: The Jegen store is in the same block, with E. Wienhoeber just around the corner on the next street south.

Many growers noted that last season they obtained their best prices for pom-pom mums either early or late, low prices prevailing while the season was at its height. R. Scheffler, at Wheaton, had a new yellow variety that he did not begin to cut until December 10. It made him the best prices of the season, and this year he intends to plant a whole house of it. He knows it as Golden Wedding.

The members of the firm of French & Salm were down from Union Grove, Wis., May 7. The plan to add to the range there has been abandoned, at least for the present, but it is reported other plans for branching out are under consideration.

April 30 was the biggest day of the season with the E. Wienhoeber Co. In addition to the regular business, there was the family order for the Isham funeral, one of the largest the north side old residential section has seen.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., has returned from a business trip of ten days, through Michigan, Ohio and Indiana. As indicating the popularity of Darwin tulips, he booked one order for 150,000 Darwins for delivery this fall.

The mail of May 7 was much the largest since April 2, reports the E. C. Amling Co., and insured a satisfactory volume of shipping for Mothers' day.

The demolition of the old building at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe street has caused Harry C. Rowe to form an association with the Bohannon Floral Co. It was foreknowledge of the wrecking of this building that caused L. R. Bohannon to move some months ago to 75 East Monroe street, where he now has one of the handsomest stores in the city. Mr. Rowe's name also appears on the window.

Darwin tulip Pride of Haarlem is giving Pyfer & Olsem splendid results this month. The stems are nearly three feet long.

The death of Rosa Pieser, 84 years of age, occurred May 4. Mrs. Pieser was the mother of the Pieser brothers, Emanuel E. and Gabriel H., for many years officers of the Kennicott Bros. Co.

day, but it is feared that stock will be on the short side because of the dark weather during the last few weeks. The supply of sweet peas is diminishing, only a few thousands now being received daily. They clean up daily with top prices at 50 cents per hundred.

Carnations are in great demand this week for Mothers' day sales. The top price is $6 per hundred. Many orders for carnations were placed with the wholesalers early in the week. The supply of roses in the leading varieties, such as Russell, Ophelia, Beauty and Ward, has not been too large. Quite a few Killarneys are seen daily.

Easter lilies are plentiful at $6 per hundred. Extra fancy stock in snapdragons is in demand and sells well. Gladioli have made their appearance and clean up daily. Orchids sold well all the week. Valley is scarce. All greens are good sellers.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association meeting May 2 was well attended. Arrangements were completed for the entertainment of the St. Louis Florists' Club May 10.

Jules Bourdet, vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, intends to get busy with S. A. F. matters as soon as the spring season is over. Mr. Bourdet expects that a large delegation of St. Louis florists will attend the annual convention of the society, to be held in New York in August.

Frank A. Weber, of the H. J. Weber & Sons Nursery Co., says his company has had a most successful season. Mr. Weber is arousing enthusiasm among the nurserymen over the American Association of Nurserymen convention to be held in Philadelphia next month.

The Retail Florists' Association meeting at the Mission Inn Garden, May 21, will be important, and President Fred H. Weber urges all members to attend.

David Geddis, of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., spent May 6 at St. Joseph, Mo., and May 7 in Chicago. He is organizing a military company of florists to be known as the Hoosier Beauties. Frank Gorly also is interested in the organization. They expect the company will be ready to go to the front in the fall.

Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., visited St. Louis during the week. He says spring business has been satisfactory.

In my Various Notes in the last issue of The Review, I was in error when I reported the marriage of Charles Young. The newlywed was Walter Young. Charles has been married several years.

Unseasonable weather the last week has prevented growers from beginning the work of planting out their stock.

Vandervoort's department store had a special sale of American Beauty rose plants last week and disposed of 7,000.

H. Lloyd, of the Shackelford Nursery Co., still is confined to his home and his condition is reported as serious.

The retail florists expect a big business for Mothers' day, as it has been given more publicity this year than ever before. Already many orders have been booked.

The Shackelford Nursery Co. is making a large cut of Darwin tulips. Nearly 100,000 in various colors were planted last fall.

The Pieper Floral Co., a new concern, has purchased a lot, 40x40, on the east side of Grand avenue, near St. Louis avenue, and will erect a retail store and greenhouse, all of which will represent an investment of $10,000.

The Blossom Shop, the Rosery and the Delmar Union Floral Co., all new concerns, are doing well. Ivan Erickson, of the Blossom Shop, says his business has exceeded expectations.

The supply of cut flowers has shortened up considerably during the last week on account of the sunless weather. The sun shone for only a part of one day. The temperatures were exceptionally low for this time of the year and the florists' coal bills still are mounting. The month of April was colder than usual and prices of stock have been high, owing to the moderate supply. Business during the month was not so good as in April of previous years.

Business last week was confined mostly to weddings and a small amount of funeral work. Counter trade was light. Prices remain firm on account of the moderate supply. The supply and prices of roses are good. Russell, Shawyer and Ophelia are the best varieties at present. Aaron Ward occupies a good place. Callas are in good supply, but the demand is only fair at $8 per hundred. Easter lilies are in good crop. They bring from $8 to $12.50 per hundred. Spanish irises are especially fine and retail at from 75 cents to $1 per dozen. Antirrhinums are large and good and sell for $1.50 and $2 per dozen, retail. Large gladioli appeared on the local market last week and are selling for $1.50 and $2 per dozen. There are some fine, local-grown Mossiae orchids in the market.

Carnations are moderately plentiful and are retailing for 75 cents and $1 per dozen. There is a good supply of the smaller varieties of cut flowers, including sweet peas, sweet alyssum, etc. Fruit blossoms are being used by the retail stores for decorating purposes.

In the plant line, marguerites are most conspicuous. Hydrangeas, Crimson Ramblers, primulas, begonias and calceolarias also sell well. The double white daisy, Mrs. Sander, is a novelty in the local market.

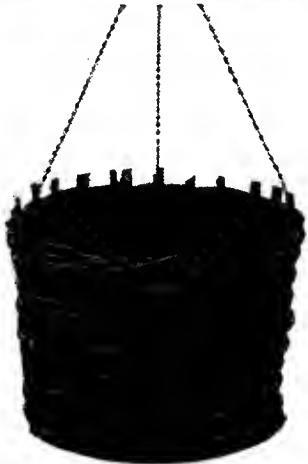

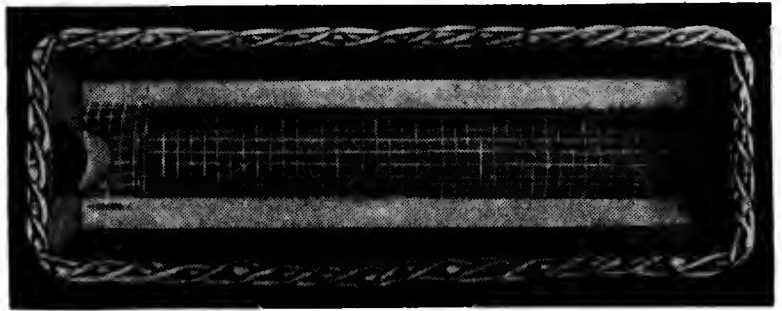

Last week was "Clean-up week" and the sale of flower seeds was heavy. Grass and vegetable seeds also were in demand. In the wholesale establishments, the demand for Mothers' day already is heavy, one wholesaler reporting that he has more business than he can take care of.

The maid of honor carried a shepherd's crook and wore on her left arm a shower bouquet of lavender sweet peas and heliotrope. The bridesmaid carried a colonial bouquet of Ophelia roses and forget-me-nots, and the flower girls carried baskets of roses and sweet peas. #### The War and Business.

An article in one of the dailies in which the writer lamented the absence this year of the flower market usually held each springtime at the base of the Washington monument, for which dispensation the war, as proverbially, was given the blame, suggested the idea that now would be a fitting time to devote our column to a discourse, as it were, of the probable effects of the war on the florists' business of Baltimore. I found that this so-called flower market had been held under the auspices of the Home Gardening Association, with a view to stimulating interest in the planting of flowers in back yards and in the use of window boxes; but now that vegetable gardening had superseded flower gardening, the association considered it advisable this year to dispense with the feature.

It would seem that under such circumstances, with amateurs giving their attention to the production of vegetables instead of flowers, the demand for florists' flowers would be increased. At any rate, at each establishment visited I found things running as smoothly as if the President and the Kaiser were playing a sociable game of golf instead of a game of war. The opinions of the tradesmen on this subject were substantially the same, and if an average opinion were struck, I should say that it would be optimistic.

I was particularly desirous of securing the opinion of Mrs. Fannie P. Hill, of the Feast & Sons establishment, who by reason of long experience with the public's pulse would be well qualified to speak on such a subject. I found Mrs. Hill occupied with a handsome wreath of red roses and sweet peas, and her reply to my question was: "Well, we see no effects of the war on our business. There may be some economy practiced, in such things as corsage bouquets and expressions of sympathy to the bereaved and of tribute to the dead are most adequately conveyed by flowers, and at such times flowers are not a luxury, but an absolute necessity. Flowers are essential at nuptials, large balls, in the sick rooms, etc."

Florists Must Be Bookkeepers.

Yes, the florists' business will prosper, despite the war, but it will be a changed business. With prices of all supplies advanced at least fifty per cent, and with production costs going higher and higher, good management is going to count for more, for success or failure. Said Mrs. Hill: "My advice to the man whose system of bookkeeping has not his overhead expenses figured down to the penny, is to make a change in his methods. My opinion is that every florist should find out exactly what it costs him to do business, what his stock costs him, and then adjust his selling prices accordingly."

I believe that there is going to be just as much business as there ever was, but that everything is going to be done on a closer margin than some florists are accustomed to. The florist who eliminates the weak spots and the leaks is bound to come through in fine form.

Tate.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The long continued spell of cool, cloudy weather has had its effect. Flowers have shortened surprisingly, notably carnations. Instead of an accumulation of carnations for Mothers' day, a normal condition, there is practically nothing ahead. The cut has been reduced to less than one-half of that of a fortnight ago. The effect has been to advance the price of carnations on a dull market. Roses have also shortened in supply and firmed in price. There are not nearly so many good roses now, a usual result of overproduction and consequent low prices.

Beauties, Russell and Double White Killarney are perhaps the best varieties at present. The best flowers bring excellent prices.

It is always rather risky to talk about a short supply of flowers in the middle of May, because a single hot, sunny day might completely alter conditions. Outdoor lilac is ready to come in at a moment's notice. Darwin tulips will follow. Daffodils are extremely plentiful—the flowers cheaper than the bulbs. The changes in the other flowers are unimportant. Larkspur is prized; snapdragon is getting poor. Sweet peas are in oversupply. Callas are nearing the close of the season. Easter lilies have been overplentiful, but are now more nearly equal to the demand. Spanish iris continues an important flower. Taken all in all, the market is in remarkably good condition for the second week in May.

General Joffre.

Tuesday, May 8, was an important day in Philadelphia. The French envoys spent the day here. They were entertained the evening before at the residence of E. T. Stotesbury, where an elaborate decoration was arranged by J. F. Leary, who manages the Ritz.

Carlton Shop for J. J. Habermehl's Sons.

There was a handsome decoration in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford for the dinner on the evening following the patriotic demonstration in Independence Square. While plants and flowers were freely used, the silken colors of France and the United States were most prominent. There was an immense American flag covering the entire background of the stage. It was bordered by handsome palms and ferns. The boxes were festooned with red, white and blue, while flags fluttered in a breeze electrically fanned from the background. Another background of plants, extremely handsome ones, was arranged for the large receiving party. Red, white and blue flowers graced the center table. The red American Beauties, the white lilies of France and the lovely blue Delphinium Belladonna combined beautifully. The other tables were handsomely decorated with a choice assortment of flowers. The decoration was arranged by J. J. Habermehl's Sons.

Getting It Done.

The difficulty in the way of getting things done today is so great that the two following stories are told to show how the big guns meet emergencies. They suggest the idea that there ought always to be a way out.

J. D. Eisele, vice-president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., says that for a couple of years all Dreer's small ferns have been transferred from the seed boxes to flats by girls. The men fill the flats with soil and carry them to and from the work benches. The girls transfer the tiny seedling ferns to the flats. This work keeps a force of a dozen girls busy the greater part of a year.

Robert A. Craig says that the Robert Craig Co. required an extra force to fill the orders at Easter. A high school boy who applied for work suggested that some of the boys would be glad to help and proposed putting a notice to that effect in the school paper. The result was that nearly 500 applied to Mr. Craig for work, completely swamping him. A dozen were chosen. They proved most satisfactory, putting an amount of snap into their work that was encouraging.

The May Meeting.

Unusual efforts had been made to induce the retailers to attend the May meeting of the Florists' Club to hear the vice-president of the Fourth Street National Bank explain how accounts should be kept and credits regulated. A glance over the well filled room showed that these efforts had failed. There were a few retailers there, but they were mostly men who are on the alert and come anyhow. The rank and file were absent. They were tired, or sleepy, or it was not worth their while bothering about the most important address, from a business standpoint, that the club has fathered.

There was one notable exception—John P. Habermehl was there. An object lesson, was it not? The man who has four stores and an immense decorating business to look after could not afford to miss this talk. He knew.

W. F. Therkildson, who introduced the speaker, said that the failures among florists were more numerous than the failures in any other line of business. He attributed this to the lack of system among florists. The speaker dwelt at length on the importance of knowing just what things cost; that is, adding the overhead charges of rent, telephone, ice, bookkeeping, delivery, etc., in proper proportion to the cost of the material sold. This exact knowledge prevented selling stock below cost, assured a fair profit on sales and led to careful, systematic collection of accounts.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The last week did not come up to the promise of life and improvement indicated by the good Saturday of the preceding week. Unseasonably cold weather, which was accompanied by rain, and lighter arrivals of roses and carnations added to the depression. In New York the temperature fell to near the freezing point.

Carnations grew firmer as the week closed and Saturday, May 5, the best were selling at $4 per hundred, with indications of a considerable advance in the price of the white varieties for Mothers' day. Most of the carnations reaching the local market are of excellent quality. The hope is that growers will refrain from pickling for Mothers' day. Good American Beauty roses again went to 35 cents, as the supply of first-class flowers of this variety was exceedingly limited. The supply of Hadleys, Brunners, Prima Donnas, Russells, Stanleys and Mocks was not in excess of the demand from the first-class houses. Orchids were abundant last week and prices did not vary. The average for good cattleyas was $5 per dozen, while a few select blooms reached 50 and 60 cents Saturday. The poorer grades fell to 25 cents and under. Valley maintains its strength and the small supply accounts for it. Select flowers were held at $8 per hundred.

The arrivals of longiflorum lilies are in excess of requirements and $4 per hundred was the general quotation. A few of the large and long-stemmed flowers sold for $5 and $6 per hundred. The price of gardenias grows with their scarcity.

The chilly weather seems to have extended far enough south to delay lilac shipments. While they were due to leave in April, daffodils still are with us. The quality of the flowers is excellent. Violets are through, but sweet peas are still in excess of the demand. The same may be said of callas, snapdragons, daisies and pansies. Tulips, also, have been wasted because of poor quality, the Darwins only being called for. The fern supply is large. One of the supply houses ships more than two millions monthly.

tions are that the Mothers' day business in Boston will far exceed that of any previous year. Retailers are pushing it more than ever before.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, has a grand crop of Carnation Matchless for Mothers' day. Ward, Pink Delight, Alice and the old Queen are also fine.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is starting to cut fine blooms of Cattleya gigas, in addition to those of C. Mossiae. He also has splendid stock of Odontoglossum crispum and O. Pescatorei, Renanthera Imsehootiana and Oncidium flexuosum.

The Halifax Garden Co., in addition to the regular and large shipments of roses and carnations, is cutting good hybrid amaryllis, gardenias and ixias. Of the latter they are the largest local growers this season.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is a successful grower of Marguerite Mrs. Sander and now is making large shipments of this fine white variety. He also has yellow marguerites, pink snapdragons and carnations.

In spite of the war, inclement weather and other drawbacks, the preparations for the grand June exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, which will be held on the grounds of the Wentworth Institute, Huntington avenue, are being pushed vigorously and it is planned to open the show June 1. All profits will go to the American Red Cross Society. There will be special marquees for azaleas, rhododendrons, orchids, roses and other flowers. In addition, rock gardens, aquatic gardens, groups of conifers and herbaceous perennials will be featured. The exhibition will remain open at least ten days.

From the Albert Roper Estate, at Tewksbury, some grand shipments of the new Albert Roper carnation are coming in. Grace and Commonwealth are also splendid.

Those wanting to see Carnation Matchless at its best should take a trip to North Beverly and see a batch of about 10,000 plants of this variety. The benches are a veritable snowy sheet of bloom. Mr. Pembroke finds Matchless a profitable variety for Mothers' day and Memorial day. All his other carnations look fine. Lady Northcliffe, Pink Sensation, Alice and Pink Delight are fine.

Do not forget the Gardeners' and Florists' Club meeting at Horticultural hall May 15. The stereopticon lecture on "What's New in the Garden," by E. I. Farrington, will prove most interesting, and there is an abundance of other business.

Some splendid Gladiolus Peach Blossom blooms are coming in from the Knapp Estate, at Newtonville. Mann Bros. have nice shipments of this variety.

C. A. Johnson, of South Sudbury, a florist there for many years, died May 4. He leaves a son to carry on the business. His flowers have for some years been shipped to the Boston Coöperative Market, and J. M. Cohen has handled them.

WINGFOOT

Two Season Guarantee on This Water Hose

Over cement walks, down cinder paths, around bench legs, jerking and tugging you drag the water hose.

More thought of the flowers, little thought of the hose that must carry the nourishment to them.

And that little thought, if you please, is usually one of discouragement. Discouragement in hose failure to meet greenhouse service requirements.

No man can tell how long hose will last by simply looking at it. You must either test the hose yourself or accept the word of the dealer.

You can be doubly sure of Goodyear Wingfoot Hose.

Sure in the first place, because Wingfoot Hose is guaranteed against bursting, for two whole seasons. Sure secondly, because Wingfoot is the best lawn hose made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Such a name coupled to such a guarantee makes your future hose purchase a simple matter. And it makes your future hose satisfaction permanent.

Let your own supply dealer send you a reel of Goodyear Wingfoot Hose. He is as enthusiastic as we in this better lasting hose. That is the reason he is willing to make less profit on Wingfoot than he could make on several other brands which cost him less to buy.

spoke at the same hall May 6 on "Back Yard Gardening."

May, for at least the first week, has rather belied its reputation for geniality. We have had dark, damp and cold weather, and a little north of us snowfalls have been quite heavy. The season is fully a fortnight late. Even forsythias are barely in bloom and, except for Dirca palustris, Benzoin æstivale, amelanchiers, Erica carnea and one or two daphnes and small rhododendrons, there are no shrubs in flower. Magnolias are not yet fully open, and no bedding tulips are open except in warm locations.

Anderson Bros., of Woburn, are sending in some fine Peach Blossom gladioli, calendulas, callas, sweet peas and candy-tuft.

Welch's, at 280 Devonshire street, report a decided shortening up of flower receipts and active business. They have many advance orders booked for Mothers' day and Memorial day.

Local nurseries report heavy cancellations of planting contracts and a decided slump in business, presumably attributable to the war. W. N. C.

TO ERADICATE LAWN WEEDS.

I have just taken charge of a private place on which the lawns are extremely weedy, having as much chickweed, shepherd's purse, etc., as Bermuda and evergreen grass. Will you please advise me how to proceed to get the lawns in good order? I could plow the land and resow the grass, but this would not rid me of the weed seeds. The lawns slope, so that the drainage should be all right.

W. A. H.—Ga.

It would not improve matters to plow and at once reseed your lawns. Two courses could be adopted to clean the land. Plow it and leave it fallow for a season, constantly stirring the soil until time for reseeding in the fall. Another and a better plan would be to plow the lawns now and sow them with a heavy cover crop, such as cow peas or soy beans. These crops would smother the weeds. They could be plowed in and thus leave a lot of humus in the soil. Harrow the soil well after plowing, keep it stirred at intervals and seed down your lawn in September. You would then be fairly certain to have a clean lawn.

SCHLING'S POLICY IN PRACTICE.

A busy man is always late with courtesies, and so I am late with an answer to an open letter printed in a recent issue of The Review.

A gentleman whom I do not know and whom I did not know about as being connected with the flower business wrote me. I consider his letter a "punch"—not a "punch" to put me to sleep, but a "punch" to wake me up, to make me try to do better than I have previously. And for this "punching" of me into condition I want to thank him openly. It is rather hard for me to thank Mr. Hastings for the good opinion he has of my little effort to make up for a seeming neglect, but it sometimes happens, as with every business man, that I once in a while put things off from time to time, and when I do get a chance to attend to them I always try to give those concerned a clear view of the facts which prevented me from doing what I should have done.

We all have faults, and I believe that our largest one in life is that we think of our incomes in a wrong way. Even our employees, and we, who have our own business, when we were employed by others, in our expressions we were exactly as in our thoughts. We spoke of our earnings as "We make so and so much." This is not only a wrong expression, but also an entirely wrong thought. We should consider our work, think and express ourselves in this manner: "Is our work in keeping with our earnings?" Then, again, we should not think, "Is our work much better than our earnings warrant?" but just the contrary, "Is our work good enough in comparison with what we earn?" In this way we will begin to train our thoughts and consider our work first—"Is it worth our earnings?" Without wanting to, we will do better, and the earnings will be improved without further efforts on our part. It is in each and every case the same. The worker's salary, if he works for a fair employer, is automatically increased. There is no need of fighting for it.

The employer increases his clientele by his good work and good services, and so it is in the matter of Mr. Hastings' request regarding the valentine novelties.

Through my seeming neglect or inattention—I do not remember exactly how it happened—his letter was not answered. One of my men wrote a letter to him, but on seeing it, the first thing I did was to tear it in half. My thoughts were: "Is that the best we can do?" I then wrote a letter myself, to make good this disappointment. New thoughts came: "The man wrote you because he wanted to entrust you with something—which possibly you only could give him. He must feel badly over it; someone else, a third party, has been deprived of a pleasure. The only thing fair would be to replace that pleasure."

I tried to do this, to replace this pleasure, and did not expect any thanks. Regardless of the fact that I have done such things several times before, I never did get more than a simple acknowledgment and never received any reward for such work. However, I never became discouraged. If I do something nice for any of my people, usually they just take it as a matter of fact, and most of them are ready to accept more than they give.

The letter of Mr. Hastings proves that there are some fair-minded men among us, who repay better for good. Of the many letters written to me or about me, I rarely have had so much pleasure as when, on a busy day, one of my friends read Mr. Hastings' letter to me over the telephone. While I had The Florists' Review on my desk, I was too busy to read it. It is possible that I would not have had the pleasure for two or three days later, when sitting all by myself in the train on my way home. Plain, simple-minded gardeners, some of them associated with me for many years, business men of highest standing, connected directly or indirectly with the florists' business, old employees of other houses, who have known me since I started in business, called days and weeks afterward and remarked, "There is a man just as good as you, who never forgets a good turn—this man Hastings."

tain course, is no reason why he should follow directly in his father's footsteps. Methods of selling flowers are constantly changing, just as methods of growing them are changing. The progressive florist who ten years ago thought his methods perfect, now has long since discarded them. So if one would succeed in this great business, one must be progressive, make progress and be up-to-date in all things.

Everybody knows it is the florist with energy and ambition to push who receives the business. The florist can hardly expect to have other people increase his business if he himself does not show enough interest to reach for bigger profits. The fellow who stands at the door of his store waiting to open it for a customer, or who listens for the ring of the telephone, certainly cannot be classed with the florist who spends his spare time thinking up an effective advertisement or ransacking the market for something extraordinary to place in his window.

This is an age when the buying public is more independent than ever before. The public must be constantly kept after and reminded, otherwise it will soon forget the florist. This is an age when it does not pay to wait for business. It is up to the florist to go out and get it.

Advertising the Big Aid.

Advertising is one of the most effective and most employed methods of increasing a business. There still are a few business men who are skeptical about advertising, yet by looking over the volume of business they do and over that done by competitors who advertise, it is not hard to see which of the two classes is working along the right line. If it pays the large corporations to spend fortunes every year on advertising it certainly will pay the florist, no matter how small his place.

Newspaper advertising perhaps is the method usually employed. Nearly anyone can write out a list of the stock he wants to sell and the prices thereof. While this is better than no advertising at all, it is far from the most effective. If good advertisements were as easy to write as some think they are, the large department stores certainly would not pay their advertising managers high salaries.

If Jones, the florist, does not keep his name and his business before the public, half of the people will not know whether Jones is a florist, undertaker or coal dealer. Large ads are not necessary all the time, but the florist should let the people know he is in the business and has flowers to sell.

Advertising Good and Bad.

Where there are several florists in one city, and all have good service and good stock to offer at the right prices, then the florist who employs advertising most effectively is the one who makes progress. For instance, if Jones carries an ad in the papers a good part of the time, letting the people know that he sells flowers, soon his name will begin to be associated with flowers. Then when people want flowers, they will immediately think of Jones. He will receive the business, while his competitors, who sell the same quality and service, in the end will lose out.

The advertising should be seasonable and the advertisement changed often, as people tire of seeing the same ad all the time. Just before Christmas I noticed a florist's advertisement in one of the leading papers of his city. This paper has a sort of trade directory, in which each line of business in the city is represented. Under "C" I noticed an advertisement which reads something like this: "Cut flowers, highest quality, artistically arranged for weddings, funerals and social functions; also a full line of choice bedding plants at reasonable prices," and so on, giving the name, address and telephone number. Is it any wonder that this community is known to florists for hundreds of miles around as a dead flower town? A good, progressive florist with push and business insight could change all that and make the other florists sit up and take notice.

This Town a Sleepy Hollow.

An aggressive florist hardly cares to locate in that town on account of the low price of flowers, considering the size of the town, which is about 25,000. A couple of the florists sell carnations at 75 cents per dozen, but any quantity of them can be bought for 50 cents per dozen, and then seventeen or eighteen blooms are given as a dozen. That makes the actual price of the carnations about 35 cents per dozen, and they are fine carnations. It seems to be another case of unclean competition.

No doubt the florist who advertised bedding plants at Christmas would have been greatly surprised if someone had called him up and told him to set out some flower beds and fill some porch boxes. This florist probably would have to use dynamite to break loose the frozen soil. Ordering bedding plants at that unseasonable time of the year surely could be no worse than advertising them. This florist made no mention of Christmas plants or flowers, and doubtless the public thought he had none. Christmas is no time to advertise bedding plants, and if anyone does so he is wasting space, and newspaper space is valuable. The idea is to push the right stock at the right time, but always keep pushing something. Then one makes progress and pads the profits.

The Window's Punch.

The window display also is a great aid to the progressive florist in pushing his business. The successful window should appeal strongly enough to make people "come buy instead of go by." As in everything else, there are good displays and poor ones; but even the poor ones do some good. A vase or two of cut flowers and a few plants will let the passers-by know that there is a flower store. The progressive florist, however, does more than this; he makes his window one of his sales force. Many a florist considers a display too costly, but if he would think of his window as a salesman, and spend as much on it as he would on his best salesman, he no doubt would be well satisfied with the results.

Good advertising and good window displays are absolutely essential to progressiveness, but the florist should remember that it is necessary to have the right kind of stock behind the advertising. If a customer gets "stung" once, even if it were an unavoidable error, it is doubtful if that customer will ever come back. If, however, the stock is right, and Mrs. Brown finds that your roses last a whole week, she will tell her friends about the wonderful roses she got from you. That is the reward of selling good stock, and you get a class of advertising free that is better and more effective than any other. Any florist can say he has good stock, but when people praise it, then the talk is worth something. This is the kind of talk that sends buyers to the store to buy.

Keeping the Customers.

After the florist has served the buyer the first time and the stock and service have been right, then in all probability the buyer will buy from the same florist the next time. After the florist has served the new customer two or three times satisfactorily, buying from him becomes the customer's habit. If he loses this customer, then it is his fault. He either has sent poor stock, given poor service or sent the customer to a competitor because he could not supply the stock wanted. After this customer has purchased from the competitor a few times, then buying from the competitor will become a habit. It would take a strong appeal to bring that buyer back.

If a florist wants steady customers, his aim should be to keep them satisfied. The florist should not be too independent. He should remember that he is serving the public. He should not think that people have to buy from him or have to take the stock he offers. One finds that the florist who is too independent usually does not make much progress. The florist who gives a little more for the money, who goes a step out of his way to accommodate a customer, will reap a golden harvest for his pains.

Good Variety of Stock Important.

Time was when people were satisfied with anything the florist offered them, but times have long since changed. The florist who says, "I have good carnations and roses today, so I won't buy any of the seasonable stock; let the people take what I have," usually does not do a rushing business, even if his stock is fine. This is especially true about this time of the year, when flower buyers begin to tire of the stock that has been offered so long. They want something different, so it is up to the florist to furnish it. He must keep a supply of the newer things the market affords, constantly, if he would pad his profits. If a customer wants jonquils for a table decoration, it is pretty hard to sell her carnations. It can be done, sometimes, but the customer is disappointed on being unable to procure the desired flowers. Perhaps that customer will tell someone that Jones has nothing but carnations at his place.

It is advisable, then, for the florist to carry a little of everything the market affords. He must please all customers. It also sounds bigger if he can name a dozen or so kinds of flowers rather than just two or three kinds. Then people say, "Why, you can get anything you

A Little About Service.

The florist who would pad his profits must also give good service. He must have help enough to get all orders out on time. He must have an efficient delivery system. Many times when flowers are delivered late, they practically are of no use to the customer, and the customer probably would rather have received poorer stock on time than the best stock too late. The florist who has the facilities to take care of his deliveries properly is bound to become busy, because people have begun to depend on him to get the flowers out on time. It is far better for a florist to turn down an order that he knows he cannot deliver on time, than to lose the customer's confidence. The florist should carry out every promise to the letter, unless it is absolutely impossible to do so.

The rule should be, make few promises and keep those made. If a florist promises everybody and does not keep his promises, his word soon will not be worth a farthing.

If the florist would pad his profits, these are some of the things he should remember:

1. Push his business on every occasion.
2. Back up the push with the right stock, in variety.
3. Give good service and get everything out on time.

Treat your customers right and they will come back for more; you will not have to worry about competition.

George H. Raasch.

Seed Trade News*AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

THIS is proving the record year for the houses that put out the box seeds.

WITH the market on onion sets cleaned up, onion seed is now in strong demand.

THE spring weather has been the worst the English, French and Dutch seed growers ever have experienced, cold and wet.

ONE of the results of the war is a surplus of tuberose bulbs. The usually large exports were not made from the 1916 crop.

CABLE advices from Rotterdam inform a New York house that shipments of gladiolus bulbs recently have gone forward via Scandinavian ports.

REPORTS from rural districts indicate that country merchants are rapidly cleaning up their stock. The nation-wide publicity that is being given to planting garden seeds is having its effect.

THE onion set acreage in the Chicago district is going out rapidly. In many cases it is said to have been agreed that payment for the crop shall be based on market prices at time of harvest, with a guaranteed minimum.

THE annual meeting of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association will be held at Des Moines, June 12 and 13. The first day will be devoted to association business, followed by an entertainment at night, and the second day will be spent at Ames College.

THE efforts necessary to get the acreage required for certain seed crops have led to the belief that the farmer is demonstrating his patriotism with the crops which are likely to yield him the biggest profits, and potatoes, corn, wheat, navy beans, etc., are more to his liking than peas.

THE other day H. W. Buckbee escorted his friend, the editor of the Rockford Republic, through his seed warehouse and shipping rooms, his greenhouses and offices, speeding the parting guest with the injunction, "Now, don't write us up." But the editor did, to the tune of a couple of columns, "just to vindicate the freedom of the press."

THE Michigan Bean Jobbers' Association, in special session at Saginaw to discuss war-time food preparedness as it will affect the 1917 bean crop of Michigan, adopted a resolution pledging the members not to send any beans suitable for seed purposes out of the state until June 1, or until the growers have had time to plant their crops. The association sent a telegram to President Wilson that "Michigan will endeavor to produce 10,000,000 bushels of beans to feed the boys in the trenches."

THE New York office of Westerbeek & Klyn has notified the firm's customers in America, who are many, that no spring deliveries will be made, due to the inability to get stock over from Holland. It is stated, however, that it is expected to make fall deliveries as usual.

THE Baltimore seedsman, Charles J. Bolgiano, of J. Bolgiano & Son, has been appointed to serve on the farm labor committee of the Maryland Preparedness and Survey Commission, the object of which is to better conditions for Maryland farmers and to finance crops wherever necessary.

A WELL-EQUIPPED STORE.

At Canton, O., there is the Holmes-Letherman Seed Co., the parties at interest being George M. Letherman and H. L. Holmes, Jr., the latter the son of Harry L. Holmes, of Harrisburg, Pa. A general retail seed business is done in a store that is claimed to be second to none in the state for efficiency. The accompanying illustration, prepared from a photograph, gives an idea of the facilities and a suggestion of the confidence of the management may be found on the letter-head, which carries no disclaimer.

PROPOSED WAR-TIME MEASURE.

In the tentative plan of the Department of Agriculture for increasing the country's food production, which was submitted at the request of the Senate, there are several matters touching the interests of the seed trade. The principal function of the department under the proposed plan would be not only to promote extensive "cultivation of town lots and unused lands adjacent to towns," but also to increase the acreage, where time still permits, of corn, oats, barley, rice, spring wheat, peas, beans, cowpeas and soy beans. A governmental campaign of such scope and character obviously would act as a great impetus to the sale of seeds, both vegetable and field. In fact, it seems

One of the recommendations offered, however, is of special interest. It provides for the "safeguarding of seed stocks for 1918 in case of untoward climatic or other conditions affecting important crops. the very things that the public needs the most. One seedsman told me that he could sell anything that he could find to buy this season. A diligent search one day last week failed to locate even one pound of soy beans, or of several of the most popular standard beans, while several of the cow peas are nowhere to be found. With every farmer anxious to increase his planting of these most important food crops, which can be better grown here than in most other places in the United States, the situation is serious. F. B.

ITALIAN SEEDS ARE SUNK.

At a recent London meeting of the Horticultural Trades' Association of Great Britain W. Cuthbertson presented a letter from C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Cal., on the subject of difficulty of shipping seeds from America.
The letter stated that eighty-five per cent of all shipping space was reserved by the British government for national needs, so that the margin available for seeds was small. It was decided to approach the Board of Trade and the Board of Agriculture with a view to securing special consideration for the seed trade, on account of the national importance of the food seed supply at the present time. It was also agreed to issue a warning against packing too large a proportion of seeds in any one vessel, in consequence of the recent loss of onion and cauliflower from Italy, the cargo sunk being almost all the available supply of these seeds from that country.

John Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, Chicago, commented on the excellent demand for and taste in the selection of trees for cemetery use, illustrating the sale of the weeping mulberry, a tree which for sentimental and utilitarian reasons is admirably suited for the work.

Manager Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, attributes the company's big business to thorough preparedness.
He referred to a booklet in preparation for the amateur gardeners, of which the first issue of 10,000 will soon be exhausted.

J. J. Sluis, of the Sluis Seed Store, Chicago, compared the tremendous demand for garden seeds to a veritable mania. Said Mr. Sluis: "Everybody has got it and as most of our customers have absorbed the information so freely given by the press, all we can do is to give them what they ask for. We fear, however, that those who plant the potato locally will be disappointed, the soil not being adapted to this tuber."

The Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., of Grand Rapids, Mich., has acquired the business of the Jones Seed Co., a retail concern, which it will continue as before, under the management of the veteran seedsman, John Jones, who reports a big trade. The same conditions prevail at the Brown retail store, and the wholesale department has beaten all records.

Harry E. Saier, of Lansing, Mich., took out the partition that divided his store from the one adjoining, to accommodate the increase in his seed business, and this in the first year. A secret in his business is an unseen force, together with exceptional opportunity, and it is possible an up-to-date building may soon rise.

Oakland, Cal.—A large white dahlia, Burbank Oakland by name, will henceforth be the official flower of Oakland. A bulb from the new dahlia will be presented each year to the other twenty-seven cities in the United States named Oakland.

San Luis Obispo, Cal.—A. W. Shurgar is moving his place to the state highway, where he already has a large lath house built and a greenhouse ready for the glass. He intends to build a new residence and more lath, which will give much additional room.

San Francisco, Cal.—Spray orchids are popular on the Pacific coast, but Ferrari Bros., who are among the largest growers, say the Pacific coast at the moment is saturated with phalænopsis plants and they are making an effort to distribute their stock in the east, where spray orchids have not yet attained the same favor they hold in the west.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

There has been a better tone to the market during the last week, largely on account of the local funeral and wedding work. But even at that, there is plenty of evidence that the dull season is here; May is always a poor month in this section. The shipping business falls off more or less and with the retailers the transient business is only moderate. This year wholesalers report a greater number of inquiries than usual for Mothers' day, and as stock is plentiful and cheap many of these should materialize and help the month considerably.

Getting down to cases, the carnation market is overloaded with poor stock, as usual, but good stock cleans up daily. Indoor roses are too plentiful and hardly worth the prices asked. Sweet peas, cornflowers and all the smaller items are plentiful and good. Orchids continue on the scarce side and valley is almost out of the market. Plumosos now is plentiful and good.

Various Notes.

J. Christopherson, of Salt Lake City, accompanied by Mrs. Christopherson and the children, is here on a visit, looking up stock for the opening of the Saltair beach season. They had a narrow escape from being wrecked on the way down. A freight train running just in front of their train; in fact, running on their time, collided with a big boulder on the track, which turned the engine over and killed the engineer.

Polder Bros. have the sold-out sign on their carnation rooted cuttings for the present. John Polder reports a good season, many repeat orders having come in. The nursery stock planted out some years ago is coming along in fine shape now and the firm is digging choice conifers, English laurels and other good stock.

Some choice funeral work has been turned out by Frank Liechtenberg's place during the last week, especially a couple of palls, made of excellent Spanish irises of a delicate tint that reminded one of a lovely albino orchid. This was an artistic touch seldom realized in the workaday world of the florists' business. Mr. Liechtenberg was one of the first of the May 1 fishermen to get back to the city with the limit of trout.

"Hickey & Hollis."

"Petaluma, California, March 13, 1917."

W. L. Morris, long known in the cut flower business here, is in business for himself in the old quarters of the California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co., on South Broadway.

The H. N. Gage Co. is in with a good cut of Star of Bethlehem and other herbaceous stock. Fine ferns of specimen size are being sent in from the new greenhouses.

Oscar Johanssen, of the Johanssen Seed Co., has returned from a northern trip, where he has been on the lookout for land for seed growing, in addition to the already large holdings. What he was looking for in particular was land for nasturtiums, but the high prices of beans and cereals generally make it difficult to secure the land. He took the coast route up and returned by the valley.

The regular monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held in the Times assembly rooms May 2. The subject for the evening was ably handled by W. W. Felgate, of Sierra Madre. A discussion followed in which J. Burns, of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., J. Mayer, of Payne's Seed Store, and others took part. As a visitor, J. Christopherson, of Salt Lake City, was asked for a speech and he made an interesting one, contrasting the plenty that was apparent around Los Angeles with the barren condition of some other states. He will evidently be a booster for us on his return to Utah.

In his store on Hill street, J. W. Wolters is making a grand show. Among the prettiest things shown are large branches of the English hawthorn, of the double red variety, grown at Hollywood. It is a magnificent tree when it does so well as this, but as a rule the dry atmosphere here is not conducive to its health.

Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., reports a slight falling off in business, but not more than normal for this season. His son, who was hurt, as recently reported, will have to be on crutches for some time, but his doctor says that with care he will not be permanently lame.

H. R. Richards.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

The tenth annual spring show of the San Diego Floral Association was a great success, both from a financial standpoint and from the point of exhibits. The proceeds were turned over to the Red Cross fund and patriotic citizens turned out in great crowds to the beautiful Balboa park, where the show was held. Vegetable classes were popular on account of the interest taken in home gardening now and the amateur flower classes were well filled. The prize-winners in the trade classes follow:

Twenty-five varieties of roses—E. Benard, of the Missouri Valley Nursery, first; Boyle & Darnaud, second.

Twelve red roses, one variety—Boyle & Darnaud, first.

Twelve yellow roses, one variety—E. Benard, first; Boyle & Darnaud, second.

and as a result nearly all the spring business activity is in the seed departments. The food propaganda undoubtedly has acted as a great impetus to the sale of seeds.

Business in nearly all lines is good, though not markedly so. There seems to be a tendency to tighten purse strings a wee bit. Funeral work forms the bulk of the business right now.

Various Notes.

H. L. Olsson reports good progress with his new range. While materials were high when he bought them, he considers himself lucky, as both paint and glass have taken a big jump in price since the time he made his purchases.

Edward Young came in from Walla Walla this week to consult Mr. Olsson regarding three new houses, each 28x200, which he will build this summer. He purchased considerable stock from local growers.

E. S. Eugene was well pleased with the attention his new store drew on opening day, and since then has had reason to remark that if business continues as it has begun, he will have to enlarge his force. L. B. H.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Prospects are considered excellent for Memorial day business. The season has been more or less backward, and this will cause an abundance of good stock to come into crop for the holiday. There will be many good callas, for instance, and Easter lilies still will be in good supply. Daisies promise well, and gladioli no doubt will be up to standard. For long-distance shipping strawflowers will be excellent. Inquiries are being received from the northwest, indicating that Oregon and Washington florists will draw heavily on this market. The quality of all roses is excellent, but the supply is a little above demand, with the result that splendid long-stemmed American Beauties and fine specimens of other varieties drag rather heavily. Outdoor Brunners are beginning to come in nicely. Kaiserin is fine, and Ward, Ophelia and Russell leave nothing to be desired.

Carnations are in sufficient supply; so are sweet peas. Tulips are about gone, but they can be spared in view of the abundance of other spring flowers, the supply of which, as a whole, shows no signs of diminishing. Spanish iris is a strong factor now, and gladioli are appearing. Anemones and ranunculi are on the wane, after holding an enviable position for several weeks. The large Japanese tree peonies are through, but they are being followed by other varieties. Quantities of hawthorn are arriving from the Santa Clara valley, and the quality is about the best ever seen here and the stock cleans up readily. After being on the short side of the market most of the time for months, orchids are in ample supply. Valley is plentiful, and anything not up to mark is hard to clear. The cut of gardenias is sufficient to fill all needs. In potted plants many primroses are still to be seen, and French hydrangeas and rhododendrons are good. So far as greens are concerned, the situation leaves no ground for complaint.

Various Notes.

Plans are well under way for the dahlia exhibit to be given September 3 to 5 at the Palace hotel under the auspices of the Dahlia Society of California, which is an amalgamation of the California Dahlia Growers' Association and the California Dahlia Society. A preliminary show schedule has been issued in advance of the complete exhibit and premium list that will follow shortly. A special feature will be made of dahlias originated in California, it being the opinion of some members of the society that California dahlias are sufficiently meritorious to compete against those from any other section of the country. F. C. Burns, chairman of the exhibit committee, asks that dahlia lovers and commercial dahlia growers desiring to offer premiums for the exhibitions communicate with him at once, in order to have acknowledgment and mention on the official program. If the Palace hotel show is a great success it will probably be followed by another show at the St. Francis hotel, the proceeds of which, above expenses, will be turned over to the Red Cross.

A. Twitchett, who conducts the Mission Dahlia Farm, at 715 Moultrie street, says the shortage of stock from Holland is causing a great many people to turn their attention to California for dahlias this year. He reports a heavy demand for the pompon varieties.

C. S. Quick, dahlia specialist of Berkeley, is able to walk around again, after having been incapacitated for five or six weeks as the result of an automobile accident.

A. J. Nevraumont, manager of the California Seed Co., says the demand for dahlia tubers is 100 per cent better than it was a year ago.

F. J. Bertrand, genial manager for B. M. Joseph, went to a local hospital May 1 for an operation. He is not expected back at the store for three weeks or more. Mr. Joseph says business is holding up fairly well.

Fred C. Jaeger, manager for MacRorie & McLaren, has arranged to leave shortly on an extended automobile trip, the objective point of which will be Tia Juana, near the Mexican border. He will be accompanied by his wife, son and daughter. J. B. Bernardo, of the store force, has a fishing trip planned to the Yosemite. He expects to start about June 1, making the tour by automobile with a party of friends. H. E. Hansen is no longer associated with MacRorie & McLaren.

Daniel Banahan has resigned his position with the Art Floral Co. with the intention of enlisting in the army. P. Vincent Matraia, head of the company, says that stock is fine and that business is seasonably active.

Avansino Bros. brought in the last of their large tree peonies May 2, thus winding up a most successful season with them. Store trade, according to Henry Avansino, gives no ground for complaint, but he says it is more difficult to regulate than it was during the winter months, some days being much better than others.

Miss Recardie Lee Murray has taken back the flower stand in the Clift hotel, at Taylor and Geary streets, which she conducted for some time prior to opening a store at 894 Geary street a few months ago. Three other parties have had a try at it in the meanwhile. Miss Murray did well there, but her trade grew until she needed increased facilities. Operating the hotel stand as a branch will probably prove a valuable adjunct to her business.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been taking a prominent part in the preparations for Red Cross day.

Louis Picetti, manager of the seed and plant department of the Emporium, which is operated by Charles Navlet & Co., of San Jose, Cal., reports a big demand for "canned" rose plants. Mr. Navlet is now offering roses in cans, as the result of an experiment he tried last year with good success. The idea of using cans instead of pots or other receptacles is that the plant does not have to be removed from the can when it is set out, as the tin decomposes in a short time.

W. Stappenbeek, on Polk street, says that his business is practically all family trade and that it does not vary much from day to day, or season to season.

Gunnar Madwig, of the C. Kooyman Co., Inc., expects to leave soon on an extended eastern trip in the interests of the business.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has a fine crop of gardenias, and the rose cut is about all this market will stand, accord-

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

In several respects April was an extraordinary month. The weather office reported a rainfall of 5.36 inches, the greatest for any April since 1883. The average temperature was 49 degrees, the lowest average for the month since 1896. There was only one clear day, April 28, and rain fell on twenty-four days during the month. It is doubtful if the records back to 1871 show such a combination of unfavorable weather features. It is no wonder the spring is opening extremely late.

Growers of bedding stock had a dull month in that line. The establishments handling potted plants and cut stock, however, report a good business—the best April for several years, is the common report. This is encouraging, considering the weather conditions and that the nation entered into a war early in the month. No one is idle who is willing to work, and wage scales are unusually high. Large sums are distributed in pay rolls, and some of this money finds its way into the hands of the florists. Cool weather has kept the stock in prime condition, and the roses and carnations are excellent. In potted blooming plants hydrangeas and roses lead. Nephrolepis ferns are scarce; so is asparagus. Sweet peas are plentiful and good. Daffodils are still offered in limited quantities. Branches of crabapple and cherry blooms are seen everywhere.

W. Hennings has part of his new range at Milwaukee set to tomatoes, a crop which promises to bring good returns this year.

The Rahn & Herbert Co. is cutting some good Frau Karl Drusehki roses. It is sending in some attractive snapdragon. Several girls are employed at the greenhouses, replacing the male help.

A. J. Clarke, of Clarke Bros., said that heavy orders were coming in from districts east of the Cascade mountains as a result of catalogues mailed in February. Usually this business comes early in April.

Julius Brotje said he had picked strawberries from his patch several seasons as early as April 21. This year the plants were not in bloom on that date.

The Market.

The weather continues cold, dark and wet. The temperature at this writing is 44 degrees. Growers are not complaining so much about the cold as they are about the lack of sunshine. All outdoor stock is far behind the season. Darwin tulips are coming in sparingly. Doro-niums are quite plentiful and are receiving a good demand. Narcissi and daffodils are about over, as are Easter lilies. There is practically nothing in the way of small blooming plants suitable for sick rooms or centerpieces. A few good spiræas are shown, but they receive only a weak demand.

All varieties of cut flowers are scarce. This is the awkward season, when winter stock is out and summer stock lags. Peas are of good quality, but the lack of sunshine has kept the quantity below expectations. Snapdragons are also scarce, with the demand good at $1 per dozen. The market is also scantily supplied with carnations. Spanish iris is picked up quickly at 75 cents per dozen. Roses are tightening on account of the good demand. Greens are more plentiful. Bedding stock is moving slowly and nurserymen complain of a poor demand for shrubbery this spring. Some fairly large funerals and good table decorations have kept the cut flower market in good condition. May day business was not to be "sneezed at." Retailers now are advertising and looking forward to a big business on Mothers' day.

Various Notes.

The Smith Floral Co. is disposing of some fine large blooming pansies in baskets.

A beautiful casket spray, made entirely of Ophelia roses and plumosus, was one of the pieces made last week by the Hayden-Watson Co.

The Aeme Floral Co. is cutting some fine Golden Macheet mignonette. The peas are coming in well now.

The California Florists last week did a good funeral business and made a good showing of cattleyas.

Mrs. Miller is cutting some of the best calla lilies of the season. Like the rest, she too is worried by the absence of sunshine. B. G.

CANNAS FROM SEEDS.

Some time ago I sowed some canna seeds in 2-inch pots and then plunged the pots in a hotbed. The seeds were taken from red and pink cannas. They were filed and some started to make roots. About three dozen out of 150 came up and are growing. The ones that started to germinate finally decayed. They may have been kept too wet. The pink canna seeds were the largest, but did not come up at all. Please tell me the cause of the trouble. C. E. H.—Ill.

If the integuments of your canna seeds had been cut and the seeds in addition had been soaked for twenty-four hours in warm water, germination would have been better. A water soaking in itself would have assisted materially. Canna seeds need a brisk bottom heat to germinate them. Your hotbed probably became cold and persistent watering may have caused the seeds of the pink variety to rot. The more even bottom heat of a greenhouse propagating

Lincoln, Ill.—Work is in progress on a range of ten new greenhouses for the plant department of Gullett & Sons. These houses are each 30x200, and are to be used largely for cyclamens, which constitute the firm's leading plant specialty. With the completion of these houses the plant range will consist of thirty-six houses and, except that it does not grow palms, the firm will be the largest plant growers in the middle west.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE death of James Hassett, of Davenport, Ia., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

STATE forests with a total of over 3,600,000 acres have been established in thirteen states. Of these New York has the largest forests, which comprise 1,826,000 acres. Pennsylvania is second with 1,008,000 acres, and Wisconsin third with 400,000 acres.

It is apparent that the greater part of the program for the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen, to be held at Philadelphia, June 27 to 29, will relate to the special conditions now confronting the nursery trade. The nation-wide demand for the planting of food crops this year has hit the nursery trade a heavy blow, as the planting is of crops that will produce a quick return and fewer fruit trees have been called for than in any recent year. The trade faces a necessity for considerably higher prices and it is a question how they can be obtained without a sharp reduction in production.

IMMEDIATE QUARANTINE.

The Secretary of Agriculture has amended the white pine blister rust quarantine promulgated April 21, 1917. This amendment became effective May 1, 1917, and prohibits the movement of white pines and black currant plants from the New England states to points outside of New England. This action was necessitated by the considerable movement now under way of possibly infected white pines and, to a less extent, black currants, from New England to states lying west and south. Both of these plants are important carriers of the blister rust disease, and most of the states to which these shipments were being made have state quarantines prohibiting the entry of such stock.

GOOD WILL AND CONFIDENCE.

Good will is the basis for every permanent business success. The good will of a customer is unquestionable proof of faithful and intelligent service rendered.

With a mixture of varieties uniformly good and varieties uniformly poor, the nurserymen are finding it exceedingly difficult to gain and hold the good will of their patrons.

Shrewdness, also, is a legitimate asset of good business, providing that it is of a character that invites confidence, for confidence between man and man is the foundation of lasting success.

Poor and unsatisfactory varieties of nursery stock, poor quality, grading and

What the home-owners and buyers of nursery stock need most is reliable service, service that does not need to be watched. They want to feel, rather than to see, that they are being treated right. The American home-owner does not, through choice, evade poor varieties of nursery stock by refraining from buying.

ANOTHER QUARANTINE HEARING.

Under date of May 3, 1917, the U. S. Department of Agriculture issued the following notice of interest to florists as well as nurserymen:

The secretary of agriculture has information that a dangerous insect infestation, namely, the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth, new to and not heretofore widely prevalent or distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in the following towns in addition to the territory already covered by Notice of Quarantine No. 25: Chatham, Bartlett, Waterville, Woodstock, New Hampshire; Hartford, Vermont.

It appears that the territory above described should be quarantined in accordance with section 8 of the Plant Quarantine Act of August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the Act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (Public No. 390, Sixty-fourth Congress); and that the movement from said territory into other states and territories of coniferous trees, such as spruce, fir, hemlock, pine, juniper (cedar), and arbor-vitae (white cedar), known and described as "Christmas trees," and parts thereof, and decorative plants, such as holly and laurel, known and described as "Christmas greens or greenery"; and forest plant products, and field-grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, and other plants and plant products for planting or propagation, except fruit pits, seeds of fruits and ornamental trees and shrubs, field, vegetable, and flower seeds, bedding plants, and other herbaceous plants and roots; and any other article of any character whatsoever capable of carrying gypsy moth or brown-tail moth infestation, should be permitted only in accordance with rules and regulations made, or to be made, by the secretary of agriculture.

It will not be necessary to extend the quarantined area on account of the brown-tail moth. Therefore, notice is hereby given that a public hearing will be held at the Department of Agri-

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

There has not been much pep to business during the last week. There have been a few orders of good size taken care of, but the general condition of the market is slow. All kinds of flowers have come in good supply, but so far no particular glut has been noticed, with the exception of Easter lilies, which are here in abundance. Roses are plentiful and the quality is good. There is a large supply of short-stemmed stock and it is found useful in design work.

Carnations are plentiful and sell well. A good supply of yellow, pink and red snapdragon reached us daily and moved quite rapidly. Bulbous stock is plentiful. Sweet peas continue to sell well. Yellow and white daisies, forget-me-nots and pansies are in demand. A good line of bedding stock reached the market, but the sale of much of it was prevented by the cold weather.

Various Notes.

W. E. Smith, of Irondequoit, is bringing in a large quantity of pansies, which find a ready sale.

Salter Bros. had a fine display of Spanish irises, Darwin tulips and German stocks, which they grew in their greenhouses at Fairport, N. Y.

In a window display contest, the Rochester Floral Co. and Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., were awarded third and fourth prizes, respectively, by a pottery company, the products of which were shown.

The New York Floral Co., located in the Arcade, is doing a large business, especially in Boston ferns, secured from the F. R. Pierson Co., of Tarrytown, N. Y.

The Rochester Floral Co. had an attractive display of art ware filled with orange-colored calendulas on a groundwork of purple. An archway of pansies and smilax made an effective combination.

George T. Boucher is making a special display of garden novelties.

Frank McKenna, of Montreal, Quebec, was a visitor last week and called on a number of friends in the trade. He also was present at the meeting of retailers, held in the store of the J. B. Keller Sons Tuesday evening, May 1.

Henry Merritt, of Irondequoit, N. Y., has finished his outdoor planting of carnations. His Naney and White Wonder carnations continue to yield a good crop.

H. E. Wilson had an effective Mothers' day window. A large frame, containing more than 300 tags of florists in the United States and Canada and suitable La Crosse, Wis.—A hail storm recently damaged glass in greenhouses here to the extent of $2,500.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Last week stock was in abundance, but this week the condition is reversed—stock is extremely scarce. This unstable condition may be attributed to several causes, the principal of which are the heavy demand and dark, cold weather. Carnations and lilies, which were in such ample supply last week, have all been utilized, chiefly in funeral work, of which there has been a large quantity. Roses have cleared daily. Sweet peas are not plentiful.

The outlook for Mothers' day business is none too good, in view of the gloomy weather. Carnations, it appears, will be scarce, the white ones bringing $7 and $8. Roses will not be in large supply, with prices from $4 to $25. Potted plants will be in the minority. Snapdragons are about the only plentiful flowers and they are of good quality. A few Darwin tulips have made their appearance, as well as a few miniature gladioli. Marguerites and daisies are equal to the demand.

On account of the cold weather, bedding stock has been moving slowly. The florists differ in opinion as to whether or not the late season will affect the disposal of this stock.

The green situation has improved and the items now are in almost normal supply, except fern leaves and smilax. The only good fern leaves obtainable are from the east and bring $3.50 per thousand.

Various Notes.

C. Schwomeyer has acquired the interests of the heirs of the Schwomeyer estate and is now the sole owner. He recently purchased a new auto truck.

A. P. Reynolds made a business trip to Richmond last week.

Fred Kiel has resigned as manager of the Smith & Young Co. He has not as yet made any definite plans for the future, although he has had several good offers.

M. A. Leganger, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, was a visitor this week.

The Pahud Floral Co. has purchased thirty-four acres of land east of the city. It contemplates erecting a range sometime in the future.

The Circle Flower Store had an attractive window last week commemorating Baby week. The idea was brought out by the use of cradles, dolls, storks and delicate and dainty flowers artistically arranged in small baskets.

The coal situation grows worse instead of better. Some of the local concerns have had their contracts canceled, even at this early date, while other coal dealers refuse to sign any contracts.

Clarence Thomas was the designer of a beautiful basket which on Lafayette day was presented to the French who took part in the commemoration.

The cold weather we have been having at this time of year is almost unprecedented. The unusual amount of rainfall and low temperatures, with coal at such prices, have been unusually hard on the florists. May 4 there was a steady fall of snow.

Frank Rieman, son of John Rieman, was married last week.

L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., was a visitor this week.

Baur & Steinkamp have started to cut large-flowering gladioli. E. E. T.

The Market.

Business remains good, with plenty of funeral and wedding work to keep the retailers busy. The supply of stock has shortened and each morning the wholesalers quickly dispose of the shipments received.

American Beauty roses recently have been poor and the demand for them has dropped. Ophelia, Shawyer, Russell, Reid and Hoosier Beauty roses find ready sale, while Killarneys do not seem to be so popular. Short-stemmed roses are in demand and clear each day.

The supply of carnations, also, has shortened and their keeping qualities are poor. Bulbous stock is not in oversupply and moves each day. Sweet peas are on the short side, while valley and orchids sell well, as the demand for corsage bouquets recently has been strong.

Various Notes.

Detroit florists are ready for Mothers' day and expect the sales to increase over a year ago. Every store is displaying prominently Mothers' day posters of red, white and blue with the words "Mothers' day, May 13," in the field of white. A Detroit newspaper featured an article on Mothers' day by Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., in the issue of Sunday, May 6.

Adam Bezemer, of E. A. Feters' store, recently spent a few days at his home in Kalamazoo, Mich.

John F. Mast, formerly with F. Holz-nagle, has taken over the Art Floral Co. store adjoining the Majestic theater on Woodward avenue.

Miss M. Dunke has acquired the flower store on East Grand River avenue, near Broadway.

Visitors.

S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, N. Y., was a recent visitor in Detroit.

Philip Foley, of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill., was in Detroit on business.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, Ill., was in Detroit last week calling on the trade.

H. T.

NEWPORT, R. I.

John C. Hass reports that April was a busy month in funeral work, as well as decorations.

The garden movement has caused an unusually brisk demand for vegetable plants, and S. Larson, gardener at the Tolethorpe school, has had his hands full supplying the demands.

Ebenezer W. Forrest has opened a new store at 94 Broadway. He was for several years with Gibson Bros. and later with Thomas J. Gibson. Mr. Forrest will be married next month.

W. H. M.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—W. A. Saltford, of Saltford's Flower Shop, commenting on the various styles of baskets filled with bulbous plants in bloom, said anything that is different from the ordinary idea sells and the more classy the better.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPED BY INEXPERIENCED MEN.

I have a greenhouse 21x45, set on a grout wall. Under the house the ground is excavated to a depth of two and one-half feet. The top of the wall is even with the outside grade level and the sill of the greenhouse is placed upon this wall. In the south side, above the grout wall, are two and one-half feet of glass and the ends also are glazed. The greenhouse is a lean-to. The north wall is of boards and is sixteen feet high.

As the greenhouse was built by inexperienced people, I have had a great deal of trouble with the heating system. The boiler is a Furman sectional hot water heater. All the pipes are 2-inch. The flows have an uphill grade and the returns run downhill. The floor of the boiler room is only two feet lower than the greenhouse and that brings the top of the boiler about two feet above the lowest returns. The boiler room is at the north side of the greenhouse. The piping is arranged as follows:

Three flows enter the greenhouse at the north side, about in the middle, and run to the east end, then to one of the purlins and finally to the west end. There each one of the flows is run down and connected with three returns. Six of the returns run to the south wall, then to the east wall and then to the northeast corner, where they all enter one pipe which goes to the boiler. The other three returns run to the north wall and then along half the length of the wall, where they are connected with one pipe leading to the boiler. The flows are all carried up to within about eighteen inches of the roof and the returns are below the grade level.

What can I do to improve this heating system? Would a generator do any good, or would it be advisable to use a closed expansion tank instead of the present open-tank system? The expansion tank is at the highest point of the system. Or would the best plan be to lower the boiler? What changes would result in the greatest benefit with the least expenditure of time and labor? There are 200 feet of flows and 600 feet of returns. The boiler capacity is 750 square feet of radiation; 2,350 square feet of exposure at 45 degrees and 1,750 at 60 degrees. The former owner, who had the house in a different situation, grew lettuce. F. H.—Mass.

So far as we can judge from the description given, the house contains about the right amount of pipe for a lettuce or carnation temperature, but, in addition to having the top of the boiler below the returns, we would certainly run the flow pipes downhill, especially when there is any possibility of a poor circulation, and we would have the circuit as short as possible. If it is not convenient to lower the boiler, we would use a closed system and would raise the flow pipes so that they would run downhill. We would also carry the returns on the walls as high as possible.

We do not understand what is meant by 2,350 square feet of exposure at 45 degrees and 1,750 at 60 degrees. As nearly as we can compute it, there are about 2,400 square feet of exposure, of which 720 square feet are in the north wooden wall, so that altogether it would be equivalent to 1,850 square feet of glass.

CAST IRON BOILERS WASTE FUEL

I had a cast iron 8-section boiler before, but was afraid it would crack to pieces. The Kroeschell Boiler is certainly a fuel-saver. My coal bill to heat 5000 sq. ft. of glass surface with your boiler is less than last winter's coal bill, when I had only 2050 sq. ft. of glass, heated with the 8-section cast iron boiler.

Your boiler burns any kind of fuel. I would not have any other boiler than the Kroeschell, and will recommend whenever I get a chance.

flow or flows we would feed nine 2-inch returns, carrying six of them on the wall of the house and the others either overhead, where the flow pipes are now lo-ated, or under the benches, if it is possible to have them as high as the returns on the wall. We would use for the main returns the same piping as for the main flows; that is, either one 3-inch or three 2-inch pipes.

With the present piping we would use two 2-inch pipes or one 2½-inch pipe as the returns for the 6-pipe coil.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Generally speaking, business last week was normal. The market maintained its usual liveliness, thanks to wedding and other social work. Beauties have declined somewhat in quality as well as in quantity, but there is what might be called a fairly good demand for them. Other roses cleaned up well last week and prices again are higher. Russell, as usual, clears readily. White roses are enjoying a fair demand. Carnation prices have soared, but the blooms are of good quality. There still are heavy consignments of Easter lilies, but they seem to move along easily. Callas, too, have a good demand, but are not so plentiful as the Easter lilies. Bulbous stock is passing out slowly. Sweet peas are abundant in all grades, from the excellent Butterfly varieties to the short-stemmed stock.

Violets are no longer with us and leave more room for the sweet peas and orchids. Spanish irises and baby gladioli find a ready sale whenever shown, but these, as yet, are in limited supply. Yellow daisies, mignonette, snapdragons, calendulas, myosotis and pansies make up the miscellaneous list. A few ixias arrived from the east and were bought up quickly. The supply of greens is quite normal. Various kinds of flowering plants were easily disposed of. There still is a demand for azaleas in pots, but these are on the wane.

Various Notes.

Felix Alberts visited Philadelphia last week. He reports business as being normal.

E. J. Fancourt, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and R. E. Blackshaw, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, were visitors last week.

Fred Wise, of East Aurora, was in town last week. He reports an excellent trade this season and looks for a big business for Mothers' day and Memorial day. A. E.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

The Market.

Trade was good last week. Roses are plentiful and good. Lilies, snapdragons, hyacinths and sweet peas are in sufficient quantities for present needs. There is some Spanish iris to be had. Carnations are in short supply. Daffodils are about done. Prices on all stock are firm. Owing to unfavorable weather, bedding stock is not moving well.

Club Meeting.

The members of the Tri-City Florists' Club met in special session at Vanderveer park, and a committee was appointed to act with reference to the death of James Hassett, a member, who died May 3. The committee prepared a set of resolutions, which were unanimously adopted. W. G.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business is considerably better than normal, everybody being comfortably busy, with funeral, wedding and social work well distributed. Sales of potted and bedding plants are large, and a few warm, bright days will set things humming. There is a good supply of all flowers, and prices range a trifle lower than usual, if anything. The season is expected to end this year with Memorial day, as flowers, it is understood, are to be tabooed at all the school commencements.

Various Notes.

The Market.

The effect of the dark weather and low temperature on the production of stock is most pronounced, and the prevailing scarcity of nearly all kinds of flowers seems to preclude all possibilities of a splendid Mothers' day business. The wholesalers clear their supplies all too soon, with many of the orders filled only in part. Heavy funeral work recorded a good week for the retailers.

The plantsmen now are more active and contemplate a good spring trade. Some of them have advanced prices of geraniums and other stock, but others cling to the lower prices, apparently feeling that better prices will turn the sales to some other source of supply. In some instances these growers would make more money if they wholesaled their stock, thereby leaving the market steady for those who are capable of enforcing higher prices.

Although the landscape men are busy, they have troubles of their own to contend with. Labor is at such a premium that it is hard to hold a man even at $3 per day. Then the railroads are so congested that deliveries are greatly retarded. Everything seems determined to go wrong during the busy period.

Various Notes.

A handsome store has been opened at Tarentum by Arthur Godfrey.

The meeting of the Florists' Club at the Fort Pitt hotel last week was short on attendance but long on interest. There were good exhibits of bedding plants.

William T. McCauley, who has been associated with the A. W. Smith Co., has joined the naval reserves for duty in the mosquito fleet.

John Demas and S. Lasky have combined their resources and energies and opened a store in the Oakland district.

The Market.

Despite the unseasonably dark and cold weather, there seems to be no recession in the production of cut flowers. Roses of all varieties are in abundance, peonies are arriving in ever-increasing quantities and even sweet peas are more than plentiful. For the first time in several years, market conditions seem to favor the shipping of peonies to the Chicago market, and they are going every day. They are not so large this season as they should be, but, then, they are good in color and form and should sell well.

The bedding plant season is here, but because of the continued low temperatures business is not so brisk as it was ten days ago. Yet no one can complain of the demand, and it is clear that people are not planting fewer flowers, however much more garden truck they may be putting in the ground. Stocks are beginning to run low and the prices obtained are generally better than usual.

The first outdoor roses are appearing, slowly to be sure, but in sufficient numbers to prove that with one or two normal days there will be thousands of them. The demand for cut flowers is good. Thus far all agree that the war has had no effect, business being better than last year's. Just now is one of the normally slack times, but in another fortnight school commencements will be in full blast.

Various Notes.

The Joy Floral Co. has procured a location on one of the best streets of Chattanooga and will open a flower store there during the last of this week.

John Bralliar, the youngest son of Floyd Bralliar, underwent a minor operation this week. He now is about again.

Geny Bros. undoubtedly are offering the best bedding plants that they have ever handled. They say that, all things considered, sales have never before been so satisfactory.

McIntyre Bros. had attractive windows last week. They are featuring bedding plants of the better sort.

J. F. Corbitt is doing the largest business in the history of his establishment. All hands were working until late at night packing plants for shipment and there were thousands more ready to go.

The parks are in fine form this season and it looks as though Mr. McBride is planning to outdo himself.

Harry & Sons report business normal. They have found that they do not need their stall in the city market this season in order to dispose of their stock of plants.

The Market.

There has been the average spring business during the last week. Prices have been reasonable, and the supply coming into the market is adequate. Growers held their carnations to make a big cut for Mothers' day and expect a large demand for them the last part of the week. With Memorial day approaching, growers are getting their bedding stock ready for market. Already there is considerable cemetery work for the florists located near the cemeteries. There also has been considerable funeral work.

Roses are coming in good supply and are of good quality. Violets still are plentiful, and pansies are coming in large quantities. There are some fine Easter lilies in the market. Each week sees a smaller supply of distinctly spring stock.

Various Notes.

George Gill has opened a retail store at 1168 East Jersey street, Elizabeth.

D. E. Davis, of Grove street, East Orange, has a fine lot of potted geraniums for Memorial day trade. R. B. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

Business has been quiet during the last two weeks, with stock rather plentiful in most lines. Roses are coming in satisfactorily and as a rule are cleaned up fairly well. Ophelia and Russell roses are the best sellers, with Stanley a close third. White Killarney and Killarney roses are of fair quality, but the demand is light. Carnations are not excessively plentiful, but the demand is weak at this writing. Lilies are in larger supply, as are snapdragons, but the demand for these is far from robust. Sweet peas are selling well and the quality keeps up. Valley is scarce at this time, but outdoor stock will soon be in. Some fine outdoor tulips are arriving, but they are experiencing a quiet spell.

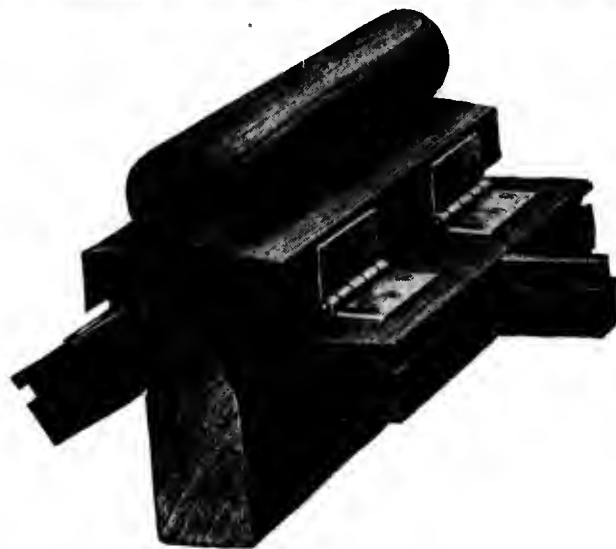

There is a scarcity of good potted plants at present, the principal exception being hydrangeas. The cold weather has put a damper on the sale of plants for porch boxes, etc., and the indications are that the business will come in a lump, although it is likely that sales will be lighter this season on account of the movement for larger vegetable production. All the florists have about the same opinion. They say that orders are coming in lightly for window box stock. Prices may have something to do with this, as they have been advanced on nearly all bedding plants. J. M.

RIDGE A New One It's Leak Tight

IT'S easy enough to say a ridge is tight.

It's easy enough to say that the leak drips are condensation.

It's easy enough to finally declare that no one can make an absolutely leakless ridge when ventilating sash are used on both sides.

With a hard, beating, wind-driven rain, we doubt if it's possible to shut out every drop. But if any ridge is practically leak tight, this one of ours is.

That angle-shaped groove prevents the water from creeping in. When it strikes that groove it drops on to the vent sash. If every part of the sash could be held as snug and tight as at the hinges, there would be no leaks.

To overcome this, we mill the main part of the ridge with a special curve. The sash is also curve milled.

When the curve of the sash strikes the curve of the ridge, a leverage is produced that sort of pries tight shut every inch of the sash's length. Everyone who has it, says it is absolutely tight.

You know we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

The Market.

There was little sunshine last week and the weather was unusually cold for this time of the year. The glut of stock at the end of the week has turned into a real shortage. It has become difficult to fill all orders satisfactorily and it is easy to see that the shortage will be acute for Mothers' day. A canvass of the local situation indicates that stock does not compare favorably in quantity with that of last year. The advance orders for other stock besides carnations have been unusually heavy this year. The quality of the carnations has improved greatly and what stock there is should be in fine shape for the Mothers' day trade. There are practically no splits in the market and the stock is bringing $6 per hundred and better for the assorted colors.

Roses are in fine form, and while the supply is limited, orders are being taken care of with at least some degree of satisfaction. Naturally the shorter grades are in greatest demand, but some exceptionally fine stock is being moved at fair prices. Red roses are particularly scarce and the supply of white is also inadequate. Sweet peas are having quite a sale for Mothers' day and from present indications the supply will be far short of the demand.

Violets are over for this year and their end has increased the demand for other small stock. Indoor tulips, while still in the market, are becoming poorer every day, and as the outdoor stock as yet has not come in, it is difficult to take care of orders satisfactorily. There is an exceptionally fine lot of cattleyas in the market at this time and these should move readily for Mothers' day. While there is not a variety of plants available just now, the sales are quite heavy, which would seem to demonstrate that Mothers' day in time will develop a large movement of plants. The possibilities of Mothers' day are almost unlimited and it is up to the retail end of the trade to see that the day and its observance is perpetuated. It is to be hoped that plans will be made in the near future for keeping this occasion in the minds of the public each year. There is no reason why this day should not become as popular with the buying public as is Memorial day. H. J. S.

SIM'S HYBRID YELLOW POLYANTHUS

This is one of my houses 20x300 feet. of National Flower Show Gold Medal Polyanthus
These have been in bloom constantly since November and will continue into May.

I had two houses of Giant Yellow Polyanthus in full crop at Easter. A Review correspondent saw them March 31st and wrote:

"They include some beautiful varieties, which are being carefully marked and saved for propagation. One bed 300 feet long, of a pale yellow polyanthus, true to type in every plant, was particularly fine. I measured individual flowers two inches in diameter and many of the stalks stood eighteen inches high. Two houses, each 300 feet long, are devoted to this crop, and a glorious sight they are."

But the best of it is they had a glorious sale. You can do as well next season if you order your stock now.

Strong divisions ready

SPENCER SWEET PEAS

New Giant Waved or Spencer SWEET PEAS

There is no other flower that ranks greater in importance to the florist than Sweet Peas. Since the introduction of Countess Spencer some years ago, they have steadily grown in favor. The florist may obtain any of his favorite colors of the Grandiflora type in the Spencers.

Flowers gigantic in size (often 2 inches in diameter), stems stiff, 12 to 15 inches long; the foliage and flower extraordinary in appearance.

PLANNING A DRIVE FOR MEMORIAL DAY

In the battle for business the trade must take advantage of every favorable opportunity. Such an opportunity is at hand. Custom has established Memorial day as one of the great selling days of the year. But it can be made greater by the right kind of effort.

CAMPAIGNING for business is not unlike the military operations in Europe. Careful preparation, proper alignment of all forces that will tend toward success and then the "drive" bring results to him who is best prepared and who puts the greatest amount of constructive thought back of his efforts. The trade recently has made two successful "spring drives." Business at Easter was the greatest in the history of the trade; Mothers' day was a big success. Now comes the "drive" for Memorial day business.

Memorial day, originally set apart as a day upon which to honor the memory of the soldier dead, has become so much more than that it is commonly called Decoration day. Custom has made it the day for everyone to pay homage to the loved ones who have passed away, but who have not been forgotten. And custom has also made the decoration of graves with flowers and plants the method by which this reverence for the memory of the departed is shown.

Time to Get Busy.

This year, the country being at war will bring back to the mind of everyone the significance of the day. War will not detract from, but rather increase the observance of Memorial day. Thus conditions are ideal for the Memorial day "drive" of the florist. All he has to do is to plan his campaign carefully, bring all of his selling forces into the battle for business, and victory is sure.

If that campaign has not already been planned, there is not a minute to waste before doing it. Because the greater the preparatory artillery fire of publicity, the more certain is the success of the campaign to replace stock in the store with money in the cash register. And that tells the story of the success or failure of the campaign for Memorial day trade.

To get the greatest results from the drive, a leader should be chosen. Then concentrate your selling efforts on this one thing. That has been proven to be the best means of gaining commercial victory. Be this leader a certain style of wreath, or plants, or cut flowers, it should be the shell constantly fired at the buying public.

The Wreath the Staple.

Wreaths, of course, are staples for Memorial day trade. They have been, and still are, the most popular pieces for grave decoration. The public likes them because they will last—the buyer gets a longer run for his money than with loose cut flowers or bouquets. Wreaths, too, have the advantage in that they can be made up in advance and those unsold can be kept for future funeral work.

After the leader has been selected and the price of it fixed, start your selling campaign. The first moves are to decorate the show window and to advertise.

The objects of a window display are: First, to get the attention of the pedestrian; second, to interest him in what you have for sale, and, third, to make that interest so intense that he will have a desire to possess what he sees. Then the sale is the same as made.

There is a fine sentiment back of Memorial day. Everyone has that sentiment, but in many it is dormant. It is up to us to arouse it. Consequently our window should have some sentimental appeal, such as that of patriotism. War is uppermost of the impersonal things in everybody's mind. Consequently some novel arrangement of flags, such as those of the countries of which the United States is now an ally, would attract attention to the window, as it is doubtful if one person in fifty has seen or would recognize the flags of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Russia and Italy, with a greater percentage ignorant of the colors of Servia, Roumania and Montenegro.

There we have a suggestion, which, carried out, would attract the crowds. The balance of the decoration should be made up of seasonable things we have for sale. A card with a snappy selling argument with a sentimental appeal would not be out of place.

Keep to Day's Spirit.

Not alone should the window breathe the spirit of Memorial day. The interior of the store, also, can be made to impress the mind of the visitor with the one idea all florists want to impress—that Memorial day is near and that a wreath, or a plant, or flowers of some kind should be purchased and taken or sent to the cemetery.

This can be done by putting out of sight for a few days those things which will distract the mind from thoughts of Memorial day and by exposing those things especially designed for the occasion. As an example: Even though we have just completed elaborate bouquets for a wedding and are proud of our handiwork, keep them out of sight.

They do not fit in with the Memorial day idea and, while they are sure to be admired, are likely to draw attention from the real matter at hand, buying for Memorial day.

This bit of advice is based on scientific selling fact and is not only true in theory, but has been proven in practice. Nothing should be left undone that will aid in focusing the prospective custom-

a price that will bring buyers to the store—this same leader many times will be the means of making a larger sale. When a man or woman enters a store with the fixed intention of making a purchase, he or she is a ready subject for the real salesman.

Accessories Are Sales Helps.

The up-to-date store now has so many attractive accessories that it is not difficult to find one of them which will these days better from a business standpoint than the year before. They will keep right on getting better, too, but we each must do our own boosting in our own town. What some florist accomplished in the next city or another state does not help us at the moment, although it will eventually have an effect on the business as a whole.

Therefore the time for the next "drive" is its own reason for that "drive." Roll up your sleeves and go to it.

Made-up Stock Sells Best.

Experience of some of the leaders in the trade shows that buyers want made-up stock for Memorial day. Formerly, that is before florists taught the people that it is more satisfactory and just as economical to deal with them on Memorial day, the visit to the cemetery meant carrying loose flowers, which were scattered over the grave, or the sinking of a glass vase into the soil as a water and flower holder. In a few hours or a day the flowers were dead and the grave looked even more desolate than before.

Then the trade began to see the possibilities of the day and went after business. Magnolia, galax and cycas-leaf wreaths, some decorated with fresh and some with artificial flowers and ferns, made their appearance and through their lasting qualities have become more and more popular. They also gave the florist an opportunity to prepare for the day, as he could make the wreaths in advance and devote his time the days before, and on the day itself, to making sales and delivering the orders already in. In this class of business there is absolutely no loss.

Sprays, however, present a different problem. At the earliest, they cannot be made up until the night before they are to be used.

Wreaths Are Most Popular.

Those who do a big business in wreaths for Memorial day started in a small way and have worked up the sales. They began by making up as many wreaths as they believed they could sell, fixed the quality and price at er's mind upon the significance and importance of the day. This does not mean that there should be anything depressive about the display in the store, but it should be impressive and not suggestive of gaiety.

Newspaper and circular advertising are important factors in this Memorial day campaign. We have used our best judgment in selecting a leader and fixed a price upon it. Now the plan of campaign provides for letting people know about it.

Newspaper space, when the number of readers is taken into consideration, is the least expensive of all forms of advertising. We can tell our story to a greater number of people than with circulars. But if these shots are to help bring victory they must be made to count. They must have the punch that will make the right impression upon the buying public.

Preparing Advertising Copy.

When you prepare your advertising copy, forget that you are talking to a great number of people. Imagine that you have a prospective customer in your store and you want to sell him a wreath, say, for Memorial day. In trying for this sale, you would undoubtedly first call his attention to the noble sentiment of the day; next you would tell him about the special wreaths you have made up for the expression of this sentiment, their lasting qualities and finally how little one of them will cost.

In other words, you would try to create in this man a desire to possess one of these wreaths. Do the same thing with the men and women who read the newspaper ad—try to create in them a desire. Do not take it for granted that the desire is there and that the mission of your announcement is merely to tell where a wreath may be obtained.

While there is a good profit in the sale of leaders even at an attractive price—

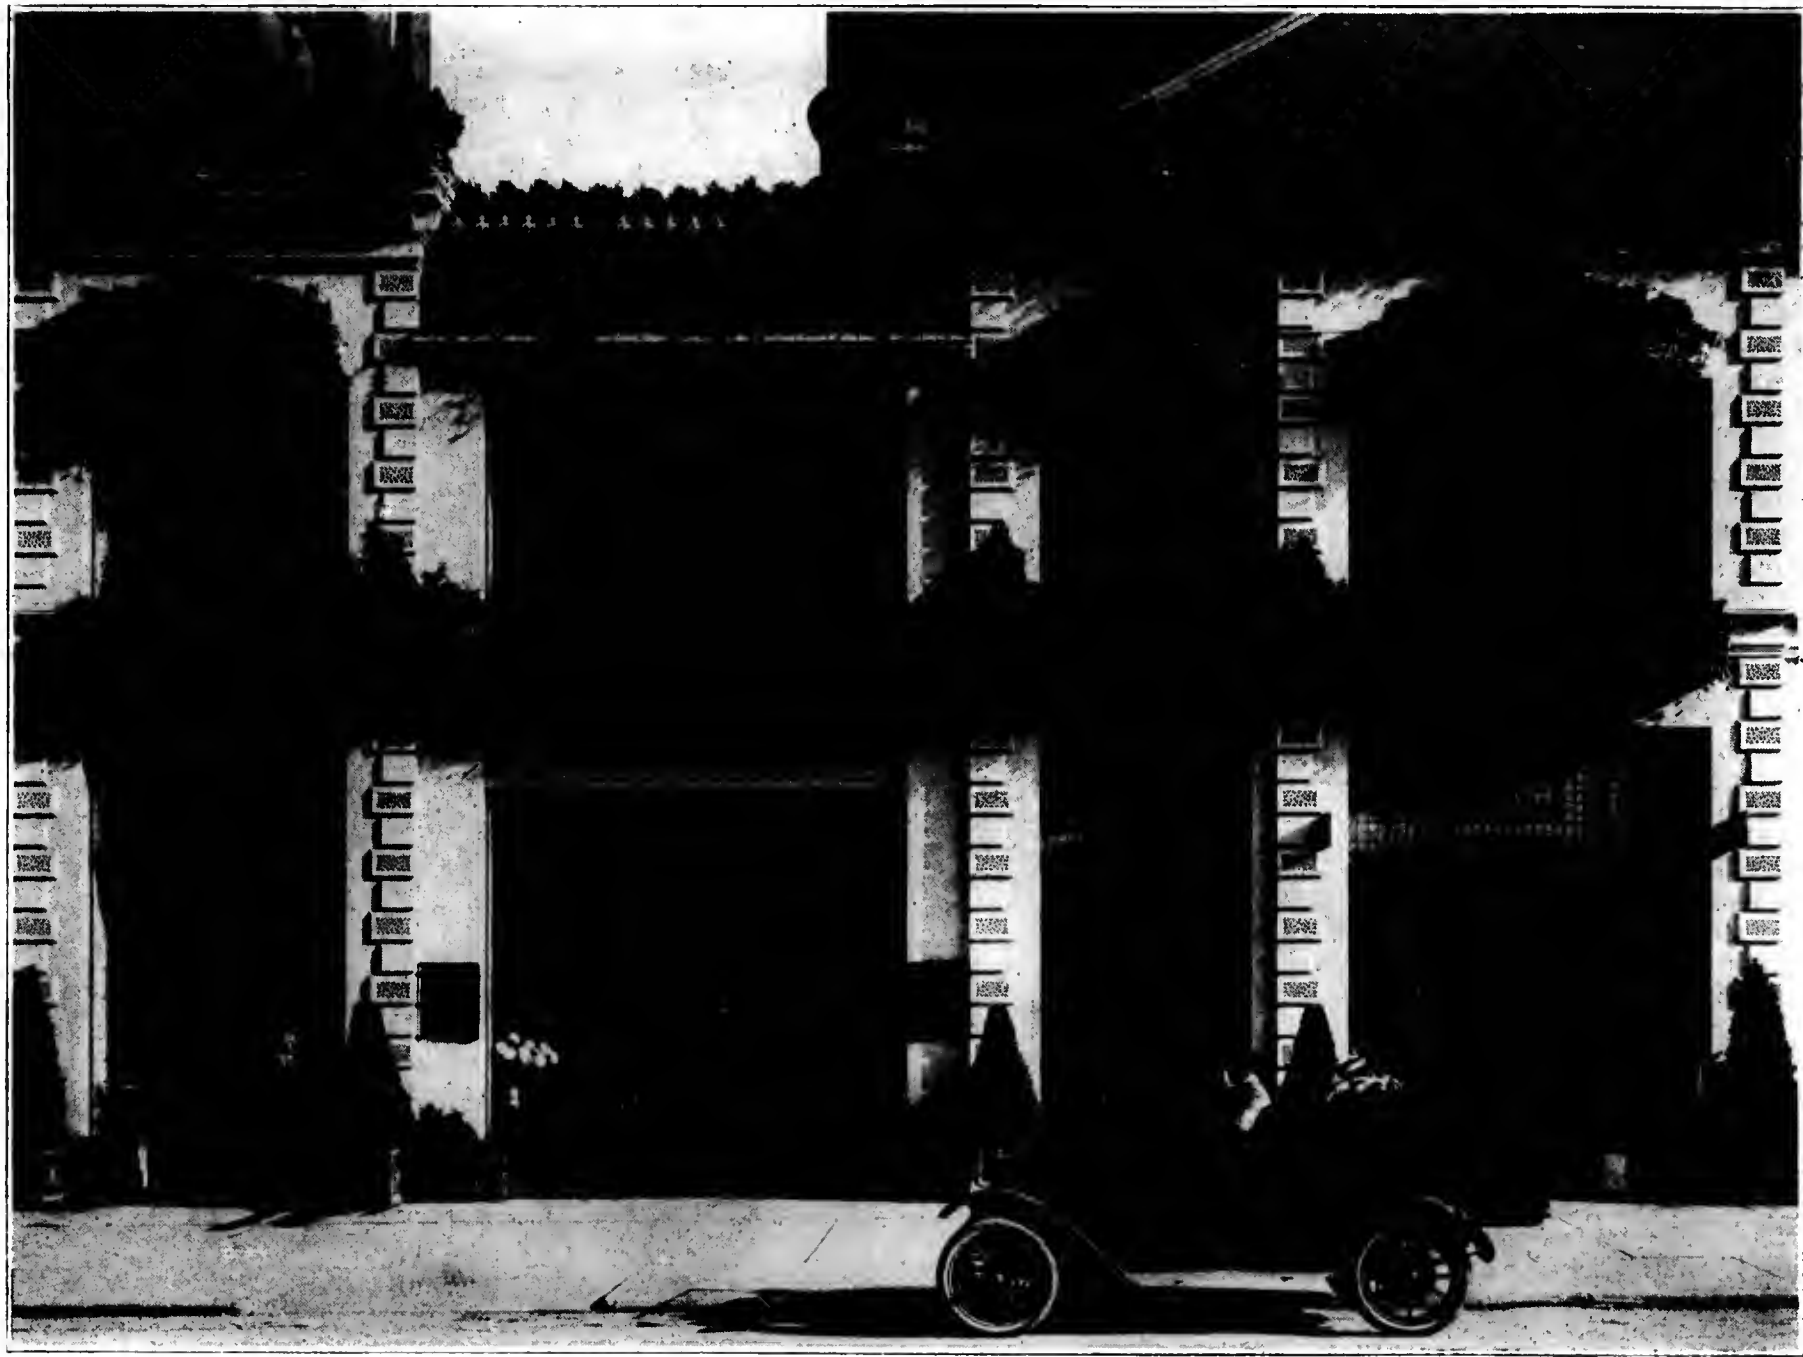

make an appeal that will bring a sale. Baskets for pot plants might be cited as an example. One manufacturer has produced a novelty basket in red, white and blue.

The visit of a buyer, too, gives an opportunity to suggest a more permanent cemetery lot decoration. There is the possibility of a sale of a plant or two, or an order for bedding out or the planting of shrubs, now or later.

Special days are not so numerous that the trade can afford to overlook any of them. Consistent boosting has created some of these days, Mothers' day, for instance. Each recent year has seen what they considered right for their trade and then advertised. The move was a success from the first. The sales have increased each year, until now they make a most welcome addition to the annual statement.

There is a good reason why these medium-priced pieces sell well for Memorial day. That is because the average buyers will not spend much money on flowers to be left in the cemetery. Many others merely want to do their "bit" toward the observance of the day; they do not want the last resting places of their relatives to be conspicuous by the absence of flowers. Neither do they want to expend any considerable sum. Consequently, the retailer should take these facts into consideration when he decides on the price of his Memorial day leader.

It is less than two weeks until Memorial day; thus the time remaining in which to make the "drive" is short. But perhaps because of that fact, the retailer will put more enthusiasm into his efforts and, in consequence, make it a greater success. At any rate, nothing comes to him who merely waits, but success crowns the efforts of the man who goes after what he wants. Memorial day business is worth going after and the man who goes after it along proven lines will get it.

Gallipolis, O.—Having attained local prominence as an amateur grower of flowers, Mrs. E. Morgan has decided to try her luck as a professional.

A MEMORIAL DAY TIP.

How can the retailer increase his Memorial day business? That question has been answered many times in many ways by the resourceful members of the trade. Something has suggested to them a place where a good order could be secured if the appropriateness of a wreath for the grave of some prominent man were only called to the attention of the person, or society, or whatever organization would be glad to pay that man honor.

Such a suggestion is contained in the illustration of the Memorial day decoration of the grave of Ben King, which accompanies the leading article in this issue of The Review. Ben King was a Chicago newspaperman, with a talent for writing humorous verse. He was one of the members of the Chicago Press Club in its earlier days. Although he died twenty-three years ago, the Chicago Press Club allows no Memorial day to pass without honoring his memory in the manner shown.

In every city and town there are clubs and fraternal orders and societies. In a great many of these organizations there is held a particular reverence for the memory of some member or members. The florist, in the smaller cities, especially, probably can call to mind such a man and such an organization. Why not suggest that a wreath bearing the name of the organization would be an appropriate manner of showing the public the esteem in which the departed was held by his fellow members?

The difference between the clerk and the salesman is that one sells flowers to persons who want to buy; the other, by various methods known to his craft, creates business where none was before. There are a lot of salesmen in the florists' trade. If there were not, the business would not have grown as it has in the last ten years.

Consequently a suggestion dropped in the proper place, that is to one who would be interested, in many cases would make the initial sale. Started, that sale would be as regular as the coming of Memorial day, as the custom would be established, and established customs seldom are discarded.

TAKING OUR OWN MEDICINE.

If there is any florist who feels that he will be unable this year to sell all the stock in his greenhouses, it will afford him a splendid opportunity to practice what he preaches.

In olden times it was the motto of William Scott, and his practice, "Wash all you got and hang out all you wash." It was due to his example as much as to any other one factor that Buffalo was famous the country over for its flower beds and the showing of lawn vases, window and porch boxes in its residence districts.

Too few florists undertake to increase their business by making their own premises an object lesson to the neigh-

wedding and are proud of our handiwork, keep them out of sight.

They do not fit in with the Memorial day idea and, while they are sure to be admired, are likely to draw attention from the real matter at hand, buying for Memorial day.

This bit of advice is based on scientific selling fact and is not only true in theory, but has been proven in practice. Nothing should be left undone that will aid in focusing the prospective custom-

a price that will bring buyers to the store—this same leader many times will be the means of making a larger sale. When a man or woman enters a store with the fixed intention of making a purchase, he or she is a ready subject for the real salesman.

Magnolia, galax and cypress leaf wreaths, some decorated with fresh and some with artificial flowers and ferns, made their appearance and through their lasting qualities have become more and more popular. They also gave the florist an opportunity to prepare for the day, as he could make the wreaths in advance and devote his time the days before, and on the day itself, to making sales and delivering the orders already in. In this class of business there is absolutely no loss.

Sprays, however, present a different problem. At the earliest, they cannot be made up until the night before they are to be used.

Wreaths Are Most Popular.

Those who do a big business in wreaths for Memorial day started in a small way and have worked up the sales. They began by making up as many wreaths as they believed they could sell, fixed the quality and price at er's mind upon the significance and importance of the day. This does not mean that there should be anything depressive about the display in the store, but it should be impressive and not suggestive of gaiety.

Newspaper and circular advertising are important factors in this Memorial day campaign. We have used our best judgment in selecting a leader and fixed a price upon it. Now the plan of campaign provides for letting people know about it.

Newspaper space, when the number of readers is taken into consideration, is the least expensive of all forms of advertising. We can tell our story to a greater number of people than with circulars. But if these shots are to help bring victory they must be made to count. They must have the punch that will make the right impression upon the buying public.

Preparing Advertising Copy.

When you prepare your advertising copy, forget that you are talking to a great number of people. Imagine that you have a prospective customer in your store and you want to sell him a wreath, say, for Memorial day. In trying for this sale, you would undoubtedly first call his attention to the noble sentiment of the day; next you would tell him about the special wreaths you have made up for the expression of this sentiment, their lasting qualities, and finally how little one of them will cost.

In other words, you would try to create in this man a desire to possess one of these wreaths. Do the same thing with the men and women who read the newspaper ad—try to create in them a desire. Do not take it for granted that the desire is there and that the mission of your announcement is merely to tell where a wreath may be obtained.

While there is a good profit in the sale of leaders even at an attractive price

make an appeal that will bring a sale. Baskets for pot plants might be cited as an example. One manufacturer has produced a novelty basket in red, white and blue.

The visit of a buyer, too, gives an opportunity to suggest a more permanent cemetery lot decoration. There is the possibility of a sale of a plant or two, or an order for bedding out or the planting of shrubs, now or later.

Special days are not so numerous that the trade can afford to overlook any of them. Consistent boosting has created some of these days, Mothers' day, for instance. Each recent year has seen what they considered right for their trade and then advertised. The move was a success from the first. The sales have increased each year, until now they make a most welcome addition to the annual statement.

There is a good reason why these medium priced pieces sell well for Memorial day. That is because the average buyers will not spend much money on flowers to be left in the cemetery. Many others merely want to do their "bit" toward the observance of the day; they do not want the last resting places of their relatives to be conspicuous by the absence of flowers. Neither do they want to expend any considerable sum. Consequently, the retailer should take these facts into consideration when he decides on the price of his Memorial day leader.

It is less than two weeks until Memorial day; thus the time remaining in which to make the "drive" is short. But perhaps because of that fact, the retailer will put more enthusiasm into his efforts and, in consequence, make it a greater success. At any rate, nothing comes to him who merely waits, but success crowns the efforts of the man who goes after what he wants. Memorial day business is worth going after and the man who goes after it along proven lines will get it.

A MEMORIAL DAY TIP.

How can the retailer increase his Memorial day business? That question has been answered many times in many ways by the resourceful members of the trade. Something has suggested to them a place where a good order could be secured if the appropriateness of a wreath for the grave of some prominent man were only called to the attention of the person, or society, or whatever organization would be glad to pay that man honor.

Such a suggestion is contained in the illustration of the Memorial day decoration of the grave of Ben King, which accompanies the leading article in this issue of The Review. Ben King was a Chicago newspaperman, with a talent for writing humorous verse. He was one of the members of the Chicago Press Club in its earlier days. Although he died twenty three years ago, the Chicago Press Club allows no Memorial day to pass without honoring his memory in the manner shown.

In every city and town there are clubs and fraternal orders and societies. In a great many of these organizations there is held a particular reverence for the memory of some member or members. The florist, in the smaller cities, especially, probably can call to mind such a man and such an organization. Why not suggest that a wreath bearing the name of the organization would be an appropriate manner of showing the public the esteem in which the departed was held by his fellow members?

The difference between the clerk and the salesman is that one sells flowers to persons who want to buy; the other, by various methods known to his craft, creates business where none was before. There are a lot of salesmen in the florists' trade. If there were not, the business would not have grown as it has in the last ten years.

Consequently a suggestion dropped in the proper place, that is to one who would be interested, in many cases would make the initial sale. Started, that sale would be as regular as the coming of Memorial day, as the custom would be established, and established customs seldom are discarded.

TAKING OUR OWN MEDICINE.

If there is any florist who feels that he will be unable this year to sell all the stock in his greenhouses, it will afford him a splendid opportunity to practice what he preaches.

In olden times it was the motto of William Scott, and his practice, "Wash all you got and hang out all you wash." It was due to his example as much as to any other one factor that Buffalo was famous the country over for its flower beds and the showing of lawn vases, window and porch boxes in its residence districts.

Too few florists undertake to increase their business by making their own premises an object lesson to the neighbors. If there will be any surplus stock this spring, use it in embellishing your own place of business.

The accompanying illustration shows how J. H. Small & Sons, at their New York store, show their neighbors how to get away from the barrenness of city streets.

FROM THE SHOULDER.

In The Review for May 3 there appeared an article advocating the adoption of the Shasta daisy as the national flower. I do not object to the Shasta daisy as a national flower, but I do object to the way the writer bestows praise on Luther Burbank. I firmly believe that much of Mr. Burbank's magic has been "built" by write-ups, such as enthusiastic people are always giving him. Many florists have produced new varieties and improved old ones, even as Mr. Burbank has, but the florist-originators did not make so much fuss about it. When Mr. Burbank "puts one over" the people and press go wild over it.

As to Mr. Burbank originating the Shasta daisy, that is all rot. The Shasta daisy was in existence, under another name, and overrunning some parts of the country in a wild state, long before we ever heard of Mr. Burbank. Mr. Burbank has improved the flower and given it the name of Shasta, exactly as many of us have improved carnations, roses, chrysanthemums and vegetables. It would be silly to select a national flower with the intent of honoring Mr. Burbank or anyone else. The proposed national flower must stand for the nation, not for an individual.

BROWN'S SOWBUG WARFARE.

The Review for May 10 contained an article relating how the houses of an Illinois grower had been invaded by an army of sowbugs and how the grower was trying to stamp out the evil. I had a similar visitation about ten years ago and, after failing to exterminate the pests by means of cut potatoes and a mixture of Paris green and meal, I found a remedy that proved most efficacious; in fact, I rid my houses of the bugs within a week.

I mashed a few potatoes and rubbed the pulp on the surfaces of boards. The boards, which were about a foot in width and four feet in length, I placed on the ground underneath the benches, leaving a space between the boards and ground of about the thickness of two pot labels. In a remarkably short time the sowbugs collected by thousands on the underside of the boards. I then took a sprinkling can filled with boiling water and fitted with a fine rose, or cap. I tipped over the boards, one at a time, and turned the hot water on the pests. In this way I killed multitudes of them, and within a week saw the end of them. A few of the bugs collected on the inner boards of the back benches. These I exterminated by cutting slits between the soil and the boards with a knife, and then pouring in the boiling water, after removing the rose from the can. The bugs never came back, but if they do I shall know how to go after them.

FINDS BUSINESS GOOD.

I have noticed articles of dire pessimism and forecasts of hard times appearing in your columns headed, "Growers! How About It?" and feel impelled to make this contribution.

Like almost everyone, I felt that our business would be seriously affected by the declaration of war with the Imperial German Government, but found quite the opposite to be true.

War was declared April 6, Good Friday, but we did an immense Easter business. Though the first couple of days following Easter were quiet, people soon began to flock to the cemetery and as our range here at Mount Pleasant, Mich., is at the cemetery gates, they swarmed in for plants and cut flowers. We had to discontinue delivering, so we could use every available moment to take care of customers.

During the four days preceding Mothers' day, we sold more than 4,000 carnations at 10 cents each, straight, and were forced to sell geranium flowers Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday at 60 cents per dozen. Roses brought $2 to $4 per dozen, geranium plants 25 cents each, or $2.50 per dozen. Most of this business was cash; no delivering.

We are making preparations for a big Memorial day, as it seems the war has helped our business and that of most others in this part of the country.

C. V. Abeele.

North East, Pa.—George Selkregg has built up a large trade in tomatoes in 4-inch square boxes that retail at 50 cents per dozen. He says there is good money in them. Apropos of boxes, he is convinced the time has arrived when retailers must charge for them, as it seems the easiest way to obtain some advance in prices, in view of the high cost of growing. A fine stock of bedding plants is to be seen at North East.

HERE'S A GOOD START!

PLAN FOR TRADE ADJUSTMENTS.

Mass Meeting at Chicago, June 19.

I feel somewhat diffident about bringing this subject before the florists of the central states, but I believe that when the movement is started a great many of our fellow tradesmen will join in and help to make the plan a success. The time is opportune and conditions make it imperative that the florists as a body take some concerted action toward bettering conditions throughout the trade. There is no need at this time for me to go into details about the different woes now confronting every florist, no matter in what branch of the trade he is interested.

Practically all lines of business have at some time during the last twelve months adjusted selling prices and introduced economic measures. Through lack of concerted action the florists have done nothing to counteract the tremendous increase in the costs of the materials used in our vast business.

It seems unbelievable that the florists have taken no action along this line. Many millions of dollars are invested in the central states for the production of plants and flowers. Taken as a whole, the glass area in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Ohio represents a vast acreage. Why should the people representing this enormous investment simply drift along, hoping that conditions will make their own adjustment? Conditions do not adjust themselves, so we must do the adjusting, and I firmly believe that unless the florists get together at once many failures and thousands of dollars in losses will be the inevitable result in the near future.

Help Wanted; Suggestions Wanted.

We should have adjustments on wholesale and retail prices; shipping conditions, such as prompt deliveries; charges for packing and crating materials; which party is responsible for goods consigned, and numerous other questions.

Would not a coöperative meeting, held in the near future, be of interest to all in the trade? Would not that be the proper and prompt way of getting together to discuss these vital questions and make adjustments which will benefit all in the trade?

If the men prominent in the trade will do their share toward making this meeting a success, I feel confident that only good results will come from such a gathering.

I believe we should have a meeting as soon as possible to study the different questions and conditions pertaining to the trade at this time. An ideal time to get together would be June 19 and 20. As we all look to Chicago as the market center, I think the meeting should be held in that city. Chicago is accessible from all points, and we should have a large attendance. The final details of the meeting will be published in an early issue of the trade papers. Should everyone reading this letter attend, what a wonderful meeting we should have!

I wish all of you would pitch in and help me with this gigantic problem. Do not forget the date of the meeting, June 19 and 20, at Chicago.

President of the American Carnation Society.

HANGING OUT THE STARRY BANNER

PATRIOTIC DISPLAYS.

Popular with the Public.

These are the days for hanging out the flag. The starry banner is everywhere and the florist who neglects its use in his decorations fails to ally himself with the spirit of the hour. The flag is an essential feature of every decoration for a banquet or other large gathering—everything except, perhaps, a wedding or a funeral—and the retailer who does not use it in his window and store will be noted by the public as not sharing the enthusiasm of the hour.

Until this year there have been two days annually when many Americans made it a point to hang out the Stars and Stripes. Those days were Memorial day and the Fourth of July. Of the two it is probable that flags were more generally displayed on the former day than on the latter anniversary. That was the time of peace and tranquillity.

In Window and Store.

During the last several weeks, the flag has been much in evidence. It also has taken on a new meaning to those of the younger generation. It is no longer something to admire for its colors, and to sing about, but it has become what it was originally intended to be, a something to inspire the people.

Consequently, the trade should not be laggard. Somewhere other than in the display window there should be an Old Glory, not only on Memorial day itself, but before and after, and until such a time as peace shall be restored.

Supply-House Helps.

W. J. Palmer & Son, of Buffalo, N. Y., display a flag in their new store in a manner that has dignity. Its pole is placed in a standard at the end of the show house and the flag itself falls in graceful folds, as will be seen by the accompanying illustration.

Flowers and the Flag.

One of the supply houses, following the fashions of the hour, has made flags a leading side line these last few weeks and has found a wonderful sale for them, all sizes and qualities and the flags of all nations—almost. Perhaps the better class of flower stores can not sell flags, but they can be used. And if a florist has a cemetery trade he can sell small flags, the cheap, painted kind that stick in the ground, with the flowers to go on the graves. There will be literally millions of them taken to the cemeteries at Memorial day and the decorations of flags will vie with the decorations of flowers.

Baskets and Ribbons.

Another supply house, in response to the popular demand, has created a line of red, white and blue baskets, etc. With these and with flags a patriotic window can be decorated to stop practically every passer-by.

A ribbon house has a red, white and blue ribbon in various widths, all the way from baby ribbon up to the wide ribbon used on big baskets and wreaths. Another has flags in ribbon rolls, from which the florist can cut them, one at a time, with shears, to go into corsage bouquets or boxes of flowers.

Another supply house is developing a line of silk flags on hollow tin poles, with an electric fan at the base of each pole to force a current of air through it to keep the flag waving in the breeze of unseen source. These will be excellent for innumerable decorative purposes.

There are dozens of ways in which the ingenious florist can hang out the flag in his store and in his work for the public.

Erie, Pa.—C. W. Zuch & Sons make every foot of space return its proportion to the grand total. Shipping to several markets, they secure the best returns. Complaints are heard from some growers that the commission houses, as the southern shipments begin to arrive, shut down on the northern men. In this they compare unfavorably with the cut flower commission houses, which invariably endeavor to handle the product to the best advantage of all concerned.

PROBLEM OF GETTING A FUEL SUPPLY

THE SCARCITY OF COAL.

When It Should Be Plentiful.

Can you buy any coal—and get it delivered? If you can, it is no flattery to say that you are a man of some influence. While people are clamoring for an opportunity to procure their supply of fuel for next winter, the dealers are doling it out in tiny apportionments that scarcely suffice for the most urgent present needs. It is of no avail to remind the dealers that this is the season when coal ought to be most abundant. Neither is it of any avail to tell them that “the nation,” according to some lover of figures, “has enough coal cast of the Rocky mountains to last it upward of 3,000 years, and the mines have, apparently, a productive capacity of far more than 150,000,000 tons per year in excess of what the people are going to need.”

The coal journals tell us that “the rising price tendencies on coal are alarming the government, the consumers and the producers alike.” Florists and other users of fuel would probably not be ashamed to confess that they have been alarmed for some time. However optimistic they may be, their optimism feeds no boilers. Yet they may be encouraged, rather than further depressed, by the knowledge that the government and the mine operators now are sharing in the alarm. If the government and the operators realize the seriousness of the situation so fully as to act in unison and with sufficient energy, the trouble may be somewhat relieved. Let us hope so, and try to be of good cheer.

A Bitter Disappointment.

One of the most disconcerting aspects of the matter is, that the clouds of disaster are thickest just when they were expected to disappear. The gloom seems to be untimely, unnatural and awe-inspiring, like total darkness at noon. Although, in normal circumstances, fuel would be cheapest and most plentiful at this season of the year, the conditions now are reversed. In the bitter cold of winter the florist's one comforting reflection was: “If I can just worry along for a while, then the mild weather will come, with an abundance of cheap fuel, so that I can fill my bins for the next winter. Bins—yes, I'll build more bins and fill them all. I'll never be caught again.” Alas! How sadly he has been disappointed!

Searching for Causes.

There is not much that is new in the supposed cause of the scarcity of coal, though some new elements, such as the war, have their bearings on the case. It is chiefly the same old story—only much worse—of shortage of cars and labor. In some localities, we are told, the proportion of available cars is only about thirty per cent of the ordinary car supply at this season. “One vital cause of this depletion of cars,” say some of the authorities, “is the subtraction of coal cars from the coal trade to engage in the carriage of pig iron and steel products, lumber, cement, automobiles, sand and broken stone.”

The lack of laborers at the mines can be readily appreciated, since a similar difficulty exists in many other lines of trade. In the various coal districts it is estimated that from fifteen to thirty-five per cent of the laborers have deserted the mines and connected themselves with other industries. One of the principal reasons for this loss of men, it is stated, is that the operators have not been able to give them steady employment because the mines have been closed for lack of cars. The men sought more regular work elsewhere.

Finding a Scapegoat.

If that is correct, it would thus appear that the inadequacy of the means of transportation is the immediate cause known, of course, that the Federal Trade Commission is conducting an inquiry, with the control of prices as the final object in view. And multitudes of suffering people fervently wish success to the commission's labors.

The mine operators, on their part, are proposing that “such miners as wish to enlist in the army shall be allowed to do so, but shall be returned with a full military status to the coal mines to do their duty there.” The operators are also suggesting that “conditions be returned to normal by the return of coal cars to the coal trade.”

Not only is the Federal Trade Commission carrying on an investigation, as already stated, but the Council of National Defense also is giving practical attention to the subject, acting through the committee on coal production. Of course it is not the aim of this committee to expedite the movement of coal for war purposes only, without regard to the ordinary requirements of the public, since the successful prosecution of the war depends largely on the general prosperity of the country. But the committee intimates that a certain amount of regulation and restriction of the distribution of coal may become necessary, for the greatest good of all concerned.

Regulating Coal Distribution.

A warning of such a possible necessity was issued recently by Francis S. Peabody, of Chicago, chairman of the committee referred to. He says: “If the demand continues to increase it may be necessary that active steps be taken to confine the distribution and use of coal to those activities which are more nearly vital to the welfare and protection of the nation.” Mr. Peabody continues: “We believe the first essential toward an increased production of coal is a close coöperation between mine employer and mine employee, and the United Mine Workers of America and the mine operators in several districts have pledged their services.

“The total production of coal throughout the country has been seriously curtailed by difficulties in transportation service and unequal distribution of cars. We urge upon the operators that they pledge themselves to load all cars obtainable in the shortest time after they become available, and that they urge their customers to release these cars at the earliest possible date. If it is found that in any districts surplus coal is obtainable at this time over and above the actual needs, it should be divided as equally as possible and stored in the bins of the ultimate consumer.”

Realizing the trend of conditions, Mr. Lutz last year began making preparation for the spring drive against the high cost of living. of most of the trouble. Probably, however, the railroad companies can easily pass the blame along to some other scapegoat.

As a natural consequence—or is it entirely natural?—of existing conditions, prices still are soaring. They are panicky and uncertain—uncertain except in the one particular that they show no sign of dropping. “The smokeless market,” it is said, “was back May 1 to what it was February 1.” But the prices February 1 were too miscellaneous to be a definite basis of comparison. Other bituminous coals are climbing. The prices of anthracite, as far as published, seem to include the customary monthly advance of 10 cents per ton, plus some other extras, such as “a 25 cents per ton increase to cover the concessions recently made to the miners.”

DOINGS OF THE FLORISTS' CLUBS

CHICAGO CLUB DISCUSSES COAL.

A Good Meeting.

The coal situation, the national garden movement, local and trade economics, the food question, these were the principal items which occupied the attention of the Chicago Florists' Club at the monthly meeting held at the Briggs House, May 10. The interest of the meeting was enhanced by the presence of a number of visitors, who gave interesting talks on the fields of their special endeavor. Among these were George F. Stahmer, president of the Fort Dearborn Coal Co.; E. W. McCollough and Mr. Sieber, coal men; B. E. Gage, landscape adviser and chairman of the conference committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Harry C. Mobley, chief of city garden movement, and Edward R. Newmann.

The Association of Commerce.

B. E. Gage, who was the first speaker, took under consideration the florists' place in the Association of Commerce. Until recently, he said, florists had been included in the miscellaneous division of the association, but because of the large amount of business done by them annually, the investments represented, etc., it was decided to put them in a subdivision of their own, whereby they could obtain better and more efficient service. R. Schiller was appointed chairman of the committee, other members being Leonard Vaughan, H. Van Gelder, of Percy Jones, Inc., and B. F. Gage, then of Peterson's Nursery. Mr. Gage pointed out that the importance of this subdivision lay in the fact that when thus organized any matters concerning the good of the florists' trade, bills introduced at Springfield, etc., stood a much better chance of attention than they otherwise would. If the Florists' Club would throw weight behind this division, Mr. Gage suggested, a great deal more could be accomplished. R. Schiller was appointed chairman of a club committee to get new members into the Association of Commerce, he to choose four associates.

Mr. Stahmer Talks Coal.

George F. Stahmer was the next speaker. In referring to a coal mine, the purchase of which was recently considered by the club, he admonished that it was well to be careful in this matter, as it is a matter of common knowledge that coal mine owners all through the country are trying to unload their mines at the present time. In reviewing the coal situation as it is today, Mr. Stahmer pointed out the following facts: January 1, 1916, there was on hand 60,000,000 tons of soft coal. During 1916 there was produced 509,000,000 tons, all of which was consumed during the year, so that April 1, 1917, there was practically no tonnage on hand, all the docks being swept clean, a condition which has not existed for many years. The coming year there will be needed about 600,000,000 tons of soft coal, the additional tonnage being required by the navy and foreign ships coaling here. Miners in the United States work on an average 230 days out of 300 possible working days, and they do only a certain amount of work, no matter what pay they receive, the tendency being to work less in proportion as the wages are higher. Weather conditions do not enter into the coal situation, because the weather averages up about the same each year, as statistics show. There is at present, however, an exceptionally heavy demand because of the unusually cool month of May. Aside from this, the railroads are stocking up, the demands of the government are heavy, there are great shipments to the lakes for the docks, and factories are taking in coal heavily. Maximum prices consequently are prevailing. These conditions will continue until June 1, when some committee get in touch with a few coal dealers on the subject, for, he concluded, the latter could save florists much money in this manner if they were given the opportunity.

E. W. McCollough and Mr. Sieber, who were next called on, endorsed what Mr. Stahmer had said, stating that he had covered the situation, leaving nothing to add.

The Garden Movement.

Edward R. Newmann spoke on the garden movement, suggesting that florists plant cabbages, lettuce and other vegetables in flats not now used. Gardening as a civic proposition, he said, should become a permanent thing.

Harry C. Mobley followed with a few comments on the great need for donations of vegetable plants. Although it is true, he said, that many who receive these plants might not make good use of them, many on the other hand would, and cooperation to relieve the national burden is needed. There are in Chicago 62,000 acres of land, he said, which have been surveyed by his division and which would be capable of producing $7,000,000 worth of food annually. If florists would help to ameliorate this condition by furnishing plants, he said that he, through the machinery of his department, would be glad to undertake the distribution.

Peter Reinberg, in endorsing Mr. Mobley's suggestion, said he believes there is no florist in the vicinity of Chicago who would not be glad to help. As for himself, he said, he had already bought and planted seeds for this purpose at his greenhouses.

George Asmus and Fred Lautenschlager added a few words in approval of this movement, and upon the conclusion of the subject President Amling appointed Fred Lautenschlager as chairman of a committee of five, other members to be selected by him, to foster this movement.

Miscellaneous Business.

Because of his illness, H. G. Maclellan, chairman of the coal committee, sent in a request asking to be relieved of his duties. Charles Hunt was appointed chairman to succeed him and E. Ollinger a member of the committee.

Applications for membership were received from H. E. Humiston, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., and from Frank Felke, Gross Point, Ill.

Fred Lautenschlager reported a profit of $540 on the Mothers' day posterette sales.

The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand April 1, of $550.64; receipts for membership during April, $63; disbursements, $53.89, leaving a balance of $559.75 May 1.

NEW YORK CLUB MEETING.

The monthly meeting of the New York Florists' Club was held May 14. One hundred members were present. President Stump was in the chair.

The exhibits of cut flowers were confined to specialties and they were a the situation will undoubtedly ease up and prices consequently will be lower.

The Time to Buy.

Taking these facts into consideration, Mr. Stahmer suggested that it would be wise for florists to take in at present only enough coal to keep them going and to stock up between June 10 and July 10. He further suggested that at times such as these it is unwise to change coal dealers if the firms dealt with last year proved reliable, for, he said, it is always unwise to swap horses in the middle of the stream. That those who pay their bills promptly always receive the best service and the lowest prices is an unquestioned fact, and he advised florists to bear this in mind. Then, also, it is of great importance to be certain that the right kind and size of coal is being used, much money being lost annually because of mistakes in this important matter. To ascertain whether or not the right coal is being used, Mr. Stahmer suggested that it would be profitable to have blanks printed and distributed bearing suitable questions and have the secretary of the club or beautiful display. George T. Schunemann, of Rockville Center, N. Y., staged several varieties of Spencer sweet peas of superb quality, for which he received high commendation. Superintendent Hogg, of Prospect park, Brooklyn, exhibited pelargoniums in variety, for which he received the club's thanks.

P. W. Popp's exhibit of pansies in many colors and of exceptional size was highly commended. M. Van Waveren & Sons, of Hillegom, Holland, showed an extensive variety of Darwin and single early tulips, narcissi, etc., grown by H. Langeler, of New Dorp, Staten Island. The firm announced that at this address in ten days they would have an extensive collection of Darwin, breeder and Rembrandt tulips in bloom and on exhibition.

C. B. Weathered reported the spring flower show produced a net profit of about $3,500.

Vice-president Fiesser reported a month's postponement of the meeting of the board of trustees.

S. Van Riper, of Dundee Lake, N. J., was elected to membership and the following names were proposed: D. J. Pappas, Eric Otton, R. M. Guido, Fred Bergman, John Featherstone and S. Kahn.

The deaths of P. L. Bogart and Charles E. Weber were reported and the president was instructed to appoint committees to draw up suitable resolutions.

A letter to the secretary from the Bureau of Employment and Department of Labor was read. It suggested garden work for women and girls during the continuance of the war.

F. R. Pierson, chairman of the ways and means committee, announced the intention of raising $10,000 for the entertainment of the members of the S. A. F. and said he already had in a few hours raised $2,000. A. L. Miller reported progress for the S. A. F. entertainment committee and several surprises and the intention to use up a good share of the $10,000 by his committee in entertaining the visitors. L. W. C. Tuthill spoke in behalf of the souvenir program and said it would be "a book to keep for generations." R. J. Irwin told of securing Thumm's bowling alleys for the bowling tournament. Messrs. O'Mara and Esler also spoke for the reception and transportation committees.

A lecture by Otto Thilow was announced for the June meeting.

Dr. Henry Clay Lint gave an interesting address on "Is Prepared Humus a Substitute for Stable Manure?" Considerable discussion followed and the thanks of the club were accorded the speaker.

The usual buffet lunch was furnished by Phil Kessler and his committee.

With the great success achieved this year, there almost certainly will be in future a widespread use of publicity for Mothers' day and the other special flower days as they come around.

THE ST. LOUIS COLISEUM.

The members of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce have voted overwhelmingly, 73 to 672, against continuing support of the Coliseum. The announcement was made May 15, by Paul V. Bunn, secretary and general manager.

The plans for the National Flower Show and S. A. F. convention at St. Louis in March, 1918, are imperiled by the financial status of the Coliseum there, which has been engaged for the event.

It appears the building represents an investment of more than $350,000. During the eight years the building has been in use it has been open 578 afternoons and 730 nights. Its gross earnings have been $320,418.88. The expense of operation has been $149,129.85, with overhead expenses in the way of ground rent, interest, taxes, insurance, etc., of $202,337.27, a total of $351,467.12, leaving a deficit of $31,048.24, which has been met from time to time by subscription, part of the funds having been provided by the Chamber of Commerce. The directors of the company feel that it is unjust that they should continue to personally indorse notes to meet the current deficits from time to time. They have appealed to the Chamber of Commerce to assume the responsibility of meeting future deficits of the Coliseum in the event they should occur. A committee of the Chamber of Commerce brought in two reports on the matter. The majority recommended that the Chamber of Commerce do not attempt to further finance the Coliseum company, while a minority recommended that the present small deficit be taken care of and the company financed until a new building is available. The majority report has been sustained by a mail ballot of the members and it is said it will mean that the Coliseum will revert to the lessors of the ground and that it will be dismantled at once.

The Coliseum has been engaged for a number of conventions, etc., which may not come to St. Louis if the building is not available. It was stated by the committee that acted for the Chamber of Commerce that the most important of these conventions is that of the Society of American Florists, with its National Flower Show for the spring of 1918. It is hoped that arrangements can be made whereby the building will not be demolished until another year has elapsed, but there are no plans to that end announced.

TOO MUCH MUSTARD.

A retailer who does a large popular price business says the mustard color coats are the worst he ever has encountered; he has not yet succeeded in finding any flowers that are not "killed" on these garments. Violets are best.

Wilmington, O.—No matter how odd it may seem, considering the times, Erskine R. Hayes says he intends to abandon the grocery business for the florists' business.

North Milwaukee, Wis.—Work on a new pipe-frame greenhouse, 36x160 feet, was begun by Riebs Bros. May 14. The material was furnished by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago.

MOTHERS' DAY ECHOES

FOR THE NEXT MOTHERS' DAY.

While the trade now is bending its energies toward Memorial day business, the success of Mothers' day is still fresh in the mind of every florist. And while it is fresh, it is opportune to call attention to a unique bit of advertising that can be used next year.

A circular in the shape of a card was sent to all of his customers and to those whose names he had on his mailing list, by William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y., and was found to be a business-getter. On one side was a ruled space for an order. On the other was the following:

"Mothers' day—next Sunday. For the best mother that ever lived—your own, we are going to have two especial boxes at $1 each.

"One will contain two large bunches of beautiful sweet peas, pink, lavender or white.

"The other will consist of a dozen handsome roses, either pink, yellow or white, whichever you please.

"Let us have your order as early as possible and the same will be delivered with your card the first thing Sunday morning."

Enclosed with the circular was a card bearing in colors a bunch of sweet peas and at the top was printed "To Mother," with a space for a tender message to go with the flowers.

Not only did this circular and card call attention to Mothers' day and the special boxes the florist had prepared, but it placed in the hands of the recipient the means of ordering and a card to send with the flowers.

Retailers would do well to cut this out and paste it in the scrapbooks. Mothers' day will be a bigger selling day each year and suggestions of how to help bring the increase are valuable.

NO WONDER IT GREW.

It is several years since The Review first called the attention of the trade to the opportunity that lay in the new anniversary called Mothers' day and the effort to exploit the day has grown each year, but it has taken until 1917 to get the work adequately under way. This year, for the first time, Mothers' day really has been advertised. Almost everywhere the trade has joined in the undertaking to make this a flower day of the first magnitude. Dozens of original ideas have been tried and it is no wonder the results have been far ahead of previous records.

As an instance of one of the things that never have been done before, the nine members of the F. T. D. in Chicago chipped in to advertise to get some orders to send to F. T. D. members out of town. This is the way the ad read:

OUR ALIBI IS ESTABLISHED

In a recent issue The Review stated that the trade is justified in opposing the absolute quarantine now being advocated, for the reason that dangerous insects or diseases have come to this country otherwise than with the plants, bulbs and seeds customarily imported by the trade. In this letter Entomologist Fracker proves the truth of that statement, although such was not his purpose.

Y attention has been attracted to an editorial in a recent issue of The Review entitled "We Have an Alibi." In this editorial the statement is made: "None of the devastating diseases, not one of the injurious insects, came to this country on stock imported by florists, nurserymen or seedsmen. We have a perfect alibi." As this statement is incorrect in fact and still more so in implication, I hope that you will consider the following statements worthy of publication in your valued periodical.

The plant material handled by florists and nurserymen may be roughly grouped into evergreen and deciduous shade trees, citrus and rosaceous fruits and greenhouse plants. For each of these five groups one insect or one disease, or both, stands out as being pre-eminently destructive.

Dangers to Shade Trees.

The greatest danger being caused at the present time in the United States to deciduous shade trees by any fungous disease is that caused by the chestnut blight, which authorities say will in time completely wipe out the chestnuts of the eastern United States. This blight was introduced by a nursery company, with headquarters at Chicago, on a dwarf chestnut tree from Asia. From its original location it spread both by natural means and by the assistance of nurserymen. The most serious insect pests of this class of material are the gypsy and brown-tail moths, which, while they were not brought in for the first time by nurserymen, have been introduced repeatedly by them in recent years and have become established in various localities west of the Hudson river, owing to such introduction. It has only been by the most radical methods of destruction and control that these western outbreaks have been checked. It was our good fortune that information in regard to the remarkably serious nature of these moths became so widespread before they were introduced by the importation of plants that every effort was made to control the outbreaks elsewhere.

A disease which is already the most serious one affecting any evergreen tree in New England, and which, if uncontrolled, is likely to make the growing of white pine absolutely impossible in the northern and eastern United States, is the white pine blister. This is almost, if not quite, completely distributed throughout the New England states, Massachusetts being most severely attacked. It is a disease for the control of which the last Congress appropriated $300,000 and bills totaling more than this sum are now pending before state legislatures. These amounts indicate how important this Asiatic fungus is considered by those who have seen its work.

Origin of White Pine Blister.

From Asia the white pine blister was brought to Germany by two German nurseries and it has been shipped by them to a large number of different nurseries in this country, including several on whose grounds it has been established in New York, others in Pennsylvania and others in Connecticut. It was introduced into Wisconsin and Minnesota by one shipment to a Wisconsin man through a large Illinois firm that imported directly from Germany, and by another shipment to a Minnesota nurseryman, the origin of which has not yet been determined.

No imported insect stands out as being strikingly injurious to evergreen trees. The one which promises to be the most serious is the pine shoot moth, Evetria buoliana, which has become established in New Jersey and Long Island and through importations from Europe to New Jersey and New York nurseries.

On citrus trees the citrus canker, which has resulted in the complete destruction of many thousands of dollars' worth of citrus orchards in the southern states, stands out above all others. While its origin is not definitely known, the nurserymen by no means "have an alibi" in regard to it. No suggestion has been made by nurserymen or any others that it could have been introduced in any other way. We do know that it was introduced into Florida on nursery stock from Texas and probably from Japan, and that it spread by means of shipments of nursery stock.

Whatever its method of introduction into this country was, it must have come in on growing citrus stock imported either by a nurseryman or someone else acting in the capacity of a nurseryman at the time.

Scale on Citrus Trees.

The two serious insect pests of citrus in California, according to California Experiment Station Bulletins 222 and 223, are the black scale and the red or orange scale. Of these the first is a European species, the date and method of introduction into this country being unknown.

The red scale, Chrysomphalus aurantii Mask., seems to be a Chinese species which was introduced probably not more than half a century ago into Australia and New Zealand. It arrived in this country in one of the "hothouses" of San Francisco, and an infested tree was sold by a florist to a certain L. J. Rose, thus being introduced into San Gabriel, Cal. At the same time six infested lemon trees were brought from Australia by Don Mateo Keller, although it does not appear whether this second gentleman named was a nurseryman or not. At any rate, the florist's connection with the case does not seem to be doubtful.

The only seriously destructive, widespread, introduced insect attacking rosaceous fruits whose origin is known is the San Jose scale. This is the only dangerous insect concerning whose introduction nurserymen actually do have an "alibi," so far as I am aware. In this case the only factor for which the nurserymen seem to be responsible consists in the efficient distribution of the pest to all parts of the United States.

It is particularly diffi-

THE TRADE'S ATTITUDE

[As stated by a committee of the S. A. F.]

During the last few years a small group of entomologists have been agitating for a quarantine on importations. A resolution, broad in character, requesting the Federal Horticultural Board to take action, failed of their purpose and the American Forestry Association was appealed to. This body has gone on record as favoring "the principle of absolute quarantine on plants, trees and nursery stock."

The legislative committee of the S. A. F. has prepared a brief in which it is declared that:

Such legislation, even if it were modified, is quite unnecessary, and would injuriously affect the interests of the great majority of S. A. F. members. It would not only stop the importation of such raw materials as valley pips, Japanese lily bulbs, Manetti stock, Dutch bulbs, etc., but azaleas, bay trees and every kind of nursery stock. It would stop the importations of palms, also the seeds with which to grow them; of dracenas, also the canes necessary to produce the plants ourselves. It would stop the importation of new varieties of roses, chrysanthemums, begonias, ferns, etc. It would put a Chinese wall around these United States in a horticultural sense, followed no doubt later by a similar wall around each state.

Comparatively few of our state entomologists or inspectors favor this panicky legislation. They realize that new or dangerous insect pests or plant diseases can come only from remote parts of the world, from which no commercial importations come. They realize that florists and nurserymen import almost exclusively from Europe and civilized countries which have a most efficient inspection service. That importations are now made only under the closest restrictions, that each shipment is inspected before shipment and again at final destination, that a permit must be secured to make each importation and that to each package must be attached a tag showing all inspection details to the Federal Horticultural Board, which has almost arbitrary control over plant importations, including the power of quarantine. Besides, if any stray bugs should come they are known ones and the remedy for them known also.

cult to trace the origin of the insect pests affecting florists' stock, for this material is shipped rather freely from greenhouse to greenhouse in other states and other countries. We do happen to know the origin of the two orchid-infesting insects, Cholus cattleyæ and Isosoma orchidearum, both of which were introduced by florists from South America. As the white fly is also a greenhouse insect which was known for years in Europe before being found in the United States, it is believed to have been introduced by florists. While there is no proof, the florists certainly do not have an "alibi" in regard to it.

If Restrictions Were Removed.

The editorial concerned is, however, more important in its implication than in its actual statement. One could easily draw the apparent conclusion of the gentleman who called the editorial to my attention, that since nurserymen and florists are not "in any way responsible for any of our present troubles," the free introduction of plant material from outside the United States is permissible and would not result in injury. That this conclusion is far from the facts in the case is shown by the published lists of insects and diseases being intercepted each season on nursery stock and other plants. These lists show the introduction of the gypsy moth and the brown-tail moth in large numbers, the appearance of the larva of the narcissus fly in bulbs from England, citrus canker on citrus from Java and the Philippine Islands, the European pine shoot moth on many shipments from Holland, and hundreds of insects whose powers of injury in this country are as yet unknown. In most cases these insects are being brought into this country in sufficient numbers to make their establishment almost certain if they were not intercepted, and there is every probability that a single importation of any new disease of the rank of the white pine blister or citrus canker or chestnut blight or the new poplar disease, which has just arrived, would result in an outbreak in this country, becoming disastrous in time if not checked.

S. B. Fracker,
Assistant Entomologist, Wisconsin Department of Agriculture.

surprisingly strong growth. Keep some fish in all aquatic pools, to keep the larvæ of mosquitoes and other insects in subjection.

A few desirable miscellaneous aquatics to use are: Cyperus alternifolius; Limnanthemum indicum, or water snowflake; Eichhornia aurea, or water hyacinth; Aponogeton distachyus, or cape pond weed; Pontederia cordata, or pickerel weed; Limnocharis Humboldtii, or water poppy; Myriophyllum proserpinacoides, or parrot's feather; Peltandra virginica, or water arum; Pistia Stratiotes, or water lettuce, and Zizania aquatica, or wild rice.

Water gardening is one of the pleasing forms of gardening, and nothing gives greater satisfaction during the hot months. The florist who has a small pond or tank near his home, in which some of the nymphæas and miscellaneous aquatics can be grown, will find this is a splendid way to advertise this branch of floriculture, which has wonderful possibilities before it.

Winter-Flowering Begonias.

If you carried over any Lorraine, Cincinnati, Melior or Mrs. Peterson begonias, they will now be sending up a good crop of cuttings from the base, if they were headed back and rested as advised some time ago. These cuttings are succulent and will root readily now. They never make big, bushy plants, like those raised from leaf cuttings, but will be fine for small pots and the demand for these invariably exceeds the supply. Keep the earlier begonias potted along before they can become potbound. Use plenty of flaky leaf-mold in their compost and give them a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees, with only a moderate amount of shade. The plants will persist in flowering. Keep the flowers picked off, to relieve the plants.

Stevias.

Are you sure you have an adequate stock of stevias for next season? If not, you still can root some cuttings and have nice stock before fall. The plan generally adopted with stevias is to plant outdoors, dig up and pot in the fall. For the country florist who plans to grow a few dozen plants a good plan is to grow them in pots right through the season, plunging the pots to their brims in a bed of coal ashes. This means some additional watering, but insures splendid plants in the fall, and the work of digging up, potting, shading and getting the plants established is entirely saved.

Bouvardias.

About the end of May is a safe time to plant out bouvardias in an open, sunny spot where there is a light but rich soil. In the case of B. Humboldtii, plants of which usually are carried over for several years, I find it best to keep this stock tolerably dry for several months after blooming and shake out and prune back the plants before setting them out. The shoots are also reduced in number when a few inches long; then there are few blind growths. There will be many flowerless shoots if disbudding is not practiced. I only figure on leaving bouvardias outdoors about nine or ten weeks. In that time they make a surprising growth and they can be either potted or benched when lifted.

Memorial Day Crops.

The coming Memorial day will unquestionably be the greatest we ever have had, on account of the martial spirit that is now prevailing. People may talk economy and will no doubt practice it in many ways, but I make the prediction that sales of flowers for Memorial day will break all records. The great question is whether we shall have the flowers necessary for our customers at anything like reasonable prices. Over a large part of the United States the season is and has been cold, sunless and late, and outdoor crops which can ordinarily be depended upon will be unobtainable. Such greenhouse crops as gypsophila, feverfew, stocks, candytuft, lilies, spiræas, irises, gladioli, etc., are necessarily late and every effort should be made at once to hurry these laggards. Most of them will stand a brisk heat for a few days, provided they can have a little cooling off before the crops are cut. Candytuft, for instance, if given some shade, can be forced hard and not damaged. Of course bulbous plants, such as gladioli and irises, in addition to spiræas, will stand a lot of heat. Remember that flowers such as those named are valuable for Memorial day, but have poor sales later.

Dutch bulbous flowers that are still in cellars or pits can be held in good condition unless hot weather intervenes. Darwin tulips promise to be specially useful this season. In the more northerly states these latter bulbs will hardly be in season, but farther south, where ordinarily they have passed as an outdoor crop, they will be in season. Flowers cut before being too much expanded will keep for several days in a cold cellar. Home trade with retailers is strong for Memorial day and every effort should be made to get as large a stock of flowers as possible at home, for wholesale prices will undoubtedly be high.

Aquatic Plants.

Aquatic gardening shows a steady increase. People are appreciating more and more the value and beauty of water plants. In the smallest of home grounds it is easily possible to make a small concrete pond or sink half barrels in the ground. On some grounds natural ponds may exist. In such the nelumbiums, or nymphæas, can be planted out in rich mud. In concrete tanks or ponds, boxes or tubs can be sunk, containing a mixture of good fibrous loam and cow manure. I have used boxes made of 2-inch plank, fourteen inches deep and three feet square, in tanks to good advantage. If the pools are smaller and more shallow, smaller boxes can be used, but the water should cover them to a depth of two or three inches. After planting the nymphæas, give the surfaces of the boxes a coating of coarse sand. This will help to prevent the compost from discoloring the water. Such nymphæas as odorata; odorata rosea, the Cape Cod pink pond lily; odorata sulphurea, and all the Marliacea hybrids, especially chromatella, albida and rosea, are good; so are the varieties of N. Laydekeri. For little pools, aquariums or tubs try N. pygmæa, which carries great numbers of flowers, two to two and one-half inches in diameter.

Nelumbium speciosum, the Egyptian lotus, is the hardiest and most easily grown of the lotus family. It can be grown in half barrels, but to be seen at its best should be planted out in rich mud. In such compost it will make

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

June 1 has been set aside for the annual outdoor meeting of the American Rose Society at the National Rose Test Garden, Arlington Farms, Washington, D. C. Appropriate exercises have been arranged, including addresses by J. Horace McFarland, by a member of the Department of Agriculture, by an appointee of the Citizens' Association, which is federated, and others. All in the trade are cordially invited to be present, as the rose garden, containing now between 400 and 500 varieties, promises to be at its best.

Robert Pyle, Chairman, Washington Rose Garden Committee.

MR. BUETTNER'S SEEDLINGS.

Nearly everyone who keeps in touch with trade affairs knows Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill., as one of the most astute men in the business. He is recognized as careful, keen, conservative, a good grower, one of the best of flower show judges, a forceful man who, while he came originally from Hanover, has many of the traits of the Missourian. Probably there is no grower who depends less on guesswork. It is well known, also, that Mr. Buettner was one of the first of the large growers for the Chicago market to prove that carnations do not repay careful culture as well as roses do. Of course he dropped carnations and his range of 200,000 feet has been all in roses for several years. Mr. Buettner was the first large Chicago grower to drop Beauty, years ago; to drop Bride and Maid, to cut out Richmond, to jettison White Killarney, and now the whole Killarney tribe soon will know his place no more.

These facts are a matter of common knowledge among the men who see, or listen, and remember. But it is not a matter of everyday information that Emil Buettner has become infected with the contagion that has spread among our best men so rapidly of late—he has taken to wielding the camel's-hair.

It really is not so new, as heretofore the results have not been such as to attract attention, but now there are about 200 seedlings at Park Ridge that no keen-eyed visitor will overlook. The mothers of the broods, for there are two of them, are Sunburst and Ophelia, the latter being the variety on which nine-tenths of the rose seeds have been grown in America the last three years.

Mr. Buettner may never send out a novelty. He is not one of those who think, because a thing is his, it is better than anything else on earth; he knows it for what it really is. But if it should happen that of the 200 seedling plants something should develop that he would be willing to send out with his name, the Buettner rose will get as wide a trial as any first-year rose ever sent out in America.

BEAUTY CUTTINGS TURN BLACK.

Can you tell us what makes our Beauty cuttings in the sand turn black? Is it possible that improper watering, either too much moisture or not enough, is the cause of this trouble? We intend to put a batch of Beauty cuttings in a hotbed outdoors. Would you advise us to use pure sand for these, or a mixture of sand and soil? If we can use soil mixed with sand, how often should the cuttings be watered? Should they be sprayed every day until they have calloused? Should they be kept air-tight? How about shading?

J. S.—Ill.

The inquiry says nothing about the temperature in which the cuttings were rooted. If the Beauty cuttings were run at 64 to 66 degrees of bottom heat, with plenty of drainage, they should have had water every other day. Under such treatment they would begin to callous in ten days. Providing good wood was used for the cuttings, not hard stumps, they should come out in a satisfactory condition. I have never rooted Beauties outside and so will not attempt to give directions for that. It is now too late to root Beauties for this year's planting, as it would be impossible to produce good plants by fall or to get good returns in any way for the labor.

SPORT OF TAUSENSCHON.

The question of whether or not Tausenschon sport blooms as freely as the parent plant is answered in the accompanying illustration, made from a photograph of a 100-foot bench in a greenhouse of R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, O. They were planted June 25, 1916, from 2¼-inch pots, for the purpose of propagating. The plants were propagated the first week in January and rooted in a cool house at a temperature of about 45 degrees. The old plants were started up with the Easter pot plants of mixed roses and came, a mass of blooms, a week later. This variety seems to have a little more vigor than the original Tausenschon, Mr. Witterstaetter says. This new Rose Tausenschon sport was exhibited by Mr. Witterstaetter at the 1916 show of the American Rose Society and he was awarded a silver medal on it. Since that time there has been a great demand for it as nurserymen's stock.

Indianapolis, Ind.—All three of the children of A. F. J. Baur and Mrs. Baur have been ill with chicken pox and the Baur home has been under quarantine. It has been something of a strain on the usually angelic tempers of the small patients, but they are rapidly convalescing and counting the days to freedom.

Cleveland, O.—The potato "bug" has struck fashionable Euclid avenue. The lawn fronting one of the finest residences has been plowed up and presumably has been planted with Solanum tuberosum, as a signboard, fully twelve feet high, with letters eighteen inches in height, bears the legend "Potatoes."

BLUE LAWS IN IOWA.

Recent action of the Iowa legislature in passing a resolution urging the enforcement of the so-called "blue laws," which provide for the closing of business establishments on Sunday, will probably force florists to stop keeping their stores open on that day. If this be the result, it will have the approval of the Des Moines Florists' Association, which has tried to get the retailers to close on Sunday by agreement, but has been unsuccessful because all would not consent.

Discussing the action of the legislature and its effect on the trade, M. Kurtzweil, president of the Iowa Seed Co., said:

"Our Sunday laws for years have been ignored. Recently the Seventh Day Adventists wanted the laws repealed. This brought about a discussion, which ended in a resolution being passed by the legislature urging the enforcement of the existing laws, and now an attempt will be made to do so.

"Our local Florists' Association has tried to get all the Des Moines shops to close Sundays, but a few refused. We deliver our orders Sunday morning and close as early as possible, usually in plenty of time for our help to attend church."

AMERICAN DAHLIA SOCIETY.

Meeting of Executive Committee.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society was held at the Grand hotel, New York, May 10. President Richard Vincent, Jr., presided, and there were present George L. Stillman, George W. Kerr, James Duthie, J. J. Lane and Secretary J. Harrison Dick.

The minutes of the March meeting were read and approved. Arising out of these, it was proposed that a rule be inserted in the schedule governing the next show, making it essential that all flowers exhibited in the competitive classes of the society's exhibition be grown by the exhibitors. This rule does not apply to non-competitive displays. The statement of accounts was passed.

The New York show was considered. This will be held in conjunction with the American Institute, in the Engineering building, New York, September 25 to 27. It was resolved, on the proposition of J. J. Lane, seconded by George L. Stillman, that an appropriation be set aside for the necessary expenses of the show committee, which consists of the president and the secretary. It was agreed that seven silver and five bronze medals be struck for the needs of the society and its affiliated organizations.

The secretary was empowered to produce an 8-page bulletin for use in the middle of July. It was agreed that from June 1 all new subscriptions paid in should be credited to September, 1918.

Proposed Dahlia Manual.

It was agreed that two silver and two bronze medals be offered as extra prizes at the dahlia show of the New Haven, Conn., Horticultural Society September 19 and 20, in the name of the A. D. S. An invitation from Prof. Hall, to have the classification committee and interested members visit the dahlia trials at Geneva, N. Y., in September, was favorably considered. Discussion was made of the desirability of publishing Prof. Hall's list of 6,400 dahlia names, with classifications and descriptions. An estimate for the printing of this list, in a 48-page pamphlet and cover, in 7-point type, had been given, the figure being $350 for 1,000 copies. It was the expressed opinion that as the society's funds did not warrant this expenditure, and as such a list would require periodic revision, its publication by the society was not justified. Moreover, the society had a proposition from Mr. Lane, representing Doubleday, Page & Co., that there was a possibility of that company's publishing a special dahlia manual, an amplification of part of the June issue of the New Country Life, which will be largely devoted to dahlias, and that Prof. Hall's list may possibly be included as part of such a manual. It was resolved, therefore, that the society could not see its way to publish the list now.

This is the last committee meeting held before the show.

J. Harrison Dick, Sec'y.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The business in all its branches was greatly increased by the tremendous welcoming demonstrations given the representatives of France and England. Especially were the leading greenhouses benefited, the displays using nearly the entire stock of cold storage evergreens, laurel and wild smilax.

The shipments of roses continue about normal, and the demand is about equal to the supply. Apart from some notable banquets to the distinguished visitors, there was no special call upon the wholesale market.

The demands of Mothers' day seemed confined to carnations, and of these only the white varieties were popular or brought abnormal prices. Philadelphia buyers came to this market the last part of the week and purchased every white carnation they could lay their hands on at $80 per thousand. One New York wholesaler said he realized $100 for 1,100 flowers, and a few acknowledged sales in small quantities at $10 per hundred. The advance orders had to be filled and protests against the advance to 8 cents were many.

The New York public is thoroughly in sympathy with the sentiment of the day, but is unchangeably adverse to any unreasonable rise in prices. If the dogmatic exclusion of all carnations but the white ones for Mothers' day had not been so persistently demanded, the whole country would have entered "heart and soul" into the recognition of all the day is intended to commemorate. It is predicted that carnations will not sell above 4 cents from now until Memorial day.

American Beauty, Hadley and Brunner roses are selling at about the same prices as last week, 25 cents being top and $2 to $3 per hundred for the twos and threes. Saturday $15 per thousand was the lowest quotation for the short-stemmed stock of any variety. There was no oversupply, but 6 cents to 8 cents was top for the best of the standard varieties. Prima Donna, Russell, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia roses seem to lose none of their popularity.

Valley is going down in price. The old quotation of 8 cents to 10 cents was unpopular, 6 cents being the top for the week, and there was no surplus of the best. Lilies averaged 8 cents. There will be a slowly rising market for these until Memorial day. The shipments of gardenias were lighter and good flowers are firm at $3 per dozen. The street men have only sweet peas, daffodils and lilac to depend on. With some warm, sunny weather they soon will be having roses to add to their stock.

Peonies are arriving from the south. Sweet peas, daisies, irises, stocks, tulips, snapdragon and mignonette are in abundance. This week will be lilac week before it ends, if the prophets are reliable.

There are not enough orchids in the market. Selected cattleyas were selling at 60 cents May 12. The average price for good flowers was 50 cents and these were few. Medium grades are down to 30 cents and under. The local supply of lilac is still limited. Not much is arriving from the south, but a flood is expected in a short time. Forsythia held its place last week as the "early bird." It was especially beautiful this year and was freely used in large decorations. In fact, it is about the only blooming evidence of spring.

Up to date we have had no spring at all. The oldest wholesaler says he can remember no such backward season.

Meyer Otile, of Riedel & Meyer, is serving his country as a juror.

A special meeting of the board of trustees of the Florists' Club was held at the secretary's office May 14.

All arrangements are complete for the Sixth International Flower Show at the Grand Central Palace, March 14 to 21, 1918. The members of the committee are: T. A. Havemeyer, chairman; John Young, secretary; F. R. Newbold, treasurer; Arthur Herrington, exhibition manager.

The early morning flower and plant market is in full swing at East Fifty-ninth street, under the Queensboro bridge.

The new store of Herman Weiss at 130 West Twenty-eighth street is now complete. The large icebox is a special feature. Mr. Weiss has added to his force and reports business encouraging.

H. W. Gallaer, of the George W. Crawbuck Co., has returned to his office after a severe attack of pleurisy.

The Cadjean Co. had a large wedding decoration last week. There was a special exhibit in the big store at 37 West Twenty-eighth street.

The window of Malandre Bros. last week was a wonder. In addition to a large shield in the center were the flags of France and England, all in natural flowers, and back of all was a representation of the Goddess of Liberty, holding in her outstretched hands the palms of victory and peace. The arrangement was the work of a master hand, and "It pays" was the modest comment of the firm.

Messrs. Burnett and Thom, salesmen for Burnett Bros., have been promoted to the rank of corporal and sergeant, respectively, in their regiment, the Fourth of New Jersey.

The Barclay Nursery Co. has had a profitable season, as the doubling of the selling space at 60 Barclay street indicates.

North Bergen, N. J.—Henry Schmidt has developed a compact strain of Primula obconica that finds much favor in the stores.

EARLY OUTDOOR VEGETABLES.

Growers Get Good Returns.

Probably never since the indoor growing of vegetables assumed important proportions has there been a greater demand at better prices than during the last few months. The result has been that many growers of flowers and plants set apart a portion of their houses for vegetables and also have begun the cultivation of early outdoor vegetables, which seem sure to bring profitable returns.

There are many reasons why the growing of vegetables has yielded well this year. Prices of meat are higher than in a great many years; the same applies to practically everything that goes on the table of the American family. Consequently, even with fresh vegetables, both indoor and southern-grown, at high prices, they have been as economical as other foodstuffs not so desirable.

As an example of this, potatoes may be cited. Throughout the winter, the 1916 crop retailed in the larger cities at around $3 per bushel. This price was maintained despite the hue and cry it raised. Thus when the southern-grown new potatoes appeared, the price, though slightly higher than for old potatoes, did not scare the housewife and the demand has been such as to consume the supply, which, in Florida, was the greatest in the history of the state.

Demand Has Increased.

Lettuce, tomatoes, radishes and other vegetables grown indoors have met with this same demand. Although the production during the later winter and the spring months was greater than ever before, there has been no glut. Prices have held up to a point where there was a good profit in them for the growers and the consumers have purchased freely.

May 12 is late in the season for indoor vegetables and the southern crop, with few exceptions, has taken their place in the northern markets. The following prices at Chicago, Ill., on that date will show what the grower of outdoor vegetables has been getting:

|----------------------------|------------------|
| Beets, per bbl.....        | $2.50 to $5.00 |
| Radishes, per hamper.....  | .50 to .75       |
| Carrots, per bbl.....      | 2.50 to 4.50     |
| Spinach, per bbl.....      | 3.00 to 6.50     |
| Cabbage, 100 lbs.....      | 5.00 to 6.50     |
| Onions, per crate.....     | 2.00 to 2.25     |
| New potatoes, per bbl..... | 9.50             |
| Tomatoes, per crate.....   | 3.50 to 4.00     |

With prices holding up as they have, there will continue to be a big production of early outdoor vegetables. And it seems certain that prices for these vegetables will continue good. The amateur who this year is planting a garden cannot compete as to time of maturity with the professional. His crop will not be ready until after the commercial crop has been harvested and marketed.

Must Beat the Amateur.

The immense production that intensive and intelligent cultivation can bring is demonstrated in the accompanying illustration showing a field of lettuce on the farm of the late George F. Fish at Middletown, N. Y. Indoor-grown plants put outdoors at the earliest possible date give the commercial grower a start on the amateur that means much in cash returns.

Secretary Houston, of the Department of Agriculture, asserts that the maximum food production in the United States this year will no more than take care of the needs of this country and its allies in the war. And at the same time he says that there is little likelihood of a maximum production. Therefore, with all the back yard gardens and the campaign for a maximum food production by the farmers, there seems to be little probability of lower prices during the next year and the commercial vegetable grower can feel certain that he will get prices that will insure him a good profit on everything he produces.

VEGETABLE SEEDLINGS DYING.

We are having trouble with our tomato, pepper and egg plants. We transplanted them in flats and they seemed to be all right, but now they are dying off. We have not overwatered them. Can you tell us the cause of the trouble? Enclosed you will find some of the affected tomato plants.

H. W. A.—N. Y.

The seedlings were completely dried up when received. There has either been something harmful in the soil or the watering has not been properly done. Have you, perhaps unintentionally, put your seedlings in soil containing any chemical fertilizer? If so, that in itself would account for their dying. A too low temperature would also be harmful. Tomato, egg and pepper plants require a warm house, not below 55 degrees at night while the plants are small, and 60 degrees would be better. A too heavy soil would also be unsuitable for these seedlings and would cause damping off. Temperature, soil and watering are all to be considered; also, necessary shading, after transplanting has been done.

C. W.

Ashtabula, O.—With coal in minimum supply and at maximum prices, many of the smaller vegetable growers have practically decided to grow crops running into the cold season, then close down until spring. This is a regrettable decision, as every range counts at this time.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The week started off well, with warmer weather and sunshine, and present indications are that stock will be more abundant. Prices of carnations range from $2 to $3 and roses make $2 to $10. Lilies are rather scarce, having been in large demand for funeral work. The large gladioli are making their appearance and are welcomed at $1.50 per dozen, while Peach Blossom brings $5 per hundred. Darwin tulips are to be had at $4 and $5 per hundred; the other varieties are gone. The prospects for outdoor stock for Memorial day are poor. The green supply has loosened up considerably.

Mothers' Day Business.

Mothers' day was a huge success as far as demand was concerned, but shortage of stock prevented it from being the largest day of the year. Carnations were extremely scarce and, as usual, the cry was for them. The white ones brought $10 per hundred wholesale, with the colored ones bringing $8. Roses were more plentiful, but the supply was in no way equal to the demand. Sweet peas were especially popular for table decorations and corsage bouquets.

Mothers' day this year was widely advertised, not only by the florists but also by confectioners, telegraph offices, etc. It is felt that this day is becoming greater each year and that its rapid growth is principally due to the efforts of florists. A conspicuous and attractive full-page advertisement in a local newspaper included the governor's proclamation for Mothers' day. These and other advertisements proved so effective that twice as much stock could have been sold.

Several weddings brought valley and orchids into favor, even at such prices as $9 per dozen for orchids and $6 per hundred for valley. Fancy gift baskets, which experienced a good sale, were attractively filled with the daintier flowers, including sweet peas, valley, daisies, delphiniums, snapdragons and roses. Snapdragons were the most plentiful flowers in the market, but they were cleaned up. Potted plants held a prominent place, with rose bushes, spiræas, Easter lilies, hydrangeas, lilacs and pelargoniums the leading sellers.

Sunday night the stores were absolutely bare of flowers; the windows were just settings of green.

Various Notes.

Homer Wiegand has added a new alligator to his collection. It is a fine, large one, weighing about 160 pounds. These pets are exhibited in one of the windows of the conservatory and attract great attention.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Charline Temperley.

A. F. J. Baur's three children have been sick with the chicken pox.

Charles Boehne recently broke his finger while cranking an automobile.

The season for bedding stock has not yet opened and it is the opinion of most of the tradesmen that most of this stock will be moved in June.

The Bertermann Bros. Co. reports a wonderful Mothers' day business. It was necessary to close the store twice on account of lack of stock. The telegraph and mail orders were absolutely the largest on record for the company.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Business was unusually slack during the first part of last week, but during the second half it was more than good and made up for the slow days. Mothers' day appears to be more popular than ever. A good deal of advertising for the day undoubtedly was responsible for the splendid trade everybody enjoyed. The telegraph delivery system also is growing and a large number of orders were sent and received. The weather is not at all favorable. The little sunshine makes it hard for the gardeners to make much headway, and most of the stores are swamped with orders for outdoor work. Bedding stock is in, but does not move fast. Nursery stock is selling well at this time.

The market is well stocked with roses, which sell well, particularly the shorter and medium grades. Fine Shawyer and Russell roses are observed, as well as Hoosier Beauty and Milady. It was a difficult proposition to get all the carnations one needed for Mothers' day. They were good in size of bloom and length of stem, most of them retailing at $1.50 per dozen. Sweet peas in pink and blush white are plentiful, but the lavender ones are scarce. They have sold well. Long-stemmed snapdragons sell wonderfully well and fine Spanish irises meet with a good demand. German stock is used largely in funeral work. Easter and calla lilies continue plentiful. Daisies sell well, as do pansies and forget-me-nots. Mignonette moves well. Large quantities of jonquils are in the market and sell easily.

Various Notes.

R. E. Blackshaw, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, called on the trade this week.

A large map of the United States, with tags for the principal cities of the country, was the main attraction of the Mothers' day display at the store of the Rochester Floral Co. A picture of a mother surrounded by flowers was seen in the window of George T. Boucher. Edwin C. Kaelber also had a suitable window display.

S. J. Koester has left the Rochester office of the Lord & Burnham Co. and returned to Pittsburgh.

F. R. Bohnke reports business much better than in any previous year. He has had a large quantity of funeral work and has purchased a new delivery auto.

The general committee in charge of the June peony show in Convention hall is making plans for a banner exhibition.

Edwin C. Kaelber, Inc., is responsible for the elaborate decorations of palms and flowers at the new dental dispensary, a magnificent building presented to the city by George Eastman.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Mrs. E. P. Wilson in the loss of her mother, who died at Dr. Barber's hospital May 8, at the age of 68.

Crooke, the Florist, of Mount Hope avenue, has been busy of late with funeral work. He is taking many orders for bedding stock, for use in the cemetery near his store.

James Vick's Sons continue to dispose of larger quantities of seeds than ever before. Business this season is far ahead of their anticipations. The mail order business, which has become extremely large, has suffered considerably of late because shipments cannot be made fast enough. An added force of workers soon will remedy this.

H. J. H.

Ashtabula, O.—The Tong & Weeks Co. has been busy with funeral work, and social functions have called for about the usual amount of decorations. Herbert Tong is to be found at the new place, which is ably run by the junior Tong.

JOTTINGS FROM JERSEY

Chester, N. J.—One of the junior members of the firm of F. W. Rochelle & Sons sailed for France May 15 with a Red Cross division.

Orange, N. J.—John E. Collins received his new delivery car in time for the Easter rush and put it to a severe test in handling the record-breaking business.

Madison, N. J.—The Villa Lorraine Greenhouses have been leased by Anthony Ruzicka, who until recently was employed at the Rowayton, Conn., establishment of Traendly & Schenck, the New York wholesalers.

Westville, N. J.—Five greenhouses, two barns and several buildings, all the property of Louis C. Duncan, were gutted by fire last week, entailing a loss estimated at $10,000. The flames were first discovered in one of the barns, but before the fire companies gained control the high wind had carried the flames to the greenhouses and other buildings. Mr. Duncan's residence was saved.

Magnolia, N. J.—A. F. Wallace has succeeded J. B. Goostrey in the ownership of the Magnolia greenhouses and is stocking the houses with young plants.

Madison, N. J.—Duckham-Pierson Co. is the corporate title of a concern recently reorganized here, to deal "in flowers and agricultural products, timber, steel, etc." The authorized capital is $400,000 and Lincoln Pierson, William H. Duckham, M. N. Pierson and Mary Duckham are the incorporators.

New Brunswick, N. J.—The florists have employed a novel scheme recently to increase the sale of flowers, which apparently were in large supply at the time, by placing displays in most of the stores on one of the principal streets. The idea was that flowers in so many windows on one street could not but help to increase the sales and popularize the flowers. The dealers in nearly all lines of merchandise were only too glad to give the florists window space. The names of the florists also appeared in the windows. Each flower or plant was labeled.

OBITUARY

Francis P. South.

Francis P. South, a member of the Kirkman Nursery Co., of Fresno, Cal., died April 29, following a week's illness. He was born in Lee county, Iowa, in 1871, and spent most of his early life in that state. Coming to California in 1888, he and his mother located near Reedley, in Fresno county, where they engaged in farming. Mr. South then purchased a vineyard near Clovis, which was his home for seventeen years. Five years ago, after having been associated with the Kirkman Nursery Co. for two years, he purchased a half interest in that concern. From that time on he was secretary and treasurer of the company and had charge of its work in Fresno, Madera and Merced counties.

Horace Lloyd.

Dr. Horace Lloyd, head of the Shackelford Nursery Co., of St. Louis, Mo., died May 9 at his home in Shackelford, a suburb of St. Louis. He had suffered a paralytic stroke about ten days previously. He was a graduate physician and was well known among the members of the trade as "Doe" Lloyd.

Dr. Lloyd was born in England fifty years ago and came to this country when he was a boy. He leaves a widow. The funeral was held from the home May 11 and the burial was in Walhalla cemetery. Many beautiful floral designs were sent by members of the trade, a number of whom attended the funeral.

The business will be continued by Mrs. Lloyd. J. J. B.

"SOME" SALESMAN!

A grower who specializes in bedding plants came to town a few weeks ago and expressed his alarm over the likely effects of a nation-wide substitution of vegetable patches for flower gardens. If the people in his territory, he said, were to grow potatoes and turnips in lieu of bedding plants and flowers from seed, it naturally would follow that his sales would shrink considerably. The chances are, however, that there has been no falling off in bedding plant sales on this account, but if any grower has a surplus of stock, let him be advised that The Review's Classified ads have a habit of converting surplus stock into cash, like this, for instance:

Please discontinue my pansy ad, as I have sold all my stock and this business of returning checks costs money. Really, all a grower has to do is to grow stock, and then let The Review sell it for him.—Cottage Greenhouses, Westplains, Mo., May 7, 1917.

We were a little too well pleased with the results from our ads. We did not stop them soon enough. Our sales cost us one per cent in this instance, slightly under, in fact.—Ferguson Bros., Station D, Omaha, Neb., May 5, 1917.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain that he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review,

Salina, Kan.—W. R. Leighton, manager of the Leighton Floral Co., advertised Mothers' day flowers in the local papers, using a quarter of a page in the one of widest circulation, and did a business limited only by the supply of stock.

Hope, N. M.—E. L. Brewer has returned to his old love, the florists' business, and started a flower and market garden here. During the years of 1894 to 1898 Mr. Brewer operated the Banner Greenhouses at Terrell, Tex.

Pasadena, Tex.—D. Z. Holloway, who asserts that he is the largest grower and shipper of jasmine buds in the south, says he will not be able to make even one shipment this year, as the result of the freeze last autumn.

Ashland, Va.—George W. Gordon & Bro., who grow a general line of cut flowers and pot plants, think well of Carnation Gorgeous. Although others grow it with larger flowers, no growers beat the Gordon stems. They recently cut fifteen flowers that measured from two and one-half to three inches in diameter on stems forty-six to forty-eight inches long.

Globe, Ariz.—Robert A. Lines has taken over the business of Mrs. William Pohl and will conduct it under his own name.

Jacksonville, Fla.—Dr. H. Dux Co., Inc., says that one of the effects of the heavy frosts in the south early this season has been to produce a shortage of magnolia leaves. It is expected that the market will become well cleaned up before new stock is ready.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, has opened its branch store at 721 Market street and soon will start the erection of greenhouses on a site near the city. The branch store will be supplied with stock from Nashville until the new greenhouses are producing. H. H. Harrison, who has been connected with the company for several years, will have charge of the Chattanooga establishment.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The Friedley Co., of Cleveland, O., has two good things, Rhododendron Pink Pearl and Adiantum California (Dreer), "the best fern seen in Cleveland," says Frank Friedley. "It is worth just as much again as any other adiantum, on account of its free habit, graceful frond and hardiness. Being large, the fronds cover just twice the space," Mr. Friedley declares.

Christ Winterich, of Defiance, O., expects to be as strong as ever on cyclamens, having a fine lot of young stock coming along. He predicts a scarcity of seed, the European sources being shut off and the sales of plants on the increase. Here some artistic funeral pieces were noted; a lavender-colored basket, filled with lilies and tied with lavender chiffon, was exceedingly classy.

Mrs. E. Suder, of Toledo, O., has turned the active management of her greenhouses over to her son, Albert A. Mrs. Suder confesses to having passed the seventy-fourth milestone and still is making the younger members of the trade hustle to keep up with the pace she maintains. Some idea of the extent of the spring plant business at this range may be had when 250 hanging baskets and a large number of tubs are filled, and every one of them expected to disappear before Memorial day. The tubs were intended for Holland stock, which did not arrive, and this, to quote Mr. Suder, "was the best thing that could possibly happen." Geraniums, American Beauty, Thomas Meehan and Mrs. Lawrence roses are favorites in the Suder houses, along with the indispensable S. A. Nutt. Salvia Bonfire, in 4-inch pots, grown from cuttings and fertilized, is far ahead of seedlings, carrying from four to six big spikes of bloom.

The L. C. Hecock Floral Co., of Elyria, O., reports a good business in seeds and funeral work, and expects spring orders to be as heavy as usual.

One of the most notable things at the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses, Fort Wayne, Ind., is a batch of Vanda cærulea, part of which was grown in the south and part in the west. Curiously, the western plants are more vigorous, emblematic, as it were, of the country, which is most interesting to the grower, Sam Hudson, who left "Albion's shores" to grow up with his charges.

George F. Hartung, of Sandusky, O., observed that, while possibly it is wise to specialize in cut flowers, growing vegetables also is profitable. Have as varied a crop as possible and good money can be made, as it is seldom the market is overloaded in all lines. Now he is marketing lettuce, onions, rhubarb and parsley in large quantities. Tomatoes will be the next crop. This model place is a delight to the vegetarian.

Edward Siek, of Canandaigua, N. Y., in commenting on the fact that one of his best patrons had converted her flower garden into a vegetable garden, said: "We must not feel bad about such things, but take our medicine and make the best of the situation. I believe that the flower lovers will fall back on the florists when they see so much 'green goods.' One of our best crops this winter was sweet peas. The vines were fifteen feet in height and every bloom sold at good figures. No siree, we as yet are not worrying." W. M.

The Review brings results.

It is reported the arrival of the Dutch bulbs this fall is assured by the settlement of differences between the Dutch and British governments which will result in the Dutch ships returning to the sea.

If, instead of bedding stock, our best customers plant potatoes in the front yard this spring, we shall at least have the assurance that there will be a lot of lawn-making requiring our attention in the autumn.

A NUMBER of newspaper editorials decrying Mothers' day have been sent to The Review this week, but the only one that protested against observing it with the use of flowers misspelled as common a word as "bouquet."

RIGHT on the heels of Mothers' day comes Memorial day. The interval this year scarcely is enough to give the live men of the trade the time they need to work up their arrangements. A busy ten days is in prospect.

It is said that the freeze in the south early this season has had the effect of destroying the magnolia leaves and that the supply of perpetuated leaves is likely to be well cleaned up before the new crop of raw material is ready for the preparers.

LABOR is the chief problem at the moment. The florist who, with his wife, has needed only one or two men can get along by increasing his own effort, but the man who uses a crew of workers finds it utterly impossible to make up by his own hard work for the desertions the times are causing.

RESULTS JUSTIFY THE MEANS.

The news letters in this week's issue of The Review show that, almost without exception, the sales of flowers for Mothers' day were far greater than ever before.

In this fact we find the justification for each and every means of exploitation the trade has employed. It paid, and that is the one real test of a business method.

But the advertising the trade has done this year has done more than increase the sale of flowers—it has caused a general observance of the day, in churches and in the home. We say that florists' advertising has caused all this, because nobody else did anything at all to spread the news of Mothers' day's approach. That Mothers' day now is almost a fixture in American life is due to the florists, not to anyone else.

"BUSINESS AS USUAL."

A prominent Englishman, discussing Americans, once said that public opinion in the United States was like a tidal wave. It swept everything before it as it rose and receded as rapidly as it appeared.

The truth of this British estimate of Americans has been proven in the last few weeks, or, to be exact, since the United States entered the war. No sooner had Congress declared that a state of war with Germany existed, than there was started a propaganda for economy. However, before it gained any considerable proportions, the best minds in the United States recognized what this so-called economy might do and began at once to counteract the effect it would have on the people.

Now the pendulum is swinging the other way. Do not be economical, or rather, do not be fanatically economical, is the advice being given to Americans. For fanatical economy would, in the opinion of these commercial leaders, bring on a financial panic. Just because the country is at war, do not close up business. England had a touch of this sort of economy, out of which came the slogan, "Business as Usual."

Some members of the trade have felt that this economy campaign was going to hit florists, if not first, among the first. They have taken the view that Americans would do without everything except that which fills the stomach and covers nakedness. To a great extent they have been mistaken in their attitude. Also, they are beginning to realize it. Business may have felt the effect of the economy campaign, but this same campaign has brought about another which will certainly counteract the first, if it does not make the flower selling business better than ever.

According to the last census, there was something like $35,000,000 invested in the florists' business. Seven years have greatly increased those figures. Thousands of men and women are employed in the trade. Would there be any economy in letting this huge investment lie idle and in throwing these thousands of persons out of employment?

"Business as Usual" sounds like a pretty good slogan for Americans just now. Public officials and commercial leaders are preaching it by word of mouth and through the newspapers; some of the big concerns are using costly advertising space to spread the same gospel. The florists' business will get the cumulative effect.

There is no surer way of making business good than to show confidence in the future of the country by continuing our daily activities as though conditions were normal.

A MEMORIAL DAY THOUGHT.

The sentiment that caused the establishment of Memorial day will undergo a great revival this year. The day, set aside for the American people to pay homage to those who lost their lives defending their country and to those who escaped and have since died, will mean more this year because the country again is at war.

The observance of the day will undoubtedly be more devout than in many years previous. Thoughts of the people will be turned to more serious things than merely enjoying a holiday. In consequence there will be a greater demand for flowers, wreaths and plants.

Time, "the great healer," and the peace and prosperity of this country had dulled the poignancy of our appreciation of the patriotic sacrifices of the men of '61 and '98. War to this generation was a thing impossible in the present state of civilization.

The European outburst, more furious than anything in the world's history, shattered this sense of security. It showed the fallacy of our beliefs. And now we have been drawn into the conflict.

Daily, mothers and fathers are parting with sons, who have done as their forebears did—answered their country's call. The emotions of those the soldier or sailor leaves behind are a mixture of pride and sorrow, but there is no joy in them.

It is claimed that the deaths of 601 persons in the Iroquois theater fire, Chicago, some fourteen years ago brought that disaster home to a million people. How many, do you think, will have a close personal interest in the thousands of youths who are in Uncle Sam's army and navy?

To all these people Memorial day will have a new and deeper significance, the meaning it had to the Americans of a half century ago.

It is right that our method of expressing love and reverence for the dead is to place wreaths or flowers on their graves. Nothing expresses these sentiments so well as these symbols of purity and beauty.

This year will see, it is predicted, a greater amount of Memorial day cemetery decoration than ever before.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

To say that Mothers' day business this year was the best on record would be making a simple statement of fact. Many, however, in recurring to last week's trade will not be satisfied with such a bald manner of stating a truth and will endeavor, with a multitude of adjectives, to explain just how good business really was, for certain it is that the annals of the Chicago flower market contain no record which, taken by and large, could prove more satisfactory. Stock, as had been expected, was scarce and was unable to satisfy in full the strong demand existing. As could only be expected, the first call was for white carnations, but most

For Memorial Day conditions will be much like those of Mothers' Day. A word to the wise (through disappointment) will be sufficient.

Here's Good News for You

We have just received word from Mr. Pollworth that he has closed a contract for one of the finest supplies of Gladioli this market has ever seen, and the best part of it is that they will be arriving just right for Decoration Day.

We feel that this is going to be the greatest Decoration Day the trade has ever seen, and that these "Glads" will be a welcome addition to any Florist's stock. Large supply of America and Francis King starting today, and it is all fancy stock.

PEONIES

Every indication points to a record-breaking demand on all stock for Decoration Day and of course the PEONY will, as always, be the leading flower in demand. We want to warn you, however, that as far as we can see, after carefully going over all the local crops, none of these will be in before June and therefore you will have to depend upon the Southern crop for your supply.

As you know, we have always handled the largest amount of Peonies and the best quality in the whole country, barring no section, and while our Southern crop will be of normal supply it is only just starting to arrive and will, without a doubt, be of exceptionally fine grade. With the large local crops off the market and this exceptionally heavy demand we would strongly advise ordering at once if you want to be protected and be sure of your supply. Prices will be no higher than in other years, that is four, six and eight cents each.

Don't forget to order your Boxwood at the same time, and if you wish we will ship it ahead so that you can get ready to take care of the big rush and not be losing sales by having to wait for stock at the last minute. We will have plenty to go around at $7.50 per case of fifty pounds.

wholesalers refused to sell on any basis excepting assorted colors, one-third white, and as a consequence colored stock cleaned out easily along with the white. It was gratifying, however, to note that the white carnation idea had become fairly well expelled from most minds and that other stock, roses in particular, were just as easy sale. It is a noteworthy fact that Mothers' day is a holiday which takes into consideration no special classes, the wealthy or the poor, but all, as the sentiment prompting a gift of flowers to mother throbs just as warmly in the breast of the small wage earner as it does in that of the greatest financier. It should be noted also in this connection that the call on Mothers' day is for good stock, poor quality flowers being nearly unsalable.

To just what cause or variety of causes the exceptional business done is to be attributed can not be said offhand. Certain it is that the great amount of publicity accorded the day this year had its marked effect in stimulating sales. Then again, the late spring this year, causing an absence of outdoor flowers, may have created a greater call for greenhouse products. And in the third place, much may perhaps be due to the fact that many young men through the country either have already enlisted with the colors or are expecting to do so, and they therefore at this time feel more strongly the sentiment involved in giving mother flowers.

That retailers enjoyed an excellent business was proved by the active condition of the wholesale market May 14. As stock was scarce, the market having cleaned out entirely with the closing of Mothers' day business May 13, prices were naturally stiff. Although not quite so good as May 14, May 15 also proved to be a highly satisfactory day.

The demand for flowers for high school and college commencements is now beginning. American Beauties and yellow roses are in most active call. All growers have cut their crops pretty close, and it does not look as though there will be any specially heavy production in any line in the near future.

American Beauties sold exceedingly well last week. Good stock only, however, was desired, crippled flowers not moving at all. The supply was short and prices firm. All other varieties of roses were uniformly scarce and sold well, cleaning out easily the end of the week, with many orders left unfilled or only partly filled. White varieties were in most active demand, because in smallest supply, with Russell following a close second and in good supply. Red varieties were given the next choice, with Ophelia and Sunburst after that selling equally well. Discrimination, however, was only slight.

In carnations white, of course, sold the most easily, or perhaps, to state it more accurately, were the first to go, all varieties cleaning out with ease. It is true that a few carnations could be seen at the close of the market May 13, but these were from late May 13 shipments. In some instances growers held their stock back too long, but even these poorer grades brought a fair price.

Sweet peas were in good demand, with sufficient stock present to meet the call. Calendulas and Spanish iris moved slowly, with all bulbous stock, of which there was but little, dragging heavily. Poetians was the only exception to this and it had only a fair sale. Stocks were in good stock, the season is at least two weeks late and there will be few outdoor flowers. Not only has the observance of the day become general, but the war talk will have the effect of bringing the anniversary more into the public's thoughts than usual. All these factors should stimulate the demand on this market.

In the matter of supply, the indoor crops will be about normal. Rose growers are busy replanting, but more plants than usual are to be carried over and the rose supply will be, in all probability, larger than last year. Carnation crops are on the up grade and the cuts will be heavy by May 28. If the weather does not turn suddenly too warm, the quality of the carnations will be unusually good this Memorial day. There will be a decrease in the supply of Texas cape jasmines, but this will not be regretted here. The other outdoor special flower of the day, however, is of much consequence. The so-called southern crop of peonies seems to be coming just right. In quantity there will be enough, but not too many; the quality is excellent and the date of blooming late enough so that protracted cold storage will not be necessary. There seems small chance of any local peonies coming on the market until early June this year.

The Randall Lease.

In The Review several weeks ago the news was given that the A. L. Randall Co. plans to install its manufacturing departments in a separate factory building about a mile south of its sales and office buildings on Wabash avenue. Further details now are afforded by the real estate columns of the daily papers, one of which says:

"The estate of William Blair has leased to the A. L. Randall Co., florists, the 7-story and basement building at 729 South Wabash avenue. The lot is 78x172 feet, west front, between Seventh and Eighth streets, and the lease runs for a term of years from June 1 at an aggregate term rent of $107,400. The store and basement have been sublet to the Studebaker corporation for a term from May 1 at a term rent of $15,000. Albert H. Wetten & Co. negotiated both leases."

Help the Garden Movement.

At the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at the Briggs House, May 10, the following resolution was adopted:

Be It Resolved, that the Chicago Florists' Club, in the spirit of patriotism and civic duty, does hereby heartily endorse and encourage the furthering of the work now being carried on under the name of the Garden Bureau of Chicago. And be it further

Resolved, that this organization does hereby offer its assistance and cooperation by pledging itself and its members to raise plants for garden products of such kind and in such quantity as may be practicable, and to donate the same to the public to be distributed under the guidance and direction of the committee which shall be by this organization thereunto appointed.

This work will be in the hands of a committee consisting of F. Lautenschlager, chairman; Peter Reinberg, H. N. Bruns, Paul Klingsporn and George H. Mohr.

The plan of action is outlined by Mr. Lautenschlager as follows: The growers who wish to help this movement should arrange at once to sow a few flats of vegetable seeds, such as lettuce, tomatoes, pepper plants, eggplants, beets, cabbages and any other varieties of vegetable plants that are easily transplanted. When these plants are ready for replanting, notify F. Lautenschlager, 444 West Erie street, Chicago, who will make arrangements to have these plants delivered to the chief of the Garden Bureau of Chicago for distribution among the people who will plant community gardens. Every grower can help.

Various Notes.

Returning May 14 from a trip to Eagle River, Wis., where he has a cottage and plans to spend a quiet summer, Emil Buettner tells a little story for the consolation of growers who are having trouble getting soil hauled. It seems that a new golf course is being laid out at Highland Park, just west of E. Wienhoeber's place. A number of teams were employed at $8 a day. Along comes Uncle Sam from Fort Sheridan and offers $12, whereupon the entire gang quit the golfers and went with the soldiers.

August Poehlmann is able to be on the job again, having almost recovered from his recent illness.

While taking her son-in-law to the train May 13, Mrs. J. Psenicka, of Wilmette, and her son, Lewis, were seriously injured when an automobile ran into the buggy, in which they were riding. Lewis Psenicka's skull was fractured, while Mrs. Psenicka sustained several body injuries.

J. E. Pollworth, of Kennicott Bros. Co., is on a business trip through the south.

Marks Bros., in Cicero, are among the oldest florists in the vicinity of Chicago. The business was established many years ago by the father of the present proprietors, who was a contemporary of August Dressel, Edgar Sanders, George Wittbold and other pioneers. The establishment now consists of three separate ranges, thirteen houses in all. Pot plants are the only crop grown. Business this spring is excellent, although following Easter there was some falling off, which was attributed to the declaration of war.

Elm street is in process of being paved with cedar blocks. A large part of the trade of the E. Wienhoeber Co., on this street, is brought to the door by automobiles, and the completion of the work is anxiously awaited. The thoroughfare has been torn up for several weeks.

The Smyth brothers, W. J. and Harry, received word last week of the death of their other brother's wife under peculiarly sad circumstances at the old family home at Albany, N. Y. W. J. Smyth left at once to attend the funeral and has only just returned.

At Elmhurst the Meyer & Dramm Co., one of the few growers now building, will plant the new house 40x400 with American Beauty. It is the first attempt to grow Beauty at Elmhurst and is inspired by the belief that Beauty in the future will be a highly profitable rose for those who can grow it well.

Mothers' day, May 13, was the thirty-third anniversary of John Ziska's arrival in the world and of course he observed the anniversary appropriately.

From Union Grove, Wis., French & Salm sent to market over 32,000 Russell roses last week.

Business with the florists as a body, according to Frank M. Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., is better than in any other line with which he is in touch. Mr. Johnson thinks the florist who caters to working classes will have the best season on record next fall and winter.

Joseph Foerster and Mrs. Foerster have two children, a boy of 10 and a girl of 11 years. Both children have had the measles, but now are happy to have been released from quarantine May 15.

May 14 John T. Muir completed, with the installation of his successor, four years of excellent service as president of the village board of River Forest, where he is one of the old residents.

Peter Hile has taken a position with the John Kruchten Co. Mr. Hile was with D. E. Freres for four years and with the Freres-Windler Co. since its incorporation.

Two brothers, Alex and Max Momblatt, have joined the sales force of the American Bulb Co. The former travels in Iowa and the Dakotas, while the latter covers Chicago and adjacent towns.

Harry Smyth, Jr., son of Harry Smyth, of the E. Wienhoeber Co., has enlisted in the ambulance corps and is at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis.

W. L. Van Dame, president of the Rapid Wrapper Co., has left for a two weeks' rest at Excelsior Springs, Mo., where he hopes to recuperate from his recent illness.

tory of the firm is what Miss O. A. Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, says of last week.

H. E. Humiston, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., has started on an eastern trip which will include calls on growers around Philadelphia, New York and Boston.

Joe Marks, of A. Henderson & Co., is in the city.

Nobody in Chicago noticed a particular superabundance of carnations for Mothers' day, but the Nelson-Madden-Rae Co., of Ottumwa, Ia., advertised carnations for May 11 and 12 at 25 cents per dozen.

Visitors.

Charles Graham, of Cleveland, was among last week's visitors, in quest of Mothers' day flowers and looking over the stock that comes into the market.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind., was in the city May 11. He and Mrs. Frey contemplate a trip to California in connection with a suit they have started to enjoin the sale of a quantity of Rainbow freesia bulbs until the grower of them satisfies the court he is within his rights.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The most important event in the cut flower market for the week ending May 16 was Mothers' day. There was a good demand for white carnations, which demand affected colored carnations, white roses and, to some extent, other roses. The supply of white carnations was far short of the demand and far short of the usual supply. This was due to the cool, dark weather that continued right up to Mothers' day, keeping the market clear of any surplus of flowers. Under these conditions, speculation was rife. New York has been the favorite hunting ground for white carnations for Mothers' day, because they had good carnations over there and did not know about the holiday. This has passed; the

New Yorker has learned. Even if New York does not observe Mothers' day, the wholesalers over there are on the lookout for those who do. They push up the price until it equals our own, and tack on conditions unheard-of here; such as, if you want 1,000 white, you must take 1,000 pink, and be glad to get them.

The prices on white carnations ranged from $8 to $10 per hundred, with the good colored ones $5 to $6; but there were whites that went far and away over these figures. Such is the result of centralizing on one flower.

The rest of the market was in fair shape. Roses averaged pretty well for the week. While the other flowers did not do so well, they were considered satisfactory by those best able to judge. The weather has turned warmer since Mothers' day. Prices have, of course, receded on carnations. The indications point to the center of activity shifting from cut flowers to spring plants during the coming week.

Those King Hustlers.

It is refreshing in these high-price times to find that there are men who can scatter greenhouses all over this broad land just as freely as in times past. To William J. Muth and T. J. Nolan credit certainly is due for the following excellent building list, which, it will be

Coal.

An expert who is closely in touch with the hard coal mines in Pennsylvania gave it as his opinion this week that florists would have no trouble in securing the coal they require for next winter's fuel, provided they ordered in time and were willing to pay the price. The prices, he believes, are likely to remain high, as the mining conditions are bad. He further expresses the belief that the place for each buyer to purchase his coal is where he obtained it last season; that is most likely to prove satisfactory.

eastern end of Horticultural hall is one of those pretty, simple shows that delight the flower lover, though they hardly satisfy the highly cultivated taste, or the critical botanist. There were palms and ferns, brightened by tulips, daffodils and hydrangeas, and all were nicely grown.

After enjoying the display, I must confess that the pleasure in it was somewhat marred by a sight at the other end of the building. There, among the euphorbias and cacti, was a huge century plant, the broad leaves of which were completely ruined by vandals. The handy penknife, worked by dexterous fingers, had cut initials and dates all over the plant. The leaves suggested the tattooed arms of a sailor. One date was only a day or two earlier. It was a shame.

Cocos Weddelliana.

The range devoted to these shapely little palms at the Henry A. Dreer place, Riverton, is always interesting. You feel, when walking through it, that here is something unusual, something that cannot be found elsewhere. Gradually the stock was worked up to a wonderful degree of perfection, and by great care it was kept there. Then there were waves of demand that made it difficult to keep all the sizes complete. Today the specimen sizes are scarce, but the benches are filled with a magnificent lot of small and medium-sized plants, perfect in form and in shape, and they have a rich, deep green coloring that is a pleasure to see.

Various Notes.

"Alpine Plants for Rock Gardens," was the subject of Miss May Wright's talk before the Germantown Horticultural Society May 14, in the library at Vernon Park. Wild flowers were a feature of the exhibition.

H. Bayersdorfer has arranged a "patriotic" of magnolia foliage, ornamented with red roses, white hyacinths and blue cape flowers, for Memorial day.

Richard Stockton, the well known rose grower of Princeton, N. J., has gone to Fort Niagara, to join the candidates in training for officers in the U. S. army.

Robert Scott & Son this season will plant 14,000 Mrs. Charles Russell roses on their place at Sharon Hill.

Frank R. Hastings has announced his engagement to a charming young lady of Germantown.

Eugene Bernheimer has happily recovered from his recent illness. He was able to attend to business last week.

Joseph G. Neidinger, who has been quite ill, now is well again and back at the helm of his large supply house.

The Forrest Flower Shop says that the demand for Mothers' day was largely for white, carnations mainly, some sweet peas and roses. The window is effectively arranged with spring flowers.

George D. Clark says that the top of the hill has been passed in seed orders.

Robert A. Craig suggests that, now that every spare inch of back yard is sown with vegetable seed, a few pretty plants would be nice in front.

Edward A. Flood has commenced work with the Buist Seed Co.

Charles I. Kent, Jr., formerly of West Philadelphia, is now running a retail store at Camden, which he recently purchased.

Los Angeles makes a fine showing in the window of Henry A. Dreer, Inc.

Franklin Ely says that, while retail flower seeds have not sold so well as usual, more flower seeds have been sown by florists than in the past. This is supplementary to the note given out by the Henry F. Michell Co. last week.

J. M. Deutscher, John Cunningham and George Cook agree that the P. W. F. E. should be proud of its Mothers' day stock.

It is with sadness that the death of William McCrae Thompson, which occurred last week, is announced. Mr. Thompson bore so splendidly the trials of ill health that a note of admiration is justly due him. Without complaint, even cheerfully, he went about his daily life, when it was only too evident what it cost him. To many, the effort that he made would have been impossible. Mr. Thompson was associated with the floral life of this city for many years. He was right-hand man for Robert Crawford, Jr., in his retail store on Eleventh street; he conducted a retail flower store at Thirteenth and Locust streets; he assisted the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. in its wholesale cut flower business. Perhaps Mr. Thompson's most recent achievement, and one that gave him most pleasure, was the decoration of the Twentieth Century Club house in Lansdowne for the club's rose show. Mr. Thompson is survived by his wife and a daughter. Phil.

Mothers' Day Business.

The Mothers' day demand surpassed all previous records. The national publicity, the coöperative advertising of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club and the individual advertising in newspapers are credited with the success. The supply of cut flowers and flowering plants was far from equal to the demand. Carnations, which were in heaviest demand, were all sold by Saturday, May 12, both those locally grown and those grown elsewhere. Roses had an exceptionally large call and spring flowers were quite as popular as either roses or carnations. Prices held up well, carnations bringing not less than $1.50 per dozen, while most kinds of spring flowers brought $1 per dozen. Roses sold at $1.50 to $5 per dozen. The variety of blooming plants was unusually wide for this time of the year and included rambler roses, hydrangeas, fuchsias, calceolarias, tulips, hyacinths, begonias, primroses and marguerites. Geraniums did not meet with a large call, a condition attributed to the cool weather.

There were several light frosts last week, but it is warmer now and florists hope that conditions soon will be favorable for planting out. Peach Blossom gladioli are in the local market. Pansy plants sell well and irises, snapdragons, marguerites and yellow daisies meet with a good call. Shawyer roses, callas and Easter lilies are arriving in large quantities.

Various Notes.

The Fort Wayne Florists' Club held its regular meeting May 14 in the assembly room of the courthouse, E. Wenninghoff acting as host and W. J. Vesey occupying the chair. Mr. Hildebrand, representing the American Mutual Cyclone and Hail Insurance Co., gave a short talk on cyclone insurance. A general discussion followed, but no action was taken on this matter by the club. The prices of bedding stock were discussed and many believed it advisable to advance the prices of geraniums. A paper entitled "Winning the Trade" was read by Mr. Wenninghoff and was followed by a general discussion. The next meeting of the club will be held in the store of the Doswell Floral Co., June 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Brown have returned from their honeymoon, and are now in their new home on Edsall avenue.

Miss Mildred Flick, who is to be a June bride, last week was honor guest at a reception given by her sister, Mrs. Richard Blossom.

This city has adopted the daylight-saving plan and is using eastern time to help the movement.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey were sold out of cut flowers Mothers' day and had to refuse a number of orders for roses and carnations. They are cutting excellent Mossiae cattleyas and Shawyer roses.

The Flick Floral Co. had a large increase in Mothers' day business this year. It specialized in bunches of spring flowers. Carnations and roses were generally the heaviest in demand. Telegraph orders were numerous.

Edgar Wenninghoff had a larger sale of cut flowers and blooming plants than last year.

Markey Bros. sold all cut flowers by noon Sunday, May 13. In the plant line they had excellent hydrangeas, fuchsias, rambler roses and begonias.

The Doswell Floral Co. reports its Mothers' day business greatly in excess of that of any previous year.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. report a most satisfactory Mothers' day trade. Their

What the Retailers Say.

In search of news I strolled up Charles street, for it is not often one cannot find something of interest in the "flower block." The first place I stopped at was Cook's. Here I found Miss Cook and her assistants so busy with a large funeral order to be shipped to Virginia that they had not had time to dress the window. Now, it must be something important to cause this, for Miss Cook's window is usually the first on the street to be arranged for the day, and she is never at ease until it is done.

However, when the order was ready for the expressman, and as they were arranging stuff for the window, I sat and asked questions. My stock question, "How is business?" invariably comes first. Miss Cook told me she had never seen business better after Easter than this year; they have never had so many or better weddings in any spring—on one day they had five—and we all

Business Excellent.

Now, everyone knows that Miss Cook is not talkative, but when we got on this subject she had plenty to say. She said she had heard much from other cities about economy and dispensing with all luxuries during the war, but if such was the case in New York, Boston and other northern cities, so far as the house of John Cook was concerned, this wave of economy has not yet struck Baltimore.

"But, Miss Cook," I replied, "we are not ready to admit that flowers are a luxury. The day has passed when flowers can be put in this class. Such things as diamonds, yachts, etc., may be classed as luxuries, but when we come to dispatch a message of love or sympathy, flowers are just as necessary as correct stationery. If the war should become really severe and all business should become demoralized (and let us pray that it won't), economy may be practiced by not purchasing flowers, just as in everything else. But you will find that the florist will be getting his share of business just so long as there is any business done. To get right down to brass tacks, the florists have got to fight all this idle talk, for there is a great deal of it—this talk of planting back yards to vegetables, when there are acres of vacant lots lying idle all through the city. Take the average back yard. If the amateur gardener gets two messes of beans or peas for his labor he will be doing well. I have not had anything to do with growing vegetables for a long time, but I can remember in those days it took work and plenty of it. I am sure that one season will be sufficient for most of them and they will be glad to have a few flowers. Even if they can't eat them, they can have at least two of the senses gratified; that is, smell and sight."

During this crisis, it is up to every florist to be an optimist. Do not cry hard times; be a booster. Discourage all talk of flowers being luxuries and, above everything else, see that your own business is carefully managed, and this war need have no terrors for anyone in the florists' business.

scarcity of green is the greatest concern, and this is about the only thing that is in any way scarce. Everything else is plentiful, and if it were not that business is unusually good, there would be a glut. As it is, the only bad feature is that the faker can get all of the stuff he wants, but this is an evil that cannot be remedied, for the wholesaler would rather get a little than throw stock on the dump. KANSAS CITY, MO.
The Market.

The Mothers' day business was the largest in the history of the city's trade, according to reports, the strong demand sweeping the market clean of all carnations and roses. More pot plants and baskets were sold than was expected. Where stores were near greenhouses there was a rush in preparing geraniums for the buyers, and other bedding plants in bloom were sold as rapidly as they were made up, especially those retailing at 75 cents to $1.50.

The carnation was king, and higher prices were obtained for good blooms than was anticipated. At the start only the best grades of roses seemed to move, but when the demand had absorbed the carnations, roses experienced a lively sale, as well as sweet peas and pansies. Irises and snapdragons attained a prominent place in the day's business.

Cut flowers were far from plentiful and prices advanced under the influence of the increasing demand during the first part of the week. Now the indications are that cut stock will not be cheap during the remainder of the month, unless supplies arrive from out-of-town growers.

Various Notes.

Gerald Holsinger, of Rosedale, who formerly was an ensign in the navy, has accepted a lieutenant's commission in the sea service. He graduated from the Annapolis academy in 1895 and served as an officer of the U. S. S. Vulcan during the Spanish-American war.

The Mothers' day business at the establishment of Arthur Newell set a new record for volume. Everything was sold, and much more could have been sold had it been available. Mr. Newell made a design last week that was ten feet in height and five feet in width, a wreath of the cascade style. He used lilies, white carnations, lavender sweet peas and campanulas.

W. J. Barnes says that his Mothers' day business surpassed all expectations. All cut stock was disposed of and numerous pot plants in bloom were moved. Baskets at $1 to $2 found favor and pans of bedding plants experienced an unprecedented sale. When Mr. Barnes observed that the usual stock for the day was short of the demand he made up much of his bedding stock, and thereby nipped the boom in the bud. Deliveries had to be made all day Sunday.

T. J. Noll smilingly reported the biggest Mothers' day trade he ever had. The shipping business was uncommonly brisk.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports a complete clean-up for the day, and this is significant in view of the fact that the company made ample preparations for a record business.

The force of the W. L. Rock Flower Co. worked night and day to handle the Mothers' day business, the largest in the history of the establishment.

Fred Fromholdt discovered that his large stock for Mothers' day was not sufficient to meet the demand. He sold everything early.

The tradesmen across the state line say that Mothers' day sales broke records this year. W. J. B.

WHEAT, $3.18! CORN, $1.50!

The west is big. By the enormous vote it cast in the last presidential election, the vast empire beyond the Garden City revealed its marvelous growth in population; its increase in wealth has been even greater. The westerners are the country's largest producers of food-stuffs, and the high prices of grains and meats, which now give indications of soaring even higher, have brought the nation's feeders a golden harvest.

What does this mean to western florists? It means that where bank accounts and automobiles are more numerous than ever before, where farming, the principal basis of real prosperity, is prosecuted on a vaster scale than ever before, the flower and plant business has every reason for prospering.

And The Review's advertisers meet these florists of the western country under the right auspices; they are introduced by a "friend of the family." The results are splendid. Plants, seeds, supplies, nursery stock, greenhouses, materials—everything is wanted in the middle west and west. Last week one advertiser who spent only $1.25 for an advertisement wrote:

Please discontinue our ad, as we are sold out. Our little ad sold more than 100,000 plants for us.—Pinehurst Garden Co., H. W. Blake, manager, Pleasant Hill, Mo., April 30, 1917.

The Market.

Continued cold, damp and sunless weather caused a greatly reduced supply of flowers last week. The market grew steady and stronger until May 11. It receded somewhat May 12 and 14 and now is somewhat weaker. Mothers' day trade broke all records. This day is now coming rapidly to the fore as an important flower day. It was, this year, given more publicity than ever, and this is what told.

Roses are greatly improved in price, due to lessened receipts. Short-stemmed stock realized $4 and $5 per hundred May 11 and 12. The general run of hybrid teas is at present making $2 to $10 per hundred. Francis Scott Key, Stanley, Ward, Russell, Ophelia, Milady, Killarney Queen and Hadley are especially good. Carnations have come into their own once more. They opened slowly during the dark weather we have had. Prices for Mothers' day varied from $6 to $8 per hundred. A few fancies made $10 to $12.50 per hundred. Colored and white varieties sold equally well. Prices this week are lower, but good for the season.

Sweet peas have sold out well with the other flowers. They have been opening slowly. Dutch bulbous flowers continue in good supply. None are yet available outdoors here. Prices are better than a fortnight ago. Lilies sell well and are somewhat scarce. Yellow marguerites of good quality sell readily. Many seen, however, are of indifferent quality. Spanish iris remains somewhat druggy. Snapdragons lack snap when it comes to selling, although the quality is superb. Pansies are abundant. Both large and small-flowered gladioli are arriving in small quantities.

Gardenias sell poorly. Cattleyas continue scarce. Fresh stock sells fairly well. Trade in pansies and other hardy bedding plants has begun in earnest. But it is still too cold to move anything tender.

Seen at Natick.

The establishment of James Wheeler, at Natick, is one now well worthy of a visit. Mr. Wheeler has earned the title of "Marguerite King." He now has about one-third of an acre in bloom and a wonderful sight they are. Only the large yellow variety is grown and the beds are a veritable sheet of gold. Yellow marguerites are far from being easy plants to propagate and handle properly, but Mr. Wheeler seems to have mastered their culture better than any other specialist.

All his plants are in solid beds. Many now stand six to seven feet high and his last planted house, 30x200, shows clearly the result of careful selection, something necessary with yellow marguerites. Quite a variety of types are observable, but Mr. Wheeler is aiming to retain only the best form. For these he obtains fancy prices both in Boston and New York. Carnations here look remarkably well. Alice has well paid for its board. Nancy is liked and will be more largely planted next season. Pink Delight, Matchless, White Wonder, Benora and Beacon are other varieties grown. Young stock was just being planted at the time of my visit.

Mr. Wheeler is gradually developing a nice nursery business and has fine stocks of various forms of Evonymus radicans, pachysandras, Taxus cuspidata, peonies, etc.

A charming bungalow, equally attractive within and without, makes a delightful home for Mr. Wheeler.

Robert Montgomery has specialized in roses now twenty years and never fails to grow them well. One house of Killarney and White Killarney is now in its sixth year and is in first-class shape.
The stock will be lifted and replanted this season. Mr. Montgomery thinks growers change their plants at too frequent intervals. Russell does well here;
so do Dark Pink Killarney and Double White Killarney. Hoosier Beauty and Hadley are grown for reds, but Richmond will be planted again next season.
Ophelia is classed as one of the finest roses ever introduced and looks splendid here. One house is devoted to ear-nations and they left nothing to be desired. It would be hard to find better Matchless, Pink Delight, Ward, Benora and Beacon than were to be seen here.
Next season Nancy will be given a generous trial.

Robert T. McGorum is another Natick rose specialist of long standing. He grows Richmond, Ophelia, Killarney and White Killarney especially well. Carnations here also are good, Matchless and Beacon particularly so. Two or three houses are planted with giant candytuft for Memorial day and they were in prime condition. Chrysanthemums, principally Bonnaffon and Ivory, follow these.

change was received by George H. Noyes May 11 from W. D. Howard, of Milford. There were 6,700 in this special shipment, the high quality of which rarely has been equaled here and never surpassed. Matchless, Ward, Benora and Pink Delight were the principal sorts in this noteworthy shipment.

Welch Bros. Co. had remarkably heavy sales of flowers for Mothers' day, roses and carnations being the leaders. They are booking some big orders for Memorial day and hope the weather will be such that they can fill them at reasonable prices.

Fred Holbrow, of Brighton, was for the fourth year first in the market with America gladiolus. His earliest sold at $4 to $5 per dozen. One spike actually carried fifteen open flowers. He also is getting some fine sweet peas.

Mrs. E. K. Farr, of Stoneham, grows splendid carnations and it would be hard to find better Matchless, Peerless Pink, Pink Delight and other standard sorts than are to be seen here. Sweet peas also are well done.

A. A. Reed, of Whitman, is cutting a nice crop of Cattleya Mossiae and C.

Gaskelliana. He has an excellent house of carnations and retail trade has been good this season.

Reasonable economy is commendable, but the hysterical brand is reached when we find local boards of trade advising people to stop buying flowers, presumably because they are not edible. Growers should use their best influence to counteract such pernicious advice.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, continues strong on bulbous flowers and with a continuation of the cool weather he will have an abundance of forced stock for Memorial day, including Victoria, Emperor and Golden Spur narcissi and many varieties of tulips.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, had a fine lot of carnations for Mothers' day, Pink Delight, Matchless and Ward being leaders. His snapdragons continue good, also.

W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, has Gypsophila elegans of superb quality, with flowers of great size and remarkably fine stems. He had a good cut of yellow marguerites and carnations. He finished planting out his young carnation stock May 11.

Pansies in baskets are now making their appearance. Of specially fine quality are those coming from Osgood Bros., of Everett.

The next prize exhibition at Horticultural Hall will be May 26. German irises are on the schedule, but on that date none are likely to be in bloom this season. May 14 few tulips were open outdoors and only a limited number of Trumpet narcissi.

Thomas Roland, at his Revere establishment, still cuts an average of 25,000 sweet peas a day. He will throw out Crimson Queen, also called Black Beauty, and will plant Lady Alice Stanley in its stead. Hydrangeas, rambler roses and ferns had the greatest sale among pot plants.

The Budlong Rose Co. will give Cynthia Ford a good trial next season; also Sunrise, a coppery yellow variety. Ophelia with them is of fine color. Montrose, Francis Scott Key, Double White Killarney and Milady are also of splendid quality at present.

William Hannan & Sons, of Dorchester, expect to cut 50,000 spiræas, pink and white, and candytuft in quantity. They also have 5,000 pots of long-florum lilies.

Patrick Welch says the call for Beauties and carnations has been especially good. He anticipates a great Memorial day trade.

Extra fine pansies in large quantities are coming in from James Philbrick, of Woburn, and C. T. Beasley & Co., of East Milton. Many of these now have quite long stems and sell best when put up in separate colors.

The continued cold weather, added to the fuel famine, is likely to cause a Memorial day shortage of flowers, unless we get a decided change to higher temperatures. A number of growers are dubious about their ability to flower their crops of stocks, feverfew, candytuft, gladioli and spiræas.

William H. Elliott is expected home in a day or two from a transeontinental trip. He is cutting fine Beauty and Kaiserin at Brighton. At Madbury Hadley, Russell and Ophelia are noteworthy. No sunshine was recorded there between April 17 and May 12, except little fitful flashes. It is surprising, considering the lack of sunshine, that the quality is so good.

Penn advertised Mothers' day heavily in the leading Boston dailies and did a great business May 12. This store continues to effectively advertise seeds as well as plants and cut flowers.

R. P. Peterson, of Saxonville, is doing well with carnations this season. Alice, Benora and Matchless are his leading trio. He also produces splendid pansies.

Seed stores have been simply overwhelmed with orders of late and all have found it necessary to close their stores several hours daily in an effort to catch up with orders. For vegetable seeds and tools the call continues tremendous, but the flower seed business is largely neglected, which may be necessary, but is regrettable. W. N. C.

came in. Choice carnations brought $5 and $6 per hundred and the demand was heavy May 12 and 13. The supply was large, but prices held up nicely. No doubt this week will see a big drop in the prices if the supply continues large. Roses now are arriving in large quantities, especially the Killarneys, and extra good stock sold as low as $4 and $5 per hundred. Ophelia, Russell and Hadley, however, held up in price. Beauties are scarce at present.

Fancy snapdragons brought $8 per hundred. Easter lilies are fine and sell at $8 per hundred. Quite a large supply of outdoor valley now is coming in. Miniature gladioli are exceptionally fine and many outdoor flowers are arriving, but they are of little value to the trade. There is a good supply of greens. Flat ferns are selling at $3.50 per thousand and fine huckleberry at $4 per case. Adiantum and asparagus have a good demand.

Club Meeting.

The members of the St. Louis Florists' Club were guests of the St. Louis County Growers' Association May 10, when the monthly meeting of the club was held at the Eleven Mile House.

The day was fine, but as the busy planting season was on, only about fifty members attended the meeting. The combined attendance was estimated at seventy-five. President Bourdet presided, and after the preliminaries were over a number of important letters were read and discussed. Charles F. A. Steidle, a rose grower at Olivette, Mo., was elected to membership and Julius Koenig, city forester, made application for membership.

The trustees were instructed to arrange for the annual picnic, which will be held sometime in July, and were given full power to act and to report arrangements at the next meeting. It was decided to hold a parade the morning of the day set for the picnic and to offer a prize for the best decorated automobile.

Paul Reden, president of the Missouri Pottery & Supply Co., extended an invitation to the members of the club to hold the next meeting at the company's plant. The invitation was accepted with thanks. Julius Koenig spoke on the coming convention of the park superintendents here in October.

A vote of thanks was extended to the County Growers' Association for the afternoon's entertainment. The question box brought forth several good discussions. Treasurer Smith's report was pleasing to the members. After the meeting adjourned the club members were invited to a delightful spread. The members of the association outdid themselves, and before leaving three rousing cheers were given them.

Various Notes.

Notice of the death of Horace Lloyd, head of the Shackelford Nursery Co., will be found in this week's obituary column.

Walter Young and Frank Sanders have filed applications to join the officers' reserve corps. Both are able young men and should find little trouble in receiving appointments.

Everybody was glad to see Frank Vennemann at the club meeting. Mr. Vennemann's eyes have been giving him great trouble during the winter. He was almost blind, but now is greatly improved.

Recent visitors were W. M. Adams, special representative of the J. C. Moninger Co., Chicago; W. H. Miller, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago;

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will give a dance at the Eleven Mile House May 26. The admission price will be 25 cents. Tickets may be had from all members. A large attendance of St. Louis florists is expected.

David Geddis and W. H. Miller, of the A. L. Randall Co., came down over the Chicago & Alton railroad May 6. The train was wrecked a few miles from Joliet, but both escaped with their lives. Mr. Miller, however, has a badly hurt knee and Mr. Geddis was badly shaken up and has a smashed derby.

The death of his mother-in-law prevented W. A. Rowe from attending the joint meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club and the County Growers' Association May 10. Trustee Ohlweiler also missed the big meeting, being confined to his bed by a carbuncle.

Fred C. Weber reports a busy month with wedding decorations and other social affairs. Mothers' day business was exceptionally good this year.

Grimm & Gorly and the Mullanphy Florists, the big downtown florists, say Mothers' day business this year greatly exceeded that of last year. All kinds of flowers sold. Both concerns handled enormous supplies of carnations.

Edward Pieper, head of the Pieper Floral Co., which is building a store and greenhouse on Grand avenue, says that the lot on which the building is being erected is 40x120, not 40x40, as

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, May 9, with President James McCarthy in the chair. Alexander Sherriffs was elected an active member.

The chairman of the executive committee reported all arrangements completed for the annual tulip show, which will be held May 23, in the Glen Cove Neighborhood House. An interesting schedule, listing twenty-seven classes of spring flowers, has been compiled and will be mailed to anyone upon request.
The president appointed the following to act as judges of the monthly exhibits:
Thomas Henderson, George Ashworth and John T. Everitt. Their awards were as follows: Joseph Mastroine, first for Lettuce Big Boston; Harry Goodband, first for Prunus Pissardii; special mention to John F. Johnson, for salpiglossis. The offer of the National Association of Gardeners of a silver medal, to be competed for by members only, was accepted, and the medal is to be awarded to the most meritorious exhibit at the chrysanthemum show in November.

An essay by Edwin H. Costich, entitled "Distinctive American Plants," was read by Robert Jones, and a letter of thanks was ordered sent to the author. Exhibits for the next meeting, which will be held June 13, are: Twelve gladioli, three heads of cauliflower and a bunch of asparagus.

Seed Trade News*AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-fifth annual convention, Detroit, June 19 to 21, 1917.

It is said one of the Dutch houses even has been figuring on buying a gladiolus farm in the middle west.

E. W. PARMELEE, W. B. Lucas and A. L. Sommer have incorporated the J. H. Allan Seed Co., of Sheboygan, Wis., the authorized capital being $110,000.

THE high prices of beans and other food crops on the coast made it impossible for the seed growers there to increase their acreage to the desired extent this year, but in a general way they are having as few troubles as any class of seedsmen.

HEAVY acreage of beans and potatoes is now being planted, seed houses all reporting heavy sales. Prospects are that there will be large plantings all over the country, so that with good crops there should be cheaper beans and potatoes in the fall.

DUTCH bulb prices, which started high and then advanced, are retrograding. It is assured that most of the exporting houses have booked considerably less than the usual number of orders up to this date and a general weakening of prices is only the natural result.

THE state board of pharmacy of Utah has warned the state's seedsmen against the sale of bichloride of mercury and its poisonous derivatives to customers for the purpose of spraying plants and treating seeds. A state law prohibits the sale of these poisons by anyone but registered pharmacists.

It is reported that the differences between the governments of Great Britain and Holland, which have been the real reason why Dutch ships remained in port, have been adjusted and that the Dutch ships will resume their sailings. This probably will insure the arrival of the fall bulb shipments.

WE hear assertions that certain seed houses have increases of seventy-five or even 100 per cent this season and there are no doubts it has been a wonderful business. The marvel is, where did all the seeds come from? As a matter of fact, the increase in value of sales has been much greater than the increase in quantity of seeds sold.

GENUINE dill seed, suitable for pickling houses, is practically out of the market and is in demand at $2 per pound. There is being sold as genuine dill a variety of wild dill, which, however, is not the right variety for pickles and which does not give the genuine dill flavor. As the seeds are quite similar in appearance, some do not seem to know the difference, although readily recognizable to those familiar with true dill. Pickling houses using this cheaper seed will probably damage their pickles to a great extent. It sells for 50 cents to $1 per pound.

NAVY beans for seed purposes are bringing $14 per bushel. Common eating stock sells readily for $11.50 to $12 per bushel.

ACCORDING to A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, there is as yet practically no let-up in the orders daily coming in. Filling-in orders arrive almost as heavily as during the earlier part of the season. The company disposed of a large number of hogs from its La Grange farm May 11 at $16.20 per hundred pounds, the top market price at the time. These hogs were fattened, for the most part, on seed screenings. John Leonard is back from a trip to Excelsior Springs, Mo., where he recuperated after the strenuousness of an exceptionally busy season.

CONFERENCE AT WASHINGTON.

On invitation of the Secretary of Agriculture, representatives of the American Seed Trade Association and the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association held a conference with representatives of the Department of Agriculture at Washington May 10. The whole subject of seed supply for this season and succeeding seasons was gone over.

President K. B. White called a meeting of the executive committee of the Seed Trade Association for May 9 and obtained an almost full attendance.
There also were a number of others present, among them C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis;
W. D. Weedy, general manager of John
A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., and George S. Greene, of the Illinois Seed Co., Chicago.

CANARY ISLAND ONION SEED.

The outlook at this date for the Canary Island onion seed crop is excellent, both as to quality and quantity, according to data supplied the United States consulate by leading growers.
The 1917 crop has suffered little from the blight, which in recent years has done much damage.

As regards quantity, this year's crop is said to be uncommonly large, planting having been much stimulated by the success of last season's record crop, when the exports to the United States reached a value of $84,314. Favorable growing conditions have prevailed, especially as regards rainfall, for the large "secano," or unirrigated, onion seed acreage. Present estimates appear to indicate seed in excess of the 74,987 pounds produced last year.

Conditions seem to indicate the probability of falling prices as soon as the effects of a large crop are felt in the market. A stock of the 1916 white, or wax, seed is reported to exist, and buyers would do well to carefully specify in all contracts for strictly 1917 seed, as 1-year-old seed, it is claimed, fails to give as good results as the strictly fresh article.

On account of the unusual conditions governing international trade, the balance of exchange is heavily against the dollar and in favor of the peseta. Consequently American buyers should, when possible, have all prices specified in terms of United States coin.

It has also been suggested as advantageous for American buyers to agree to settle only after their purchases have been actually put on board ship in a Canary Island port. Many contracts already made have placed all the risk of failure to secure ocean carriage entirely on the American buyer. Yet with prospects of abundant seed, it might be possible for buyers to arrange payment only after actual embarkment on board ship.

Shipments of seed via Liverpool are not possible this season, and the only available route would appear to be via Havana, Cuba, or San Juan, Porto Rico. Even here there are now scheduled but two ships per month, as compared with four during the onion crop season of last year.

The only remaining possible route would be via Cadiz, Spain, where transshipment to New York might be secured; but this route is not regarded favorably here because of the chances of having the merchandise damaged by delays at the intermediate port, a point especially to be avoided by southern buyers, who must make close connections in order to suit the early planting needs of that important onion-growing section.

The Market.

"Nothing doing but funeral work," was the report of several of the retailers this week, and some of them added, "and little of that." There have been one or two weddings and small affairs, but the general trend of business has been downward. Our retailers are plucky and have been making good displays, as if they were really doing business. Some of the stores report a fair transient business, but it is the exception.

Regarding the cheaper stocks, there is just one word for all of them. They are all too plentiful. Good stock that will ship a few hundred miles and reach its destination in good shape is not nearly so plentiful. With the flowering of Cattleya Mossiae, orchids have been more to the front, and valley has appeared in rather larger quantities. Cecile Brunner roses are too abundant and are just about worth what they cost to pick. Greens are far more plentiful. Good plants are scarce, outside of ferns and palms.

Various Notes.

R. W. Garland is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a 9½-pound boy at his home. "Our Bob," as Robert is affectionately known among the staff at Wright's Flower Shop, had the misfortune to be in the hospital at the time of the arrival of the latest. He underwent a slight operation for blood poisoning, the result of a rose-thorn puncture in his hand; so consequently the good news now is that mother, father and child are doing well. David Goldman blew in the other day and reported that he had been left a fortune in the form of a boy.

With the advent of the heated term, C. D. Baker, of Yuma, Ariz., has closed his store for a time and is visiting friends in the city. He will probably be away from Yuma most of the summer.

Walter Garbett, who handles the sales end for W. Armacost & Co., reports "sold out" every day. Considering the season, the high cost of vegetable growing and other hindrances to the flower business, this has a good sound.

Manager Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., says that when one has to send for extra express wagons during May, it looks good for the "house of quality and service."

Heard from one of the latest acquisitions to the flower business: "What are these red violets? Do they flower all the year around?"

C. Woodin has no further connection with the Abbey Flower Shop, having disposed of his interest to his partner. Mr. Woodin has taken a position as secretary to the owner of a large fruit ranch.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports that the young bulbous stock on the new El Monte grounds is doing finely, especially gladioli and tuberose. At the Long Beach place the company has about 9,000 fine plants of plumosus, grown for strings.

"We find The Review a first-class advertising medium and can assure you that we will put in another advertisement as soon as we have stock to offer.

"Hickey & Hollis.

"Petaluma, California, March 13, 1917."

P. Wolfskill, of The Orchid, Pasadena, has been taking a few days off for fishing and reports a good time with the surf fish at Oceanside. Business has been fine.

S. Murata & Co. seem to be keeping their end up in shipments.

An amateur rose show was held at the Hamburger department store May 7, E. Hunt, manager of the flower department, being in charge. A feature of the show was the competition for a name for the new fern grown by F. Hills, of Hills' Nursery, and exhibited by him. The number of competitors was 385, but at the time of writing the name had not been decided on. The judges at the rose show were J. Whitehead, of the H. W. Turner establishment, and F. Hills.

Tassano Bros. are handling a fancy grade of plumosus from the Artesia ranch.

J. M. Bridgeford, of Eagle Rock, is sending in a nice line of Spanish irises. Cajanus, a beautiful clear yellow, is one of the finest.

H. J. Scherer of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, writes that they were in the prize money with their patriotic float of red, white and blue on Raisin day.

The Santa Cruz Evergreen Co. says that business is fair. G. Ghigo, the outside man, is much improved in health.

W. W. Felgate is showing a nice lot of cinerarias, which seem to do well in the foothill climate of Sierra Madre.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society was held at the store of S. Murata & Co. May 9.

Theodore Payne, of Payne's Seed Store, reports the most successful season of his business career.

H. R. Richards.

from greatly exceeding the demand, and the shipping business furnished an outlet for a good deal of stock. Carnations, especially the white varieties, were held back for Mothers' day, and this caused a decided shortage in the local market for several days. Some of the shippers reported that they could not get the flowers to fill their orders for out-of-town delivery.

There is little change in the rose situation since the last report. Good roses sell at moderate prices, while the shorter stock and inferior blooms have to be cleared at low figures. The average quality is excellent. Iris is in full crop and is having a good demand, but the cut will probably begin to decline within ten or fourteen days. Gladioli are seen here and there, but the light offerings do not cut much figure in the market. Peonies are arriving in generous lots. The colored blooms are given preference over the white ones and bring higher prices. A few fine poppies have put in an appearance. Daisies are plentiful, and the supply of delphiniums, calceolarias, coreopsis, cornflowers and other outdoor stock is increasing from day to day. Ranunculi and anemones are about gone, and the same is true of tulips. Valley is about equal to the demand, but more orchids could be used on certain days. Much hawthorn is used in decorative work. Asparagus and adiantum are plentiful and of good quality.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society held its regular meeting May 5. One of the principal matters to come up was the question of holding a flower show in San Francisco next spring, probably in March. Much interest was shown in the proposition, especially after C. W. Ward offered to guarantee $1,000 for the event. H. Plath, who has been a moving spirit in former shows, thanked Mr. Ward heartily on behalf of the society for his generous offer. Frank Pelicano announced plans for the dahlia show to be given early in September by the Dahlia Society of California.

For the bowling committee, Victor Podesta proposed an organization of teams to start practicing at once, and the response was gratifying. The following signed: A. J. Axell, M. A. Poss, Frank Pelicano, Peter Ferrari, Victor Ferrari, Victor Podesta, Frank Thatcher and J. Pagano. For the lecture committee, Mr. Bagee promised to read a paper at the next meeting on "Brands and Misbrands." The books of the society were audited and reported in good order. It was voted to take $800 on hand and deposit it on interest. An application for membership was received from Jonathan E. Webb, of Kentfield. Col. Dawson, of Virginia, was welcomed as a visitor, being the guest of C. W. Ward. He gave an interesting talk on his love for flowers. A fine exhibit of German irises was made by R. Lohrman, of San Rafael. Mr. Lohrman spoke at length on this flower.

Various Notes.

Ferrari Bros. have received a shipment of orchids from South America. This firm has not long been engaged in commercial orchid growing on an extensive scale, but it has already attained a reputation in this line.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, Cal., was here last week on one of his periodic visits and reported business holding up well in the Capital City.

George Wagner, until recently employed in the flower business at St. Louis, Mo., has been added to the staff at B. M. Joseph's store. He has had considerable experience as a decorator and is turning out fine work.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has a fine crop of Russell roses, and A. J. Axell reports a steadily increasing demand for this variety. He says May promises to be a particularly good month, as the regular demand leaves no ground for complaint, and the special orders for Mothers' day and Memorial day bid fair to bring the grand total up to a new high record for a spring month. The company did a heavy shipping business for Mothers' day, indicating that the country florists have come to realize more fully the possibilities of increased sales on that day. A nice lot of orders have been booked for Memorial day.

Archie N. Baldocchi, with Podesta & Baldocchi, has been confined to his home for several days on account of illness.

Two fairly large decorations at the Palace hotel during the last week, in addition to much funeral work, kept the force of the Art Floral Co. busy. Quantities of Russell roses and hawthorn were used at one of the Palace hotel functions, and calceolarias formed the principal feature of the other decoration.

Domoto Bros. report business good for this time of the year. Notwithstanding the heavy supplies of outdoor stock, Mr. Domoto says they have had a clean-up from day to day.

Avansino Bros. were called upon to make two palls of orchids within four days last week, which helped out considerably. As orchids were none too plentiful, they had some difficulty in getting the blooms for the last pall. The second order came as a result of the first, the purchaser having seen the first one leave the store.

Gunnar Madwig, of the newly organized C. Kooyman Co., Inc., has left on a southern and eastern trip, expecting to be gone several weeks.

Friends of F. J. Bertrand, manager of Joseph's, who is on the sick list, will be pleased to hear that he is doing nicely.

W. F. Pitts, head of the W. F. Pitts Seed & Nursery Co., has been visiting the nurseries in the San Joaquin valley.

The firm of Hickey & Hollis, of Petaluma, Cal., has been dissolved.

The most extensive and the finest exhibition of tulips and irises ever seen in San Jose, Cal., was held last week in the convention hall of the Chamber of Commerce. The Cottage Gardens Nurseries, W. B. Clarke, manager, was the principal exhibitor of tulips. The display consisted of 10,000 blooms, comprising 100 or more varieties. The largest showing of irises was made by Horace G. Keesling, proprietor of the Gravel Pit Iris Gardens, in Willows.

The recent flower show held at Los Gatos, Cal., was a splendid success. Among the prize-winners in the professional class were: Brookdale Nurseries, ferns and pelargoniums; Cottage Gardens Nurseries, tulips; Mrs. W. Mansell, columbines; Mrs. Ellis, roses, vines, etc.; Horace G. Keesling, irises, amaryllis and lilies. S. H. G.

The Market.

There is a shortage of all kinds of stock and the condition is becoming acute. Bad weather and a tendency of growers to run to vegetables probably accounts for this. All the retailers have been curtailed in their orders of cut stock. Especially is the shortage of carnations felt. What the retailers would do to supply the demand for Mothers' day was a question. Roses are coming in nice condition from the local growers, but, owing to the shortage in other stock, they are being pushed and are not sufficient for the demand. Nice sweet peas arrive every day, but not in quantities sufficient to supply the demand. Snapdragon is a little more plentiful. Darwin tulips and iris also are showing up, but are not meeting the demand. Dendromecons are being used extensively and make up pretty baskets and centerpieces where yellow is featured. Bedding stock is moving fairly well. Aster plants are coming in nice and sturdy and meet a good demand at 25 cents per dozen for Queen of the Market and 35 cents to 50 cents for Crego at retail.

In Any Quantity BABY RAMBLERS At Any Time

This new class of miniature roses is gaining wonderfully in popularity, and most deservedly so. Their exceeding freedom and continuity of bloom is unsurpassed in any other bedding or border plant. Their possibilities are worth your attention and consideration.

The most rapturously and strikingly beautiful little rose ever introduced. The color is absolutely new and startling in its brilliancy—golden yellow, tipped with clear cerise. The little buds and open flowers are elegantly finished and of most perfect form. Habit of the very best, strong and compact; freedom of bloom is remarkable and continuous throughout the entire season. We have given it a fair and thorough trial and have no hesitancy in offering it as the one best selling rose you ever handled. It is a money-maker.

Tomato and cabbage plants are shown by most of the florists and are selling well. A large number of amateurs, who tried to beat the high cost of living by planting potatoes early in the season, are experiencing a change of heart, as much of their seed has rotted in the ground. With seed potatoes selling at $4.50 to $5.50 per sack, this means a considerable loss.

There has been an improvement in the weather—some sunshine and a little warmer. The first part of last week there was a heavy frost that did considerable damage to outdoor stock, especially to the peony crop.

motored to Tacoma last week and visited the retail trade. Mr. Poleman reports more orders than he can fill.

The net proceeds of the 1917 Tacoma rose show will be turned over to the Red Cross. This action was decided upon at the meeting of the society the evening of May 7. A feature of the show this year will be a large American flag constructed entirely of roses. A red cross of roses with a white rose background also will be exhibited. The show will be held for two days, sometime between June 15 and 30. A committee, consisting of James Hayes, J. H. Holmes, Sydney S. Anderson and David Allstrom, was appointed to get prize cups for the winning exhibitors. The following committee will have charge of the classification of roses: James Hayes, Carl Morresy, Dr. H. de Puy, H. R. Lee and John Schlarb. An innovation will be made by the society this year in awarding a prize to the individual grower who exhibits the finest twenty-four roses. A special prize also is to be awarded for the best roses exhibited by residents of Tacoma who employ gardeners. A cup will be awarded to the florist or professional grower making the best exhibit.

This week has brought the first spring weather and with it have come the outdoor flowers, which usually have been in bloom two to three weeks earlier. As a result of the late season, tulips, especially the Darwins, will be in fine crop for Memorial day.

It was apparent that stock would be scarce for Mothers' day and that no help could be expected from out-of-town sources. California-grown stock is offered at reasonable prices, but at this season, with the weather getting warmer, this is not altogether a satisfactory matter. It takes almost as long to get express shipments from San Francisco to Spokane as from Chicago to Spokane, and flowers will arrive in better shape from the latter point.

Various Notes.

The Spokane Greenhouse Co. had a fine lot of Mrs. Sander marguerites for Mothers' day. These are easily as large and as beautiful as carnations and should command good prices. At the company's place were seen some splendid hanging baskets, about fifty of which have been contracted for by the Hotel Davenport.

E. S. Eugene, of Eugene's Flower Shop, has engaged Robert Briggs to assist him. Mr. Briggs has been with the Hoyt Bros. Co. for about eight years.

L. B. Hill last week combined a visit to the Spokane Greenhouse Co. range, at Marshall, with a day's trout fishing. Mr. Rahn, superintendent of the range, has everything looking fine and ready for a big spring trade. He will just about catch Memorial day with a fine cut of Richmond and Ophelia roses.

window displays, no doubt, influenced the public to buy. The near approach of Mothers' day had some effect, but the greater part of the sales was for general use. Shipping orders were unusually heavy. Although the weather has turned more springlike, bedding stock is moving slowly.

Various Notes.

Niklas & Son have installed a refrigerator in the main room of their store. This will add to the convenience and attractiveness of their salesroom.

E. R. Chappell is receiving some good sweet peas from an outside grower. He finds no trouble in wholesaling his surplus supply.

Some of the department stores have had special sales of perennials at greatly reduced prices.

George Zimmerman has sold his interest in the business of Zimmerman Bros. to his brother, John, and has left Portland.

Clarke Bros. are cutting some fine Darwin tulips, outdoor grown, at their city establishment.

BELLINGHAM, WASH.

Tourists from throughout the northwest visited the bulb gardens Sunday, May 6. A number of growers from Seattle and vicinity took advantage of the good weather and motored to the city.

Now that the violet season is over, local dealers can see where home-grown stock is going to figure somewhat in the demand. While the price for the local is higher than the California blooms, the demand is increasing. John W. Macrae Smith is preparing to increase considerably the production of violets at his greenhouses near this city.

The "plant a patch" hysteria has not diminished the flower garden acreage noticeably and the demand for bedding stock is up to expectations. Gardeners are in demand, local stores having many calls, but no men are available.

Manager Thomas has nearly finished an addition to the greenhouse at the Pacific American Fisheries plant and soon will be ready to stock it. The company maintains a private greenhouse only and does not sell to the trade.

Superintendent Gibson says the work of beautifying the city parks will be somewhat hampered from lack of funds, but that the parks will not be allowed to suffer.

Mr. Case and not Mr. Barnett, as previously reported, has taken a position with the Horst Floral Co.

At a meeting of society directors, it was decided to hold a rose show as usual this year, probably the last part of June.

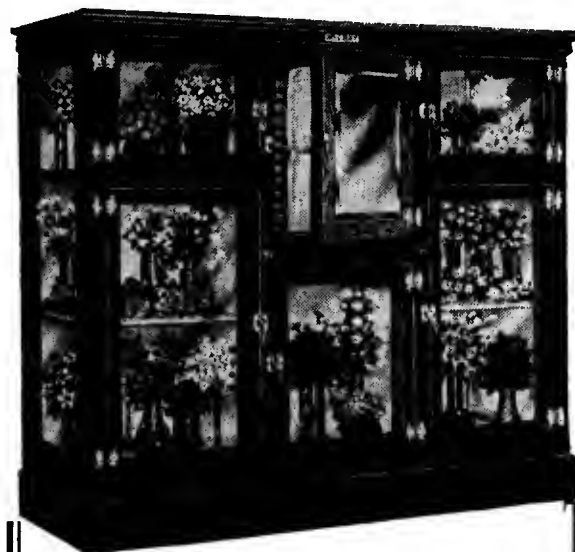

Mr. Chenoweth, of the Mt. Vernon Nurseries, expects much of one or two new roses he is producing this season.

Mr. Stoudden, of Anacortes, contemplates the erection on a downtown corner of a new greenhouse with a retail store in connection.

The Lynden Nurseries, of Lynden, Wash., have opened a store in this city.

Seattle, Wash.—F. W. Gust, trustee for Rosaia Bros., Inc., bankrupt, has paid a first dividend of fifteen per cent to the creditors.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and Counsel, Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.
Forty-second annual convention, Philadelphia, Pa., June 27 to 29, 1917.

THE death of Dr. Horace Lloyd, of St. Louis, Mo., is recorded in the obituary column of this week's issue.

THE death of Francis P. South, of the Kirkman Nursery Co., of Fresno, Cal., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

ON parts of the Angeles National Forest in California the packrats are so abundant that many of the young pines planted by the forest service have been killed or injured by the rodents. The damage seems to take place chiefly in the late summer and fall and is more extensive in dry than in wet seasons. It is thought that the rats tear off the tender bark of the trees to obtain moisture at times when water is scarce.

VARIETIES MUST COME TRUE.

Or Buyer May Recover Damages.

The Idaho Supreme Court, in affirmation of a judgment, has ended a controversy that gives a buyer of fruit trees the right to recover damages for the failure of the trees he purchased to be of the varieties bargained for.

The plaintiff, or buyer, in this case placed with the defendant, or nurseryman, an order for 500 apple trees and forty-five pear, cherry, peach and plum trees, the varieties to be delivered being specifically stated. At the same time his brother and brother-in-law gave certain orders to the same representative of the defendant who took the plaintiff's order. At the agent's suggestion, all three orders were combined in one contract on an understanding for a single shipment. This contract contained the following provision, not covered by the order as originally placed by the plaintiff:

Any stock which does not prove to be true to name as labeled is to be replaced free or purchase price refunded; and all stock to be delivered in a thrifty and healthy condition.

After Four Years Buyer Sues.

On the delivery of all the trees covered by the separate orders, they were divided among the plaintiff, his brother and brother-in-law, each taking what he had ordered. The trees were labeled to indicate the number and variety of the several kinds. Four years after the plaintiff planted his stock he discovered that a large part was not true to name. Among the 500 apple trees ordered by him were 300 Jonathans and 130 Rome Beauties, but those delivered proved to be Wolfe River, Peewaukees and an unknown variety. The buyer sued to recover damages for breach of the contract and obtained judgment for $1,500 in the trial court, which judgment has now been approved by the Supreme court.

stock containing this provision was construed. In considering the contract that court laid down the three following propositions:

Decisions on Phases of Contract.

"First. Where a contract for the sale of fruit trees is prepared by the seller to be signed by the buyer, any uncertainty or ambiguity therein is to be resolved in favor of the buyer.

"Second. That such a contract for the sale of nursery stock contained an implied condition precedent, requiring a substantial performance by the seller, for breach of which the buyer was entitled to recover compensatory damages.

"Third. That the provision of the contract quoted above applied only to such mistakes as were liable to occur in the substantial performance of the contract, and unless there was a substantial performance, the plaintiff's recovery for breach was not limited to the price of the trees not delivered.

"In view of the foregoing construction of this contract, which appears to be correct, it was necessary to determine whether or not there had been a substantial compliance with the contract by the appellant, for if it failed substantially to fulfill its contract, the rule of damages in the case of breach of the individual order and the combination order would be the same."

"The testimony is undisputed that of the 300 Jonathan and 130 Rome Beauty trees ordered, none were delivered, and that only seventy of the 500 apple trees ordered were true to name. No complaint was made as to the delivery of the pear, cherry, peach or plum trees. In view of the foregoing facts there was not a substantial compliance with the contract on the part of the appellant."

BUFFALO.

The Market.

May 12 found the market cleaned up, with carnations, as expected, in demand on all sides. Fine American Beauties were to be had for Mothers' day, as well as other varieties of roses, including Mrs. Russell and Francis Scott Key. A heavy run of funeral work brought on a demand for white roses. The bulbous stock offered consisted of jonquils and poeticus narcissi. Fair weather Mothers' day stimulated the sale for corsages and this resulted in a large movement in sweet peas.

Various Notes.

J. A. Lane, of the Basket Shop, Bellefonte, Pa., called on the trade last week. If you should see a streak of green traveling down Main street, you may rest assured that it is Charles Felton in his new Overland car.

The Florists' Club met Wednesday evening, May 9, in the auditorium of the Electric building. Professor Lumsden, of Ithaca, gave an interesting talk on floriculture. He said that throughout the country people are planting their vacant plots to various kinds of vegetables. He said it was not necessary for people to change plans or dig out their shrubs and perennials to make garden space, because there is much fertile land that is not being tilled. The meeting was most successful and it is hoped by the officers that more members will attend in the future.

Stroh's Quality Flower Shop reports a heavy demand for garden seeds.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Mothers' day business was better than ever. There was a big demand for cut flowers of all kinds and for carnations especially. Carnations were not so plentiful as last year and the supply did not meet the demand. Many plants were sold when the cut flower supply was exhausted.

Various Notes.

J. C. Elspermann could not supply the demand for cut flowers at his store. The same condition obtained at the store of Julius Niednagel & Sons.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. had good cuts of roses and carnations, but could not fill all the orders received.

Karl Zeidler had an abundance of carnations and roses, which sold well. He has added another light delivery car to his equipment, now having three in service.

Theodore Kuebler sold a large quantity of flowers at the market.

Otto Kuebler reports a large sale of flowers and plants at Brege's store.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Cold, dark weather continues, and last week there were rain, snow and hail. The cuts of roses and carnations were smaller than a year ago, causing the wholesalers considerable trouble, as they were unable to supply the needs of the retailers.

Carnations for Mothers' day averaged $8 per hundred wholesale, and as one of the department stores was advertising them at $1 and $1.25 per dozen, the retailers had difficulty in getting a fair price. The weather, too, had a depressing effect on business.

Some of the retail stores made a run on tumbler baskets filled with flowers other than carnations and they seemed to take.

Various Notes.

Several of the retailers made the rounds of the growers trying to contract for their cuts of carnations for Mothers' day. It is reported that the growers refused to sell, except through the commission men.

Frank Stafford has the sympathy of his many friends in the trade in the loss of his 5-year-old daughter, Regina May, who died Tuesday, May 8.

SEWICKLEY, PA.

The monthly meeting of the Sewickley Horticultural Society was held May 8, President Barnet presiding. The schedule for the September show was adopted as presented by the committee. A resolution was adopted that the Sewickley Horticultural Society view with hearty approval the efforts of the Women's Club of Sewickley in its work in connection with the cultivation of vacant lots in Sewickley and its environs, and that the society offer that body its hearty cooperation in the undertaking.

M. Curran and William Thomson showed fine specimens of herbaceous calceolarias and J. Barnet exhibited persicas in variety.

IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

¶ We are now booking orders for our new seedling Superb, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Superb is a seedling of Gloriosa and Enchantress. It has the good stem of Gloriosa and the fine growing habit of Enchantress. The color is a flesh pink and it keeps its color at all seasons. The flowers average about three inches, are very full and generally receive full score on substance. The flowers are all perfect and do not split. In the four years we have grown it, it has proved the best commercial variety, barring none.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING TWO HOUSES.

Will you be so kind as to help me with my problem in heating? I have two greenhouses, with a shed and boiler pit in the center. The east house is 31x90, containing 6,000 square feet. I wish to grow roses in this house. What piping will be needed to heat it to 65 or 70 degrees in zero weather? The west house is 30x65 and is to be used for carnations. In it I want a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. I have a No. 3 Kroeschell boiler, the top of which is even with the floor of the greenhouses. The boiler has three 4-inch outlets and three 4-inch openings for returns.

W. H.—Utah.

We are not able to furnish any really definite suggestions for heating the houses described, from the fact that the description is incomplete, and particularly because the amount of glass in the walls is not stated. It also appears that an error has been made in computing the area of glass in the larger house. To have 6,000 square feet of glass in a house 31x90, the glass in the walls on three sides of the house would have to be more than twelve feet high.

It seems more likely that there will not be more than three feet of glass, and in that case we would use a 2½-inch flow upon each plate and three others overhead, placing one about three feet below the ridge and one on each side about halfway between the ridge and the plates. For the returns we would use a coil of four 2-inch pipes on each side wall, or under each side bench, and three coils of three 2-inch pipes each under the other benches, connecting each of the coils with one of the overhead flows.

If the 6,000 square feet of glass are correct, we would change the suggested piping by substituting 3-inch flows for the wall plates, and using six 2-inch returns on each side of the house and four in each of the other return coils. In case the end of the house is much exposed, one of the returns on each of the walls might be carried around the end of the house to a point beneath the purlin and connected with one of the overhead flow pipes.

For the carnation house, 30x65, we would use three 2½-inch flows, placing one upon each plate and the other two feet below the ridge, and connecting each of them with three 2-inch returns.

This will suffice for houses with 2½ feet of glass in the side walls, but we would add one return for each additional vertical foot of glass in the rose house or for each one and one-half feet of additional glass in the carnation house.

The flow pipes should run downhill and each should be connected with the expansion tank at its highest point. If one boiler is to be used for both houses, we would use two 4-inch flow and return openings for the rose house and one for the carnation house. One of the 4-inch flows might be carried up to a point about three feet below the ridge of the rose house, and, after being connected with the expansion tank, would branch and supply each of the flow pipes upon the plates. The other 4-inch flow might be used in the same way to supply the three overhead flow pipes. Provided there are no more than 3,600

BUSINESS ECONOMY

Conserve the National Resources

Eliminate Waste in Your Business

Begin Now to do Your Share—it Will Help You and Others

One of the biggest items of expense in the greenhouse business is the heating question. Why then for fancy's sake or otherwise do you sit silently by and watch the unnecessary losses of fuel go on day by day?

It is your money that is lost—the waste harms everyone. Stop! Stop!! Stop!!!

Many practical growers have solved this vital question.

You can do so, too.

The remedy is simple.

Get a Kroeschell—the boiler of unequaled fuel economy. It will pay you well.

Read What Our Customers Say

A Record for the Winter of 1916-1917

Mr. Wendel is surely pleased with his No. 14 Kroeschell Boiler—it is a PEACH, that is all there is to it. We surely had some winter, which we all know.

Our houses have never been below 52°, and it was not necessary to force our boiler. Best of all, we saved two carloads of coal over a year ago.

(Signed) CROWN POINT FLORAL CO., Crown Point, Ind.
Hans Jepsen, Grower.

No Heat Lost With the Kroeschell

The two No. 46 Kroeschell Water Tube Steam Boilers which you furnished for our new plant surely are giving us satisfactory service. These boilers are internally fired, and ECONOMICAL fuel burners, being very fast steamers. With baffle arrangement such as you have, it consumes all the heat cast from the combustion chamber instead of letting it out of stack.

(Signed) NEW HAVEN FLORAL CO., H. J. C. Leitz,
New Haven, Ind.

Entire Plant Now Heated by Kroeschell's Famous Boilers

We have just placed No. 14 Boiler purchased of you. This takes the place of two cast iron boilers and one 60 H. P. tubular boiler. As we were the first to install one of your boilers on Long Island, it might interest you to know that we want no other kind on our place. This makes three we have, and they do their work economically and are on the job all the time. You may use this letter in any way you wish.

(Signed) JAMES D. COCKCROFT, Northport, L. I.

Kroeschell Uses Only One-half the Coal

Have taken out return tubular boiler which used one-half more coal than the Kroeschell Boiler—it is so easy to regulate that in a few minutes I can run up the temperature by opening drafts.

(Signed) FRANK A. WAGNER, Tiffin, Ohio.

Kroeschell Does the Work of Two Boilers—Saves Fuel

Your boiler does the work of two tubular boilers—saves fuel, needs less attention, as the fire lasts much longer—is easily cleaned.

square feet of glass in the rose house, the main flow and return pipes might be reduced at the boiler to 3-inch. The arrangement of the main-flow pipe to supply the carnation house should be similar to the foregoing, except that it should supply the three 2½-inch flows in the house.

MINNEAPOLIS.

The Market.

Business, which had been dull since Easter, was given an impetus last week by the Mothers' day sales. The demand for the day this year exceeded any previous year. The rush began Thursday, was greater Friday and Saturday was the best day in several weeks. Of course there was a big demand for white carnations and roses, but all flowers and plants sold well. Mothers' day is becoming one of the biggest selling days of the year for Minneapolis florists.

Prices went up, especially for carnations. There was a good supply, with large blooms and excellent stems. Roses were plentiful and the big demand was met by a supply of fine stock at good prices. American Beauties were hard to obtain and orchids were scarce. Sweet peas were in big demand and the supply was exhausted in many of the retail stores.

Some of the florists had a great variety of stock, including poeticus, daffodils, daisies, stocks, irises, forget-me-nots, snapdragon and a few peonies and gladioli. Pansies and other plants are coming in and sell rapidly. Marguerite, geranium, hydrangea and rose plants also had a good sale. It was, however, difficult to secure fine plants, as some of the greenhouses connected with cemeteries are getting ready for outdoor work.

This has been a great year for the seed business, especially in the sale of garden seeds. The warm, springlike weather the last of the week helped all branches of the trade.

Various Notes.

The Whitted Floral Co. has installed seed departments in both of its stores. At the Tenth street store there is a showing of a fine line of shrubs. The company reports a good business in both cut flowers and plants for Mothers' day.

There were many artistic window displays before Mothers' day. Swanson's, Inc., had a picture of "mother" as the central feature and around was arranged a fine collection of cut flowers and plants.

If you have plants and want cash for them, or if you have cash and want plants for it, there is an easy way to accomplish either. Just put a classified ad in The Review and the results will move you to write like this:

MILWAUKEE.

The week preceding Mothers' day was good and, while the weather still was cool, the sunshine helped the cut during the last of the week. The demand for stock was extremely large and the shortage was most acute. Reports in general show that the war as yet is not affecting the business unfavorably; sales compare favorably with last year's.

Carnations, of course, were in the greatest demand and early orders specified color and quantity, but on account of the scarcity of stock later orders were filled with anything and nothing was said about prices. Assorted stock sold at $6 straight, while whites brought $8. There were few splits on the market and these sold for almost as much as good stock. The assortment was good, and while white was most in demand, followed closely by red, the quantity of each was in good proportion to the total supply.

Roses were in big demand and sold well. There was a shortage of the shorter grades and everything cleaned up in fine shape. Long stock moved nicely and the proportion disposed of demonstrated that the trade in general is pushing other stock than carnations for the day more heavily than in the past. Sweet peas were in heavy demand and there was not nearly enough to go around. The quality of this stock was good for this time of year and satisfactory prices were realized for the entire supply. Snapdragon also was called for in quantity and cut quite a figure in the market. Of course bulbous stock was on the wane, but what there was in the market was readily disposed of.

Orchids sold well and there were some exceptionally fine cattleyas, which were disposed of at fair prices. Valley was a negligible quantity; there was practically none to be had. There was a fair quota of funeral work, which helped to keep everyone on the jump toward the end of the week. Lilies sold well and callas were moved with little difficulty.

On the whole, business was more than good, but it is to be deplored that all orders could not be handled satisfactorily. Retailers cleaned up nicely May 12, and although the figures are not in at the present writing, it was the biggest Mothers' day ever experienced by the trade.

CLEVELAND.

With the cold weather of the last few weeks, carnations and roses were slow in coming. The result was a shortage, especially of carnations. The cool nights were just what the growers of bulbous stock wanted and daffodils and tulips were to be had in quantity. Without these flowers to help out, the market would have been decidedly short of cut flowers. There were about enough to go around, carnations being the leaders. Roses, snapdragons, baby gladioli, irises, daffodils and Darwin tulips were ready sellers.

The Cleveland flower buyers are beginning to realize the true significance of Mothers' day. Our local advertising is done with a view to teaching the public that the proper flower to give or wear on Mothers' day is not the white carnation, as worn by Miss Jarvis, but the flower that is, or was, the mother's favorite flower. The result is that flowers other than carnations were asked for and plants, such as hydrangeas, spiræas, rambler roses, gloxinias, tuberous-rooted begonias, daffodils and tulips, sold easily. Reports from all parts of the city show a large increase in the sales over other years. Mothers' day is getting better each year. It is not a question of whether the stock will sell, but rather of what can be had to sell.

For Memorial day let us hope that geraniums at $1 per dozen and porch boxes at $1 per foot are things of the past. It is not necessary to organize to keep the price up. Charge a fair price for your stock, so that you can realize a fair profit and not a loss. Your neighbor is hurting no one but himself when he undersells you.

Geraniums and other bedding stock cost from ten to fifty per cent more to grow the last year than in other years. Grow good, select stock and you can get any fair price you ask. F. A. F.

The Market.

Cold, cloudy weather has had an effect on outdoor-grown stock the last week. Many growers had sweet pea vines filled with buds, which dropped off before blooming. Considerable quantities of sweet peas are now coming, however. Carnations are plentiful and were in demand at high prices for Mothers' day. Other stock also has brought good prices.

The indoor bulbous stock is fast disappearing from the market. Outdoor stock is not yet coming in large quantities, but some coldframe stock is arriving. Each week sees a larger quantity of bedding plants in the market. Geraniums are coming in good supply, and pansies are plentiful. Mignonette is in the market, and potted heliotrope has appeared. Easter lilies and callas are of excellent quality. Seeds continue to sell well, although there has been some let-up on account of the weather.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

The Hayman Greenhouse Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va., has had an uninterrupted demand for funeral work during the season. The business done during the month of April was the largest ever experienced by this firm, and, considering the condition of the country at large, this speaks well.

Patriotism was the keynote of a fine window by the J. W. Dudley & Sons Co., of Clarksburg. There was a large magnolia wreath, with a profusion of flags and tricolored ribbons. Miss M. Love has joined the force as a designer.

"Seeds that grow," besides much design work and counter trade, are keeping the H. Weber & Sons Co. store force at Clarksburg unusually busy. The large acreage at Oakmont, Md., is being planted to vegetables. The Weber boys believe in "doing their bit" to increase the country's food supply.

Joseph Haube, of Charleroi, Pa., is giving his usual assistance to the folks about Charleroi, telling them what and how to plant. The cold weather has retarded sales of bedding stock and has slightly checked the sale of seeds.

C. W. Kinder, of Charleroi, is manufacturing door wreaths for undertakers, and this has proven a successful venture. I. V. Kinder is displaying "patriotic" baskets filled with spring flowers.

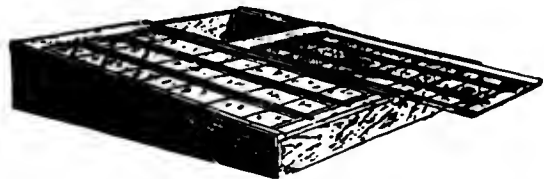

It is said that a new flower store will be opened in Morgantown, W. Va., this season. The plans are being withheld, awaiting action by the local council.

Leaman & Titherington have opened a store at Fairmont, W. Va. They have enjoyed a successful business since the opening.

The new store of H. Weber & Sons Co. at Fairmont is a well-arranged one and most attractive. Seeds are given space in the rear. Marble-topped counters are on one side of the store, displaying ribbons and novelties, while plants are displayed on the opposite side. Sidewall cases are used to display baskets and sundries. A tile floor and mirrors give a tone of richness desirable in a flower store.

The Skinner System As It Looks To The "Other Fellow"

The "other fellow" hasn't any axe to grind. What he says about the Skinner System of Irrigation, he says because it's so. Almost daily we get letters from these "other fellows." Three of them we give below. Our Experience Book gives many more. Send for it.

INDOORS

Fred W. Ritchey, of Lancaster, Pa., says:—
"In the greenhouse, if you only take the labor saved, one season will more than pay for the Skinner System of Irrigation."

A. Forsyth, of Hamilton, Ont., says:—
"The water comes out like dense fog, entirely shutting the contents of the house from view, and I have noticed that it is so fine that seedlings are very rarely found lying down after watering."

OUTDOORS

N. Zweifel, of No. Milwaukee, Wis., says:—

"Now that we have your System of Irrigation, we have no trouble in getting strong, healthy carnation plants, free from red spider and other insects. One can say, without exaggeration, that the Skinner System pays for itself several times in one season."

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Mothers' day this year was more generally observed in this city than ever before. The principal reason for this was the advertising of the downtown florists and the resulting business was good.

Trade has been exceptionally good, especially on funeral work. Bedding plants have experienced a good sale and will without doubt continue to do so until Memorial day. Already numerous orders for that occasion have been booked by the florists. This will be the last remaining big day of the season, as practically all the schools will close with few, if any, decorations.

Various Notes.

Frederick Cole, of the Still River Gardens, has opened a store at 95 Snow street for the sale of trees, shrubs and plants.

The northern section of the state was visited by a snow storm May 5. The snow was more than an inch in depth in many places.

William N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., was the speaker at a meeting last week of the Fruit Hill Improvement Association, his topic being "Kitchen Gardens."

One of the most attractive display windows recently seen in this city was that of T. J. Johnston & Co., on Washington street. Palms and evergreens were used, with a miniature fountain in the center and a score or more of canary birds flying about.

Willis Hoyt, a graduate of the New Hampshire State College, has assumed his duties as superintendent of home gardens at North Attleboro.

William E. Chappell, who has been on the sick list for several weeks, is reported to be improving.

George Herrmann, of A. Herrmann, Inc., New York, was a visitor last week.

An addition is being erected at the range of the Hoxsie Nurseries, at Hoxsie station. The concern expects to add two or three new houses in the fall.

BUSINESS BRINGERS—

REVIEW CLASSIFIED ADS.

PLUMB'S WINNING WAYS.

The flower business has grown so fast in Detroit, where the automobiles come from, that only live men have been able to keep up with the procession the last few years. What, then, do you think of the 12-cylinder efficiency of a man like Charlie Plumb? He not only has been able to keep up with the natural growth of the business, but his capacity so exceeds the demands made upon him that he went so far this spring as to have a moving picture taken of the flowers growing in his greenhouses and showed it for a week in a near-by picture theater.

The moving picture was a great success. It was taken about three weeks before Easter and, if it did not actually show the lilies growing, it showed the growers growing lilies and the people buying lilies of the growers. It is understood the film, which was of sufficient length to require three minutes for the showing, cost Mr. Plumb about $90 and that he paid $25 to have it shown in the theater once an hour for a week. He says it was the best advertising he ever has done.

Mr. Plumb also has an original way of meeting the existing conditions in the matter of help. After Easter he had several houses vacant. One of the best of them he turned over to his employees and he also gave them seed, soil and everything else needed to grow a big crop of tomato plants in 2 1/2-inch pots. The men are required to do all the work in that house before and after working hours, but all the sales of tomato plants are credited to the men's account. When the spring season is over and all the tomato plants have been sold the proceeds of that house will be divided among the men. Of course it is equivalent to a raise in wages, but it has the decided advantage that no man who has a share in the pool will quit his job until after the spring rush is over; otherwise his share would be forfeited to the men who remain.

Latrobe, Pa.—J. Bohler, superintendent of Idlewild park and owner of a florists' business here, died last month.

A chance to do your bit—

FOR more than two score years now, we, the citizens of these United States, have paused in the hurry and turmoil of business long enough to turn aside for one day in every year and do reverence to the nation's dead—and to offer a silent prayer of thanks for these real men who, in the hour of need, were ready and willing to give the fullest measure of devotion to the country which had given them the greatest amount of freedom in developing their lives and opportunities. And now this hour of need again is upon us and, without blare of trumpets or shouting of multitudes, strong men, good men, the best of the land are quietly stepping forward, even as their fathers and grandfathers did, to show that they are not unmindful of their obligation to this nation.

It has always seemed fitting that we should show in some way our appreciation of the sacrifice made by our honored dead, and nothing has ever better expressed this appreciation than the placing of flowers on their graves. And now, more than ever before, we realize what we owe to these patriots. Therefore, let us show this increased appreciation by urging upon our fellow countrymen in every walk of life a fuller and more general manifestation of this appreciation. Let us resolve that, "with charity to all and malice toward none," the sun shall not set on an undecorated grave the evening of May 30th, whether it be that of soldier, sailor, civilian, woman or little child.

And what of the living heroes, the rapidly dwindling ranks of our veterans of former wars and the rapidly increasing ranks of our soldiers, sailors and marines of today? Shall we forget them? Let us rather show our appreciation of them while they are yet with us. Let us bend every effort to the end that no veteran nor any man wearing a uniform of this country shall be without at least a boutonniere on this 30th day of May.

New Giant Waved or Spencer SWEET PEAS

There is no other flower that ranks greater in importance to the florist than Sweet Peas. Since the introduction of Countess Spencer some years ago, they have steadily grown in favor. The florist may obtain any of his favorite colors of the Grandiflora type in the Spencers.

Flowers gigantic in size (often 2 inches in diameter), stems stiff, 12 to 15 inches long; the foliage and flower extraordinary in appearance.

BREITMEYER FLORAL COMPANY

FRED BREITMEYER, Proprietor

MT. CLEMENS, MICHIGAN

This is the Open Express model—selling complete at $715, F. O. B. Philadelphia. Vim Delivery Cars are also produced in eleven other standard types of bodies on the VIM half-ton Chassis—suitable for one hundred kinds of commercial delivery, as well as Public Service Corporations, Hospitals, Fire Departments, Express Companies, Farm Delivery, etc.

Owing to our city being so spread out, it was a difficult thing for us to make all our deliveries with two horses. The VIM Truck does it now with the greatest ease and comfort, and we have never recommended anything with so much delight as we are doing the VIM Truck.

VALENTINE BURGEVIN, Inc., Kingston, N. Y.

HERE we have the old, old problem of a clientele scattered over a large territory—expensive to serve because of the unproductive distances between them.

This is a situation that confronts every merchant at one time or another—the florist probably most of all.

It is a condition that no delivery system had ever met successfully until the VIM Delivery came along, with its ability, its economy, and its clean trick of putting the miles behind it in spite of crowded traffic.

The merchant who has known only the converted pleasure car type of truck has a new experience coming to him with the VIM.

For the first time he will find efficient handling of his merchandise, the VIM always on the job; minimum repairs and replacement; and less expense for gasoline and tires than he had thought possible.

The VIM Delivery Truck is the most economical unit for delivering any load up to half a ton of merchandise.

You ought to know the VIM Delivery Car, and the VIM Deferred Payment Plan.

You use your VIM Car while you are paying for it out of the money the VIM delivery saves from the cost of your present delivery methods.

22,000 merchants have made VIM Delivery Cars pay for themselves

$665.

WAR'S WORK ON THE RANUNCULUSES

Ranunculus is Latin for Little Frog, applied, no doubt, because many of the species enjoy the same environment as diminutive tailless leaping amphibians, but that is another story; this one has to do with the sudden rise in popularity this plant has enjoyed in America, and how it came about.

AMONG the many curious and unforeseen results of the great war has been popularizing in the United States that hitherto little known and lightly regarded European favorite, the ranunculus. That the flower, known in an insignificant way for many years, but a regular item of stock in only one or two cut flower markets, this season has achieved a permanent place in the trade in practically all parts of America is recognized by many, but how it came so suddenly to pass, with this flower of ancient origin, is not a matter of common knowledge. Here is the story:

Ranunculuses, or, if you prefer the Latin, ranunculi, are as old as botanical literature. Parkinson mentions them in his Paradisus, and that was almost three centuries ago, in 1629. But it might almost be said that the ranunculus was a stranger to the trade until this year; indeed, it would be a safe bet that not half the readers of this article ever have seen the bulbs or would recognize the plant without the flower.

Before the War.

The buttercup is a member of the family, which is one of annual or perennial herbs, numbering about 300 species, scattered all over the world, but mostly in the temperate and colder regions. This article deals only with the Turban ranunculus, R. asiaticus var. africanus of the botanists. The flowers are extremely double, almost globular, regular in outline, often exceed two inches in diameter, and are to be had in all the colors except blue. The colors, moreover, are bright, clear and pure.

The "bulbs" of the ranunculus resemble tiny clumps of dahlia roots; they look as much like spiders as anything. The bulbs are supplied by all Holland exporters, but they come only from one small locality, the town of Alkmaar. Nowhere else in the world does the fibrous-rooted ranunculus thrive as in the friable soil of the vicinity of this Dutch city of 20,000 people, some fifteen miles north of Haarlem. Here, within a radius of five miles, the world's supply of florists' ranunculuses is grown. Other crops of the district are Spanish irises, anemones and colchicums.

A before-the-war crop of ranunculus bulbs at Alkmaar was 4,000,000 to 5,000,000. They are grown in small lots by scores of gardeners, who sell at or before harvest to dealers or larger growers. The average gardener produces 25,000 to 50,000 bulbs a season. The crop is lifted in August and represents three years' work. Seeds furnish the start, and the seedlings are undisturbed for the first two years. A year before the crop is merchantable the tiny bulbs are lifted and spaced apart at replanting, as the third year gives the most rapid growth.

In normal times by far the greater part of the Alkmaar crop of ranunculus bulbs went annually to France, all but a few hundred thousands—at least 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 out of a possible production of 4,000,000 to 5,000,000. Along the Mediterranean the bulbs were planted outside, for cut flowers to be shipped to the markets of Europe, Paris principally, but also to London, Berlin, Petrograd and many other cities, for the ranunculus has had a vogue that has made it possible for the southern gardeners to find a profitable market for from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 flowers each winter.

The Embargo.

But last summer, just as the crop of ranunculus bulbs was maturing at Alkmaar, the French government, following the lead of the British, prohibited the importation of bulbs from Holland. The result was quite a few millions of ranunculus bulbs without a market, unless they could be worked off in America.

Now you know how it happened that the ranunculus was so much in evidence here a few weeks ago.

Although limited quantities of ranunculuses had come into the cut flower markets in other years, the crop had as sumed no importance and was grown by only a few specialists. Consequently, it was a distinct novelty to most flower buyers; even the name was unfamiliar. Also, there were a good many in the trade who did not know as much about the ranunculus as they will when they have read to the end of this article.

Ranunculus Romano, Brilliant Scarlet.

But the flowers were a welcome addition to the stock of many a flower store that had known them not before. They were new and they were useful; also, they were extremely pretty, and the way they keep was a surprise. Indeed, the keeping quality is one of the chief merits of the fragile-looking flower. The ones photographed for this article stood on the writer's table a week after they had served their purpose.

Large Losses of Bulbs.

The ranunculus, however, sadly disappointed many a grower who listened to the smooth-spoken Hollander and took on a quantity of bulbs for "forcing." One can not "force" ranunculuses. If one tries to do so he scores a complete failure of his crop. Also, the requirements in the matter of water are exactly opposite from what one would deduce from the name and the native habitat which is supposed to be responsible for the appellation. Quite the opposite of requiring moisture, the Turban ranunculuses grown in greenhouses must be kept on the dry side or the roots will rot and the stock will be lost. One grower accepted 200,000 bulbs dry. If the temperature is even a little high it will result in crooked stems, curved at the neck; good, strong, stiff stems are to be had only in a cool house.

Cultural Directions.

Here are cultural directions by a man who has scored a success with them:

"The roots usually arrive in October and are better if placed in the soil as soon as time will permit, although it will not harm them seriously if they are packed away in dry sand in a cool shed or cellar for some weeks. Pots, pans, flats or benches may be used for growing ranunculuses, but flats and benches give me the most satisfactory results. I have had good success by using flats five inches deep, planting the roots in late October, then placing in coldframes and covering with dry leaves on the approach of severe weather, protecting sufficiently to exclude frost and housing the flats from the early part of February onward.

"The compost used is light but tolerably rich, consisting of three parts loam, one part leaf-mold, one part old, well decayed manure passed through a 1/2-inch screen, and a generous dash of sharp sand. The flats should be well drained.

"For those growing a limited number, flats are to be recommended, but where bench space will permit the roots can be planted out four to five inches apart each way. I have had them do finely less leaf growth than do the singles and exhaust the soil less. A violet temperature, 40 to 45 degrees at night, is just what ranunculuses need, and, as they do not make a heavy growth which shades the violets appreciably and do not impoverish the soil, this method of culture can with confidence be recommended.

"In a poorly drained bed or bench many ranunculus roots will rot, but given suitable porosity to allow water to pass away readily, any florist can grow these pretty spring flowers creditably. Strong fumigation where they are growing should be avoided. Occasionally green aphids may attack the foliage, but light fumigation will readily control this. If the plants turn yellow it is a sign of overwatering, poor drainage, too high temperature, or a combination of the three.

"It will not pay to attempt to carry over ranunculuses a second season. The roots are so cheap in Holland that it would not pay to dig up the roots, and even if they were saved and replanted the crop of flowers would be almost nothing."

Why Bulb Prices Fluctuate.

Confronted with the necessity of finding a new market for the 1916 crop of bulbs, it is natural that the price fell sharply, but last year was not the first one in which there was no profit for the Alkmaar growers; it had been bad in 1915 and worse in 1914. It looked as though something had to be done. So some of the principal factors in the ranunculus business at Alkmaar got together, put up some money and bought up all the stock they could get their hands on. They destroyed what they thought they did not need. It was a case of restricting the output this season.

The result is that the price for 1917 is three times what the 1916 crop brought—and yet any grower who wants to follow the wonderfully increased popularity of the flower can get all the bulbs he wants at $6 per thousand along with his import order. Large importers will get them even cheaper and jobbers will not ask much more.

Some Good Varieties.

The Dutch catalogues list about a dozen named varieties of Turban ranunculuses, they run the range of colors, but half the quantity grown has been the one variety Romano, brilliant scarlet. It is shown in the illustration on the preceding page. Merveilleuse in some of the catalogues is Citron in others. It is a clear orange yellow. Hercules is the white. Grootvorst, which is Hollandese for Great King, is a beautiful soft carmine. Souci Doré, brownish orange, is a good seller, but the grower who goes in for ranunculuses will want an assortment, especially if he retails his stock.

Ranunculus Hercules, Pure White, Somewhat Enlarged.

last autumn and succeeded in flowering only 3,000. There were many others who failed; they grew them too warm and too wet.

Properly handled, the plants will average from two to three flowers each, the blooming period being February to April. But the temperature should be 40 degrees to 50 degrees, not higher, and in an ordinary carnation compost, but the addition of some old manure, leaf-mold and sand made them still better.

Another Method.

"Another method of growing ranunculuses which has given good results is to dot them between violet plants, particularly double ones, which make

Scranton, Pa.—Anton Schultheis has advanced the retail prices of bedding plants. One special item, geraniums, is $1.75 per dozen. He finds his patrons, with few exceptions, willing to pay this for good stock. His argument is that it is easier to sell well grown stock at an increase than poor stock at a low price, for the reason that the better the article, the more it is appreciated. The average buyer realizes the increased cost of production.

TWENTY-THREE OUT, NINE IN.

Here is a florist who knows a good thing when he sees it. He is Crammatte, florist and confectioner at Aberdeen, Wash., and he had thirty-two F. T. D. orders for Mothers' day, twenty-three out and nine in. Here is what he says about it:

"Our city is only a place of 15,000 population and of course the amount of F. T. D. business coming to us would not be great, but I am interested in the matter, as I believe it is a wonderful thing for the florists. For Mothers' day we sent out seventeen telegrams and six letters and received four telegrams and five letters from other florists, so we can see the possibilities of the work."

A MOTHERS' DAY WINDOW.

The Penn store in Boston has been a strong advertiser for many years and has made great progress by it. Even while located in a narrow side street good windows were maintained as a means of backing up the newspaper advertising on which reliance was placed. Since removal to one of the best Tremont street corners it has been found advisable to devote greater attention to the window displays and some notable decorations have resulted.

Mothers' day has been one of the occasions that seemed both easy and difficult to decorate for—the average florist put a borrowed picture of Mother, probably Whistler's, in the window amid the flowers and let it go at that. The Penn decorator developed the idea, using figures of a mother and child. The following description is in the gushy phraseology most publicity men seem to think they must use when they write it for the public, but the trade will get the idea:

"The grand display in Penn's flower shop window will be long remembered by those who happened to be on Tremont street and Hamilton place during the week preceding Mothers' day. Many would have forgotten that mother was entitled to her bunch of flowers had they not passed and seen the little girl handing the bouquet to her mother, in forms so true to life as to sap a tear from thousands of spectators who stopped, meditated, and in most cases decided to enter and remember mother.

"As usual, the display artist at Penn's did himself credit. The enormous window was enriched with photographs of mothers loaned by Louis Fabian Bacharach, the photographer. The decorations consisted of snapdragon, carnations, iris and everything seasonable in the flower world on the rich thoroughfare accommodating the best passers-by in Boston."

THE LAST ECHO.

Carnations and Mothers' Day.

Although the trade's spotlight now is focused on Memorial day activities, and June with its brides is just around the corner, there still is time, before turning a leaf in the annals, for a brief retrospection of one of the features attending this year's Mothers' day business. During the dark, unseasonably cold days preceding May 13, there were those who decried all the publicity then being planned for Mothers' day. What good is there in such extensive advertising, said they, when the stronger demand thus created in all likelihood will fizzle out before a shortage of stock? The supply of white carnations, not to mention other items, will be far from adequate.

The records for the day show that in many cases the supply of stock did miss the demand by a wide margin, and this is to be deplored; but there was another outcome, which probably will be of greater importance to the trade in the future, and that was the partial "fade-out" of the popular idea that the white carnation, and the white carnation alone, is the flower appropriate for and emblematic of Mothers' day. It was gratifying to note that nearly every florist who spent money in advertising the day did his share toward weaning the public from the white carnation notion. "Give her flowers" and "Send your mother her favorite flower" were the keynotes of the advertising that helped to shift some of the burden from the carnations.

Gloeckner's Gumption.

The florists' exploitation of Mothers' day this year was unprecedented as to volume, and for that reason undoubtedly many a son or daughter was disappointed at the eleventh hour because neither white carnations, nor red carnations, nor roses, nor sweet peas could be had at the florist's. But, taking another tack, this heavy advertising initiated many into their first observance of Mothers' day, with the result that the pickings are likely to be easier next year.

Among those who strove hardest to put carnations in the background for Mothers' day was William C. Gloeckner, of Albany, N. Y. As reported in last week's issue, Mr. Gloeckner sent to his customers a circular in the shape of a card, on one side of which he featured two special $1 boxes, one containing two bunches of sweet peas and the other a dozen roses. How did it work? Here is Mr. Gloeckner's report:

"I sold more than 200 of these boxes for delivery Sunday morning, May 13, and it was the best thing I ever did, as the people asked for the special boxes and forgot all about carnations. I think that if all florists would try out specials like mine, featuring stock that is likely to be plentiful for the day, we soon would educate the people away from the carnation idea."

PRIZE MONEY TO RED CROSS.

The schedule committee of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society at its meeting May 18 adopted a resolution which may be a suggestion for other flower show committees.

For twenty-one years this society has annually held a flower show in Madison, N. J., appropriating $1,000 as prize money.

This year the society will simply give red, white and blue ribbons as the prizes, and the money usually devoted to prizes will be turned over to the American Chapter of the Red Cross.

The Morris county society draws its financial strength from the aristocratic Morristown, Madison and Bernardsville colonies, and doubtless the result will be a substantial contribution to the Red Cross.

The exhibitors are willing to forego the usual prize money for one year if by so doing they can alleviate conditions for our boys at "the front."

Charles H. Totty.

THE "DRIVE" ON SOWBUGS.

Referring to the trouble that "large growing establishments in Illinois" had with sowbugs, I would say that we had the same trouble two years ago. Those confounded things (sowbugs) nearly made us distracted. We tried everything anyone told us about.

No success. At last someone told us to use frogs, just common hoptoads. We advertised in a local paper, offering 10 cents each for nice, large, hungry hoptoads. The small barefooted boys soon began arriving, each with a toad in his hat. We put twenty-five of them in each house, 24x100 feet. Oh, those hungry toads!

We took lanterns and went to see what they were doing at night, which is their feeding time. They were hunting like ferrets for those "sows." In a few weeks the toads were as big as coffee cups, restaurant size, and we have had no "sows" since. We keep toads, though, winter and summer, in all the greenhouses. Of course, the Illinois firm can buy all the toads wanted right at home, but if not, I suppose the Laurel small boy will furnish a supply.

L. M. Smith.

SOWBUGS VERSUS SLUG SHOT.

After reading the article headed "An Army of Sowbugs," in The Review for May 10, it occurred to me that the growers whose stocks have been attacked by sowbugs might be interested in the remedy I used successfully in exterminating these pests some time ago. I had a good crop of sowbugs in my carnation house and asked Benjamin Hammond, of Beacon, N. Y., for a good exterminator. Mr. Hammond recommended one of his own preparations, Slug Shot, and told me to dust the Slug Shot between the plants, under the benches and along the walks. I did so and the results were gratifying. The bugs were cleaned out in short order, and I certainly recommend Slug Shot to every florist who finds these lice in his houses. Alexander A. Laub.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

FOR THE GIRL GRADUATE.

The "sweet girl graduate" in June will share the spotlight with the bride and graduation is almost as important in her young life as is marriage to her older sister. When she steps forward to receive her diploma she will be wearing a new gown with a corsage or will carry a bouquet. Whether the corsage or bouquet is a gift or a purchase, it represents a sale by a florist.

While the authorities in many cities and towns have placed a ban on flowers at public school graduations, in others there are girls' schools or coeducational institutions which still permit the girl graduates to wear or carry bouquets. The wise retailer will find out when and where schools of this character will hold graduation exercises. When the day is near he will put in his window a few of the class pennants and bouquets tied with the class colors—all classes have pennants and colors—and suggest that flowers make appropriate graduation presents and that his store is the place to buy them.

Of course this suggestion is unnecessary to a great many florists, who annually reap a rich harvest from graduations. They, many years ago, realized the possibilities for business at graduation time and have made the most of them. Elaborate window displays are made showing the bouquets and corsages for girl graduates.

But many retailers are overlooking this chance for sales and, with a little effort, might increase their business in this way.

INDIVIDUALIZING CIRCULARS.

The sales manager of a concern doing a nation-wide business several years ago conceived the idea of "individualizing" the letters he sent to customers of his firm. To do this he signed his name with green ink. In time he became known to the men who received his letters as "the man who uses green ink." Communications from this concern became to them letters from a man they knew, and not merely from an inanimate corporation.

Everyone likes to do business with persons he knows. The flower-buyer is not different from the general run of buyers of other commodities. He will go out of his way to buy of a man he knows. For that same reason, circulars sent to the florists' customers will be much more effective if there is something about them that is personal.

When we are sending out circulars for Memorial day, why not go through them yourself and have your clerks go through them, and on the ones going to persons known to us add with a pen some little inscription with your name or the name of the clerk signed to it?

To do this will require a little time and effort, but the results will more than pay for both. By continuing the practice whenever advertising matter is mailed, it will not be long before the letters will be opened and the contents read, instead of being given a mere glance as most circulars are.

WHO ARE THEY?

In these days of scientific merchandising, the man who is following the lines of least resistance studies his field and shapes his methods in accordance with the knowledge gained. Some florists, no doubt, study the demand, and the source of the demand, but there are many whose knowledge along these lines is decidedly limited.

In this connection it is interesting to note that a certain florist in a good sized city considered the subject and concluded that he would find out as much as he could about the people who were buying his flowers. In the natural order of things he had the names of many of them. An investigator had no trouble in getting the facts that were wanted. It was found that the store was drawing the greater part of its patronage from salaried persons, those whose incomes ranged in most cases from $10 to $25 per week. The result was that the florist made it the policy of his establishment to cater directly to persons of moderate means; instead of wasting time trying to sell them something out of their reach, he made it a point to provide things such as his people think they can afford. The result has been a remarkable increase in the volume of business. It is of record that in this store 1,600 sales have been made within the space of one business day.

A NEW CHARLESTON STORE.

The business of F. L. & F. J. Aichele has grown rapidly during the five years they have been in Charleston, S. C. Recently the retail end of their business, the Carolina Floral Store, was moved from its old quarters at 339 King street into a new and modern store at the corner of King and George streets. A view of the interior of the store is shown in the accompanying illustration.

Besides the new store, the firm is erecting a range of six greenhouses, comprising 40,000 feet of glass, at Saxon, S. C., fifteen miles distant from Charleston. Messrs. Aichele recently purchased forty acres at Saxon, and when the greenhouses are completed will have one of the largest establishments in the state. Roses, carnations and chrysanthemums will be the leaders at the new houses.

Five years ago Messrs. Aichele moved to Charleston from Baltimore, Md., and purchased the Newman range of greenhouses and the ten acres of nursery stock adjoining.

THE SHOP AROUND THE CORNER.

What do you first think of when New York is mentioned? Is it the Statue of Liberty? Is it the Woolworth building, Broadway, or the Little Church Around the Corner? What the diminutive house of worship is to the metropolis, the Little Flower Shop Around the Corner some day may be to Tulsa, Okla.

Perry De Haven for many years was in the florists' business in Tulsa, but he died in 1914 and left Mrs. De Haven to continue the business. In the course of time she found the greenhouses a little beyond her strength, sold them and started a flower store downtown. The business has grown steadily and now the Little Flower Shop Around the Corner is one of the town's most modern and popular establishments. It recently has been refitted and appears as in the accompanying illustration. Note that there are no counters and that the fixtures and furnishings are in keeping with the character of the business done.

BON VOYAGE.

A unique basket recently was made at the establishment of B. M. Joseph, San Francisco, for presentation to a Frenchman who was leaving for his native land. It was valued at $100, made of orchids and valley. On one side of the handle appeared a miniature representation of John Bull and on the other side that of Napoleon, while in the center was an aeroplane, in which the passenger carried a bon voyage basket.

A NEW SHOW IDEA.

Cheap But Good Advertising.

Admittedly, the success of a flower show is determined not so much by a preponderance of exhibits as by the extent of the public's response in the form of attendance. As everybody knows who has served on a flower show committee, to fill an exhibition hall with flowers and plants is ordinarily a matter of bringing sufficient pressure to bear on those capable of making exhibits, but the task of attracting the people to the show, whether or not there is an admission fee, is far from easy. Publicity "stunts" and advertisements are expensive, particularly so if the weather should happen to turn out unfavorably, or if the show committee did not display wisdom in selecting the location of the show rooms; and if perchance the doorkeeper reports all attendance records broken, the show promoters will find small consolation in that should they figure out what percentage of the population stayed at home.

It is with more than ordinary interest that the trade should turn to the novel plan recently tried out at New Brunswick, N. J. Instead of leasing a hall and staging the exhibits therein, the florists of the city placed displays in the various store windows on the main business street. The idea was to bring the show to the people rather than try to bring the people to the show. The purpose was to attract the notice of not only those who would attend an exhibition held in a special building, but also of those who ordinarily were not interested in flowers and whose attention could be got only by placing the flowers where their eyes could not fail to fall upon them.

Some of the Advantages.

E. B. Boyd, who conceived the idea, writes of the show as follows:

"Another advantage of this method was that it gave one the opportunity of appreciating the beauty and attractiveness of the individual exhibits. After visiting a flower show of the kind usually held, many of the public retain only an impression of a riot of confused and mingled beauty, with no distinct and vivid remembrance of individual flowers or plants. Seeing the various exhibits one at a time, however, with the name of each variety plainly written on a card attached to it, the novice is able to remember those which appear most attractive, for reference when buying of the florist.

"There were less than a dozen exhibitors in the show, but some took more than one window of the largest stores. The holding of future shows of a similar nature no doubt will be aided and simplified by our experience. We found that the time we had chosen, for instance, had its good points, but that there were also some drawbacks.

For example, it was possible to secure exhibits from privately-owned conservatories, but the florists were so busy on account of the Easter rush that they did not find it possible to make displays, except in two instances. There is no doubt, however, that the florists were interested. Why shouldn't they be? Frankly, I believe the idea of holding a flower show by having exhibits placed in windows along the main streets of the business section of the city offers the best opportunity for advertising the florists' business. It is nothing less than bringing the flower show to the people.

"There was practically no expense attached to the promotion of the show. The thing actually worked out almost automatically. Letters were sent out to owners of local conservatories and florists, giving them the time of the ex-

and I certainly recommend Slug Shot to every florist who finds these lice in his houses. Alexander A. Laub.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

FOR THE GIRL GRADUATE.

The "sweet girl graduate" in June will share the spotlight with the bride and graduation is almost as important in her young life as is marriage to her older sister. When she steps forward to receive her diploma she will be wearing a new gown with a corsage or will carry a bouquet. Whether the corsage or bouquet is a gift or a purchase, it represents a sale by a florist.

While the authorities in many cities and towns have placed a ban on flowers at public school graduations, in others there are girls' schools or coeducational institutions which still permit the girl graduates to wear or carry bouquets. The wise retailer will find out when and where schools of this character will hold graduation exercises. When the day is near he will put in his window a few of the class pennants and bouquets tied with the class colors—all classes have pennants and colors—and suggest that flowers make appropriate graduation presents and that his store is the place to buy them.

Of course this suggestion is unnecessary to a great many florists, who annually reap a rich harvest from graduations. They, many years ago, realized the possibilities for business at graduation time and have made the most of them. Elaborate window displays are made showing the bouquets and corsages for girl graduates.

But many retailers are overlooking this chance for sales and, with a little effort, might increase their business in this way.

INDIVIDUALIZING CIRCULARS.

The sales manager of a concern doing a nation-wide business several years ago conceived the idea of "individualizing" the letters he sent to customers of his firm. To do this he signed his name with green ink. In time he became known to the men who received his letters as "the man who uses green ink." Communications from this concern became to them letters from a man they knew, and not merely from an inanimate corporation.

Everyone likes to do business with persons he knows. The flower-buyer is not different from the general run of buyers of other commodities. He will go out of his way to buy of a man he knows. For that same reason, circulars sent to the florists' customers will be much more effective if there is something about them that is personal.

When we are sending out circulars for Memorial day, why not go through them yourself and have your clerks go through them, and on the ones going to persons known to us add with a pen some little inscription with your name or the name of the clerk signed to it?

To do this will require a little time and effort, but the results will more than pay for both. By continuing the practice whenever advertising matter is mailed, it will not be long before the letters will be opened and the contents read, instead of being given a mere glance as most circulars are.

WHO ARE THEY?

In these days of scientific merchandising, the man who is following the lines of least resistance studies his field and shapes his methods in accordance with the knowledge gained. Some florists, no doubt, study the demand, and the source of the demand, but there are many whose knowledge along these lines is decidedly limited.

In this connection it is interesting to note that a certain florist in a good sized city considered the subject and concluded that he would find out as much as he could about the people who were buying his flowers. In the natural order of things he had the names of many of them. An investigator had no trouble in getting the facts that were wanted. It was found that the store was drawing the greater part of its patronage from salaried persons, those whose incomes ranged in most cases from $10 to $25 per week. The result was that the florist made it the policy of his establishment to cater directly to persons of moderate means; instead of wasting time trying to sell them something out of their reach, he made it a point to provide things such as his people think they can afford. The result has been a remarkable increase in the volume of business. It is of record that in this store 1,600 sales have been made within the space of one business day.

HOLLAND HOUSE BUYS AMERICAN FARM

WILL GROW GLADIOLUS BULBS.

Randall Sells His Farm.

A. J. Pruyser, a member of the firm of Westerbeek & Klyn, of Sassenheim, Holland, and the firm's principal American representative, authorizes the announcement that he has completed arrangements for taking over July 1 the gladiolus farm of A. L. Randall, at Benton Harbor, Mich.

Westerbeek & Klyn, while they handle Dutch and French bulbs of all kinds, have made a specialty of the gladiolus. It is reported that their purchases of gladiolus bulbs in Holland this season practically cornered the market there, and against these purchases they made sales to a large number of customers in America, having at one time as many as seven men traveling here. When it began to be doubtful if the Holland stock would arrive in time for delivery, Westerbeek & Klyn went into the American market and bought great quantities of gladiolus bulbs with which to protect themselves with their customers. Among their purchases was the entire stock of the Cushman Gladiolus Co., at Sylvania, O., where they already had a considerable acreage being grown on contract from bulbs supplied by themselves the season before.

The Uncertainty of Importing.

The uncertainty which must surround the importation of stock as long as the war lasts has been the principal reason why Westerbeek & Klyn decided to establish a growing farm of their own, centrally located in America. The Cushman property was not available, nearly all the real estate having recently passed into other hands, which was the reason why E. H. Cushman retired from the gladiolus business. The Randall property seemed well adapted to the needs and offered the great advantage of being a going concern.

A. L. Randall, while a Chicagoan, has made his summer home at Benton Harbor, Mich., for many years. Through several purchases he has acquired a property of seventy-five acres practically all within the city limits. He has developed one of the largest stocks of gladiolus bulbs in the country; 1,500,000 America have been planted this spring, and, in addition, he has peonies and a considerable quantity of nursery stock on the property. Farm buildings and stock all are included in the purchase. No announcement is made of the consideration in the deal, but it is understood to be in the vicinity of $30,000.

Three Million Bulbs.

Westerbeek & Klyn, according to Mr. Pruyser, will ship what is left of the Cushman stock and plant it at Benton Harbor. This is said to include a number of new, scarce and high-priced varieties. They contemplate an output of 3,000,000 bulbs for next season's delivery and it is understood that Ralph Cushman, son of E. H. Cushman, will have charge of the office and shipping at Benton Harbor.

Westerbeek & Klyn believe that the success of the Holland bulb dealer lies more in his alertness and hard work than in the soil or climate of Holland. They believe that a large number of other bulbs can be grown in America with the same satisfactory results as are obtained with the gladiolus. They believe that the business can be conducted in this country with as much economy as in Holland except for the higher cost of labor, and they believe that the labor cost will be repaid by certain other advantages. For instance, with gladiolus bulbs losses have occurred in both early and late shipments, sufficient in their opinion to cover the difference in the cost of growing in this country. With peonies, sidered to afford hope of success. In Holland it is said that the area planted to lily of the valley pips in the Hamburg, Germany, district this year approximates only one-fourth of what was a normal acreage before the war. It is reported from Germany that lily of the valley flowers have, during the winter just passed, brought prices considerably better than those which prevailed before the war and the growers of pips have planned to maintain the supply for the home market. Because of the lack of any prospect of being able to export and because of the need of food crops, the production of pips has been cut down to the extent of the quantity previously exported and the plowed ground has been put in food crops.

Even if the war should end tomorrow, it will be several years before the supply of German valley pips equals that of normal seasons and anyone developing an American supply will be assured good prices for at least three to five years, with the prospect that a protective tariff would be put on as a further assistance as soon as an American supply is assured.

Mr. Randall's Reservations.

It is understood that one of the terms of the sale of the Randall gladiolus farm is that a certain quantity of cut spikes of America be shipped to Mr. Randall's wholesale cut flower house in Chicago this season, but Mr. Pruyser states that this was agreed to only as a means of putting the deal through, and that it will not be the firm's policy to cut and ship flowers after the completion of the present contract.

Mr. Randall owns another tract of five acres a little farther out from Benton Harbor, which he will retain as a summer home.

shipments frequently arrived too late for fall planting, and the losses which have ensued will pay the difference in the cost of production in America. Incidentally, a part of the stock acquired with the Randall purchase is a fine lot of Peony Jules Elie, of which no large stocks are said to exist either in this country or in Holland.

Try one of the tobacco papers. You cannot use any spray which you can depend upon to kill the aphides that will not, whether you use one of a soapy or nicotine nature, flavor the lettuce more or less. You can eat these with perfect safety. They are genuine mushrooms, Agaricus campestris, and if you have not acquired the taste for them, lose no time in doing so. If your beds produce more than you can dispose of at home, you will find them salable if picked at the right stage.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

GUSTAV LUDWIG.

THERE are few men better known to the trade in western Pennsylvania than Gustav Ludwig, president of the Ludwig Floral Co., Pittsburgh. Mr. Ludwig has served three terms as vice-president of the S. A. F. for western Pennsylvania and is a charter member of the Pittsburgh Florists' and Gardeners' Club. Born in Pittsburgh in 1858, Mr. Ludwig in his youth helped his father, M. F. Ludwig, a flower grower and market gardener. At 25 years of age he went to New York city and served three years under Peter Henderson. Returning to his home city, Mr. Ludwig formed a partnership with his father. In 1894 he and his brother established the firm of G. & J. W. Ludwig in the Allegheny market. Later the firm opened the retail store, which, with a range of greenhouses at Castle Shannon, near Pittsburgh, is now owned by the Ludwig Floral Co.

sit would reach us in good shape and fear that we would disappoint many patrons because of such conditions. But we have been fortunate. We have been able, for the first time in several years, to keep up with our orders. Could we have what was purchased and not delivered, our sales would exceed our anticipations.

"No, we cannot predict the future, either as to bulbs or plants from abroad, but we are making every effort to supply the deficit so far as possible."

A choice stock of kentias, perfectly grown, was noticed at the Dreer establishment. While passing through a house of Adiantum gloriosum, Mr. Eisele related his experience in bringing the first lot of these plants from England. It added to its value. This, with Cibotium Schiedeii as a companion, is seen in large numbers and is the picture of health.

Areca lutescens is yet popular. G. A. Strohlein mentioned that the demand from Cuba is larger every year and that Mexico is calling for kentias. "In fact," observed Mr. Strohlein, "history is, in the popular line, repeating itself."

Among the hosts of hardy perennials, Viola cornuta atropurpurea, or G. Wering, in full bloom, attracted notice. Mr. Eisele mentioned that in Covent Garden market, London, England, the flowers often are bunched with violet leaves and sell freely as the real thing, itself.

A general tour of Riverton, Riverview and Locust farms may be summed up thus:

Fuchsias.

Fuchsias are good plants for filling beds or borders that are in partial shade. In such locations they will flower well the entire summer. They also are useful for planting in piazza boxes or vases, when the receptacles are broken from the direct rays of the sun. These are also splendid favorites in pots for summer blooming. When thus grown they need partial shading and an abundant water supply, to say nothing of plenty of liquid manure.

Another use for fuchsias, and where they are seen to special advantage, is to grow them in well-made wooden or wire baskets. The variety Trailing Queen is superb when grown in this way, but almost any other variety with a little careful tying down makes a good basket subject. Hung from a piazza where they can get good light, not too much sun and an abundance of water, these fuchsias are among the most charming and satisfactory summer-blooming plants we have. I have seen huge baskets of Trailing Queen carried over for two or three years, and they were a wonderful sight. Some Linaria Cymbalaria is suspended far below the fuchsias, and the effect is exquisite.

It is now too late to make up baskets of fuchsias, but plan to try some another season. I have in mind one grower who has no trouble in disposing of a good number each spring at $5 each. The same grower also finds that standard fuchsias pay well, to say nothing of standard geraniums and heliotropes.

Gardenias.

In order to have gardenias of good size and to have them well established, planting should be done early in June. Prepare the compost for them at once if it is not yet ready. Gardenias dislike a fine compost, and it is well to screen out all the fine soil. I find that in a compost of fibrous loam, flaky leaf-mold, not too much decayed, dried, lumpy cow manure and coarse sand, gardenias do remarkably well, and are not attacked by the yellows as they are in a less porous soil. Give them a coarse, open compost, one through which water will quickly pass, and if other cultural requirements are suitable you are pretty sure to have green, healthy plants. Set the plants out fifteen inches apart each way. Leave a little basin around each plant and water in it, rather than soak the entire bed. As between raised benches and solid beds I have most faith in the former for the winter-blooming gardenias, as the soil is dried out better and the roots are warmer. Still, some successful specialists get good winter cuts in solid beds.

Gardenias like a warm, moist house, not less than 60 degrees at night. They need frequent syringing to keep the insects in subjection and, of course, need some pinching and tying up as the growth advances.

Planting Out Hard-Wooded Stock.

It is at best somewhat doubtful whether any azaleas will arrive in America from Belgium next fall. If the great war continues, as seems probable, none will come. Therefore, unsold stock should be well cared for, as it will sell well next winter. A good place for azaleas in summer is a cold-frame; or a frame-shaped enclosure with sides of boards or planks will suit them finely. Use a compost of loam, leaf-mold and sand; also a little old, well-decayed and pulverized manure. Planted out in such a soil and kept well watered and syringed, azaleas will grow splendidly and set buds in profusion. They can be lifted and potted about the end of September.

Ericas can be treated the same as azaleas. They will do in ordinary garden loam if it is free from lime. Calendulas which show signs of starvation will also be much improved by planting out. Boronias, acacias and genistas are all better if kept in pots and plunged. All these hard-wooded plants should be planted out where a good water supply is conveniently near. The camellias prefer a little shade, but all others do better in full sunshine.

Stock Plants for Bedding.

Care should be taken to reserve an adequate number of stock plants in the bedding line, such as geraniums, cannas, lobelias, ageratums, coleus, etc., for another season. Too often, when calls are many and insistent, we are prone to let our stocks be so depleted that practically nothing is left for planting out. This is a great mistake. See to it that you hold back and plant out an adequate number, either in beds and borders near your home, or in nursery rows. In geraniums it is particularly necessary to save strong, healthy stock. If this were more generally done, there would be far less disease than there now is. In the case of fuchsias a good plan is to shift along a few plants and plunge them outdoors in partial shade. Heliotropes and coleus can be satisfactorily treated in the same way, only give them full sunshine. Pot-grown plants make a stockier and shorter-jointed growth and furnish the best type of cuttings for successful propagation.

QUICK ACTION AT LOMBARD.

There are not many new greenhouse establishments being built this year, this season's building being principally additions to already prosperous ranges. But at Lombard, Ill., one of the interesting new establishments is in process of rapid completion. The Lombard Floral Co., recently incorporated with $30,000 capital stock, has as its principal owner Danford Abrams, a man well known locally as a large owner of land and a large stockholder in the Lombard State bank. The practical man associated with him is J. G. Schumann, who is well acquainted in the trade, having until recently been foreman for Wendland & Keimel Co., at Elmhurst, Ill., and before that a partner in the firm of Schumann & Kohout, at Libertyville, Ill. Prior to that Mr. Schumann was rose grower for Bassett & Washburn, and at Hinsdale, Ill., was one of the first of the western growers to make a conspicuous growing of Killarney. When Messrs. Schumann and Abrams make up their minds, they act with dispatch. April 16 they made a contract with the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, for the erection of two all-steel greenhouses, each 35x450 feet. May 12 the photograph here reproduced was made, and May 17 glazing on one of the houses was in progress. In addition to the two large greenhouses, a service building with chimney and boiler space for four more houses of similar size is being built. The Lombard Floral Co. will plant roses exclusively, and it is understood the crop will be sold in the Chicago market by Kyle & Foerster.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Two pipe frame houses, each 18x50 feet, are being erected by Fugleberg & Flister, the material being furnished by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago. Mr. Fugleberg was so enthusiastic about them that his neighbor, Ward B. Davis, has placed an order with the same concern for two pipe frame construction houses, each 21x108 feet.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business last week was brisk, spring weddings constituting the major portion of the demand. Summer temperatures prevailed and accelerated the demand for bedding and vegetable plants. The sale of seeds is booming, and it is believed that the warm weather has revived the interest in home gardens to a considerable extent. There is a great deal of shrubbery still being planted. Geraniums have met with the largest call. Coleus and other foliage plants are also in big demand.

The supply of cut flowers has been moderate since Mothers' day. Carnations have been in small supply, but roses have been more plentiful. Sweet peas are in good supply. Lilaes are being used to a great extent in wedding decorations, as well as fruit blossoms. Calendulas, snapdragons, pansies, forget-me-nots and other small flowers come in for a great part of the demand.

Various Notes.

The Vesey Floral Gardens, on the lower Huntington road, were sold last week to the Doud Real Estate Agency.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey have sold out their large supply of tomato plants, which wholesaled at from 35 to 75 cents per dozen. Several hundred muskmelon plants have been started in the greenhouses. This firm is cutting excellent Shawyer roses, the cut from one house averaging 1,000 per day.

The Allen county fruit crop was damaged to a great extent during the night of May 9 by a frost, which nipped nearly half of the open blossoms.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. were busy with weddings last week, the largest being the Hogan-Matson wedding. Easter lilies, Shawyer roses, lilacs and southern smilax were used in the decorations of the church and home.

The Flicke Floral Co. is cutting some splendid Sunburst and Shawyer roses. The force has been busy during the last week with weddings and decorations for pre-nuptial affairs.

The Wagner Floral Co., of Columbia

City, Ind., is shipping some fine roses and sweet peas to this market.

The Schilling Greenhouses, on the Bluffton road, have a fine supply of tomato, cabbage, lettuce and other garden plants, and they are experiencing a heavy demand for these.

The Doswell Floral Co. is showing some splendid Spanish irises and Spen-

"There are wars and rumors of wars," but there is nothing like finding an unstamped envelope under the door and instead of a "Black Hand" letter, "Enclosed please find check" was its contents.

Inscriptions on pillows are cause for much merriment and serious thought. One of the late ones was "Age 54," and another, on a design sent to a deceased fireman, was "Gone to his last fire."

Arthur Langhans, of Wheeling, W. Va., commenting on the season's work and business done at the holidays, says the florists throughout the country have little cause for worry over the attack on the "luxuries" the country is supposed to be expending its money on. With all the economy advice given out by the newspapers, the florists' business continues as it never has before. It will be a wise florist who does not back down in these excitable times, but continues as though we were at peace with all the world.

Adgate & Son, of Warren, Ohio, are preparing for a continuance of good business during the summer months. "It has held up well this far, so why not get ready for more during the next few months?" is Mr. Adgate's optimistic view.

Charles Nelson, of Wellsville, Ohio, has enjoyed an unusually good business. Plants are beginning to move with the coming of warmer weather and a banner season is expected.

Charles Peterson, of East Liverpool, Ohio, has his houses stocked with bedding plants. The weather has affected his sales somewhat, but present indications forecast a clean-up of all stock. Funeral work has been heavy, and Manager Kiel wears a broad smile.

A. C. Eastwood has opened a retail store at Alliance, Ohio. He formerly was manager of the Lamborn Floral Co.

A. T. Pollard, the florist in Rotary, of Canton, is enthusiastic over the work the local Rotary Club is doing, espe-

McFarlands, Florists, at Akron, Ohio, sustained a serious loss from a fire adjoining their greenhouses. One delivery truck and a large stock of corrugated and cut flower boxes were destroyed. Efficient work of the fire department prevented the loss of the entire place. Business was continued without interruption. A new truck was cially in its preparations for assisting in a greater production of foodstuffs for the city. Mr. Pollard is "doing his bit" in more ways than one.

H. T. Miller, of Alliance, has a hobby for automobiles. He has just purchased his third car.

The Newton Flower Shop at Canton, Ohio, has been enjoying a nice trade. The store is conducted by Miss Irma Newton.

The Geltz Flower Store at Canton now is in first-class shape. A small fire some time ago made repairs necessary. Business is good.

Charles Lindacher, of Canton, was in his garden getting vases and baskets ready for the plant season. The inclement weather helped in the work, for so soon as it gets warmer, orders come in so that there is a great rush.

The Kay-Diamond Co., of Youngstown, Ohio, has felt the scarcity of flowers to such an extent that stock has been purchased from private growers. Business seems to be never ending, and every department is working at top speed.

H. H. Cade, of Youngstown, has been unusually busy, funeral designs making a big part of the work. The counter trade, too, has been brisk. W. T. U.

The Market.

At last we have had with us the good old summer time, and it was a visitor long expected and more than welcome. The final days of last week and the opening of the present one were flooded with sunshine, while the thermometer registered 70 degrees, indicating large shipments, especially of roses, before the week is over. The nearness of Memorial day is expected to keep the market steady.

There was no shortage of anything last week. Friday and Saturday the large buyers were in the market. One florist was given his usual annual order by a society for more than 100,000 flowers. The street merchants were a welcome help in the weekly clean-up, and there was a multitude of them. Many of these helpful gentry will be missed when they depart for their regular summer stamping ground at Coney Island.

The shipments of roses Saturday, May 19, were more than the market could digest. Prices fell to 75 cents per hundred for the short-stemmed and even lower in large lots. The finest were disposed of at half their normal prices. Even Hadley, Brunner and American Beauty roses shared in the general decline and $20 per hundred would buy the best of them. Russell and Prima Donna, long-stemmed and perfect, brought lower prices than usual. The present week can hardly develop lower quotations than those of Saturday.

As was anticipated, the price of carnations fell rapidly after Mothers' day. From $10 to $3 per hundred tells the story. From $2 per hundred down is the prophecy for this week, and there is enough for the demand. Orchids range from 15 to 50 cents each, the latter for a few choice gigas. The general supply of the lower grades is abundant. Some good flowers could be selected as low as $25 per hundred. There will be plenty for the extra call for Memorial day.

The supply of lily of the valley still is limited and the price is high, $5 and $6 per hundred being asked. Outdoor valley now is arriving, and it seems certain that abnormal prices will be eliminated. There are few gardenias arriving. The season for them is about over. Longiflorum lilies are abundant, especially those of the second grade. These were selling at the end of last week as low as $3 per hundred, while $5 and $6 per hundred were the best quotations. These also will grow steadier until Memorial day.

Peonies are coming fast from Virginia. Good flowers were $1 per dozen Saturday. The local supply will not be on time for the holiday, but the shipments from the south promise to be large. A big increase in the supply is expected by the end of the present week.

Plenty of lilac now is arriving and the local supply soon will be abundant. There is also a large supply of sweet peas, tulips, daisies, stocks, irises, calendulas, pansies, daffodils and all seasonable flowers.

Various Notes.

Memorial day business promises to beat all former records. The supply men never booked so many orders in advance. There seems also to be only a limited stock of greens.

The Choate funeral last week called for an unusual number of flowers, all the leading stores being represented by handsome pieces. Rarely is there so large a showing of flowers of the best quality, and the demand seemed to strengthen the market for the day.

For the present the Malandre window is used to feature a wedding decoration. It includes the bride and flower girl, with appropriate bouquets and a handsome mantel embellishment. The flag decorations at this store during the last three weeks caused considerable comment.

There is a movement among the wholesalers to close their stores on Sundays between June 1 and September 1.

Business continues good with all the seed houses. Most of them now are handling plants. The necessity for night and day shipments is past, but customers still have to line up and take their turn, so great has been the suburban demand.

Work is under way to raise $10,000 for the entertainment of S. A. F. convention visitors. Chairman T. B. deForest and Secretary L. W. C. Tuthill are working on the souvenir, a copy of which every member of the S. A. F. will receive. Vice-President Miller is visiting about twenty-three houses a day, concocting "surprises" for the crowd that is expected.

Alfred H. Fisher, a grower and well-known florist, of Winfield, L. I., was found dead in his bed Tuesday morning, May 15. Death was due to heart disease. Mr. Fisher was 50 years of age and leaves a wife and four children.

The New York wholesale headquarters of the Beechwood Heights Nursery, of Boundbrook, N. J., at 57 West Twenty-eighth street, is closed for the season. Warren Spalding, who was manager of the office when stricken with paralysis, has so far recovered that he could be removed from the hospital to his home.

It is rumored that one of the prominent wholesale cut flower firms will rise to a higher and more convenient level June 1. The war does not seem to have affected this branch of the florists' business.

J. J. Coan says he can not understand the apathy of buyers to the parrot tulips now on the market in quantity.

Phil Kessler has added to his ice-box facilities the one formerly used by W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., with J. S. Volke as manager.

The United Cut Flower Co. hangs out the largest flag that belligerent Twenty-eighth street displays.

J. Austin Shaw.

NEW YORK STATE NOTES

Auburn, N. Y.—Dobbs & Son have made several changes at their range, enabling them to handle the large and varied stock to better advantage. Travelers will miss the picture gallery that helped to pass the time when waiting for the car.

Auburn, N. Y.—Alfred Patrick says it is hard to teach an old dog new tricks, or, in other words, to practically change over one's entire method from forcing imported stock. This year, however, was so disappointing that any change must be for the better.

Beacon, N. Y.—Believing that every man should do his "bit," Benjamin Hammond has interested himself in the home garden brigade, and become drill-master of about 500 youthful gardeners. Mr. Hammond and his agrarian cohorts have come into local prominence through the town dailies, which have stinted neither paper stock nor ink in recruiting the brigade.

Skaneateles, N. Y.—Archie Patrick has made many improvements to the former White range, and feels much encouraged with his first year's business.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—R. H. McKerr says Matchless is the most profitable carnation with him. It has one drawback—its soft growth makes it susceptible to the attacks of green fly. Business has kept up well and Mr. McKerr anticipates his usual run of spring sales.

Binghamton, N. Y.—The Suskana Greenhouses found orders coming in so freely through their ad that they had to shut down for a breathing spell. Excellent stock is in sight, especially a big batch of cyclamens. From present appearances, here and elsewhere, cyclamens will cut quite a figure in the list for Christmas trade this year. The poinsettia is another item; it will be a good companion.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Toward the end of last week the supply of stock increased tremendously, so that by the first of this week everything was plentiful and was crowding in the wholesale houses. Local business seems to be quiet, but the shipping business is fair.

Roses, which are in heavy supply, include excellent blooms of Russell, Ophelia and Sunburst. Carnations, too, are extremely plentiful, and Easter lilies are in excessive supply. Snapdragons are beginning to accumulate and gladioli are now piling up. To the stock from the south has been added the cut of several local growers. Peonies are more than plentiful. Other offerings include callas, valley, sweet peas, cornflowers and irises. Greens are plentiful. The new southern ferns are meeting with an excellent demand.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell is experiencing a good sale of the new southern ferns he is receiving from the south.

P. J. Olinger reports that he has booked many large orders for Decoration day for out-of-town points.

George Klotter has begun to cut cornflowers. L. H. Kyrk received the first batch last week.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The crop that was anticipated for Mothers' day is now on in full force. Local florists are bemoaning the fact that a little of last week's sunshine did not come a week sooner. A day or two of sunshine awakened all the stock and now the market is in a glutted condition. Sweet peas are especially plentiful in the short and medium stems. Roses are abundant and an enormous supply of Easter lilies is on hand. Carnations are in ample supply, but they are not too numerous. Nearly all other flowers are in excessive supply, with the exception of gladioli, which move well at $1 per dozen, but are in limited quantities as yet. Outdoor valley is holding a small place in the market, as it is in demand for corsage work.

During the early part of the week business was brisk, but it diminished toward the middle and dragged toward the end. Saturday there was an accumulation of stock and the demand was sluggish. Numerous street boys and venders tried to encourage buyers.

The warm weather, coming so suddenly, but not unexpectedly, brought with it a better demand for bedding stock, although as yet the business cannot be called rushing. Prices are uniformly higher this year than last. Geraniums that brought $1 at retail last year are bringing $1.50 this year, while the $1.50 grade is bringing $2. Other stock that sold at 50 cents per dozen is now making 75 cents. There is a demand at present for the filling of cemetery vases for Decoration day. Porch boxes and flower beds are also being attended to and it is thought that a week or two more will see this stock well under way. From indications, the numerous vegetable gardens will not affect the number of flower gardens, etc. The people seem to have the garden fever.

Once again the green situation is about normal, with the exception of fern leaves. These are inferior and higher priced.

Various Notes.

Samuel Seligman, of New York, called on the trade on his way back from a two weeks' vacation at Hot Springs.

Hensley's have a patriotic electric sign in their display window, representing the "spirit of 1776."

Isaac Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

The committee making plans for a tornado insurance organization held a meeting last week at the Smith & Young Co. place. It will have its report ready for the next meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana. This meeting will be held Friday, June 1. The place of meeting will be announced later.

W. W. Coles and family, of Kokomo, motored to the city May 21.

The Claypool Hotel Florist had a record-breaking day May 19. The officers' reserve corps at Fort Benjamin Harrison was given a few hours' leave of absence and the young soldiers with their sweethearts nearly bought Mr. Bookedis out.

Paul Tauer, of Lebanon, accompanied by his family, recently visited the city.

Baur & Steinkamp have completed their installation of the Skinner system of irrigation.

Fred Kiel is now with the Roepke Floral Co.

John Chisholm has returned from Cincinnati.

A heavy Memorial day business is anticipated on account of the heightened patriotic spirit.

The florists are being greatly bothered by individuals who try to make money out of little patches of valley.

Local growers are receiving numerous calls for tomato plants. One would think that florists specialized in this line, from the calls received.

While Indianapolis is one of the best cities in the United States, sometimes its political management gets on the nerves. Peter Bogies, who conducts a flower booth at 17 North Illinois street, was arrested for selling flowers on Mothers' day. He was tried in the justice of the peace court and fined $10. A law prohibiting Sunday selling has been in existence for a number of years, but has never been enforced until just recently in a few cases. All the florists in the city have been keeping open until noon, and a few all day, but this has been the first time there has been any trouble. A movement has been started by local tradesmen to eliminate Sunday business, but it has not as yet made much headway. E. E. T.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

The United States Cut Flower Co., of Elmira, was able to supply only a small part of the carnations for Mothers' day. Superintendent King commented on the many inquiries and orders, indicating a general shortage or anticipating an unusual demand. Stock was fine. The roses look promising—Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Moek, in the order named. Shawyer is giving satisfaction, so much so that it is regretted there are not enough young plants to fill one of the new King houses nearing completion. The truss house stands high in the opinion of this company.

John B. Rudy, of Elmira, believes that the demand for bedding plants, and flowering stock generally, will be fully equal to that of previous years, judging from the inquiries and orders he has received. He has an excellent supply.

Frank Durand, of Rawson's, Elmira, remarked that it was a most unfortunate circumstance that the white carnation is the floral emblem for Mothers' day, as many would-be purchasers are unable to be supplied and cannot be induced to take any other flower. As to the advisability of founding a Fathers' day, Mr. Durand thinks that a practical survey and analysis of the subject should be made, and that the association sponsoring the day should decide on a flower or plant comparatively easy to supply.

R. J. Roskelly, of the Bool Floral Co., Ithaca, N. Y., remarked that Prof. Lumsden had returned to Cornell from his sojourn at the new W. J. Palmer & Son flower emporium at Buffalo. Something surpassing anything yet attempted in floral display work is expected. All hands are on the qui vive. Everyone esteems the opinion of the professor.

W. & T. Cass, of Geneva, N. Y., have a large nursery connection and mentioned that on account of the scarcity of labor they have filled orders and contracts with trees that could be dug by machinery. The birch is one among many. The season is late and planting drags along. Absence of imported stock necessitates a change in the program of what to grow for next season. Such stock as primulas has sold better than ever and with geraniums, grown as they are by the Cass men, there is no reason why fine stock cannot be had for Christmas. A scarlet geranium in a 6 or 7-inch pot or pan will sell well. Nephrolepis bostoniensis and Whitmanii are grown in large numbers. The usual batch of lilies cleaned up well; now the question is, "Will the 'gigs' arrive on time from Japan?"

"We plow the fields and scatter the good seed on the ground," observed J. Dann, of Dann & Son, Westfield, N. Y.; "sometimes we are rewarded for our labors. We planted an ad in the classified columns of The Review, for cannas, and received orders for more than 10,000, the orders coming from all parts of the district between the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico. That is 'going some.' Another special is tomatoes, in boxes, grown largely for home trade."

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1917: President, Robert O. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.
Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

The Review brings results.

SOME of those Hollanders are wonderfully progressive people.

WHAT would you give per thousand for Paper Whites that were all 12-centimeter?

AT the moment it is almost impossible to buy Pocahontas coal in quantity at any price.

RELAX no effort to grow good stock and give good service; it never paid better than it will now.

IN the midst of any excitement ordinary business is likely to be forgotten—unless it is advertised.

THE sale of bedding plants never begins until after the bulbs have passed out of bloom and this year the season of bulb bloom has been prolonged to an unusual degree by cool weather.

WHEN a subscriber writes to The Review, complaining of the stock received from an advertiser, investigation nearly always shows that the offer was the cheapest price of any advertised at that time. It seems to be human nature to want to get something for nothing, or for as near nothing as possible.

IT is the opinion of well informed men that general business will be unusually active in the United States by next autumn, and that the average man, except for paying his share of the cost of war, will be making better money than ever before. As human nature changes slowly, if at all, it is difficult to see how the florists' trade can be otherwise than good.

PROFESSOR A. C. BEAL, of Cornell University, is the author of "The Culture of Garden Roses," recently published as Lesson 121 of the Cornell Reading Course.

THE supply of Mrs. Russell rose plants again is well cleaned up and most of those who make a specialty of this rose have obtained better prices than in previous years. Russell is worth more money than any other forcing rose, if for no other reason, because the percentage of failures in the grafting case is higher than with other varieties.

NEARLY every grower of cyclamens has set aside a few plants for seed production, because of the improbability of obtaining German seed this year. One of the results of the war may be that we shall become self-reliant in this respect, but the average American grower is too slapstick in his methods to compete for quality with the painstaking, trained European growers of special strains of flower seeds.

THE friends of the telegraph delivery idea should be careful not to handicap its development by promising too much.
Orders of too small value should not be encouraged unless it is certain they do not call for a long delivery trip and too great speed should not be promised;
there will be either a large percentage of failures or the orders will become unwelcome to the man who is called on to execute them at twenty per cent discount.

TRADE PROSPERITY.

Rarely a week passes that the newsletters in The Review do not contain items which demonstrate that the trade as a whole is prosperous. When it is recorded that this retailer has purchased a new auto truck, or has added one to his delivery service; that a grower is erecting several additional thousand feet of glass on his range; that another retailer has moved into his new store, which is equipped with the most modern refrigerators and other fixtures, could there be greater indications of our business prosperity?

Apparently, the trade does not believe that retrenchment is the order of the day; that it is necessary to sit back and await developments. Instead the members of the trade are going right ahead preparing for a greater year than the last one. Such faith is bound to get the proper reward.

PRICE READJUSTMENT.

It is an old trade axiom that where there is a demand there always will be a supply. But no matter what the demand, the supply will not be forthcoming unless there be recompense for the individual who furnishes it. There is always a demand for flour, and there is always a supply, provided the would-be purchaser is willing to pay the price, which is fixed by the cost of raw material and production, plus a profit for the manufacturer.

Growers in the central states believe the time has come for a trade readjustment, based on the increased cost of production. It is proposed that a meeting be held in Chicago June 19 and 20, at which growers can exchange ideas upon this subject.

Such a meeting is the logical method by which to arrive at a solution of the troubles of the growers. If costs of production have risen, and there seems no doubt but what they have, then it naturally follows that the selling price must be raised. The grower is just as much entitled to a fair return on his investment and labor as is the miller who supplies the demand for flour.

WHERE IT IS READ.

It takes an awful lot of pounding to get a certain type of florist to wake up to the fact that there is a better means of selling stock than the one heretofore employed. Some who READ The Review regularly will not advertise in it because it is PRINTED far from their home! They cannot realize that it is not where a paper is PRINTED, but where it is READ that counts.

WHY PUT IT OFF?

It is the weekly experience that a number of orders concerning advertisements are received too late for attention for the current issue of The Review.
It is stated conspicuously in each issue that "it is impossible to guarantee the insertion, discontinuance or alteration of any advertisement unless instructions are received by 4 p. m. Tuesday," at which time the last of that day's mail is delivered. But there are advertising orders every Wednesday, and even on Thursday and Friday.

A surprising number of advertising orders come Tuesday by telegraph. Just why should a man wait until Monday night and then send a long night letter telegram, subject to the many errors of telegraphic transmission, when acting a few hours earlier, to catch the Monday mail train, would accomplish the same thing at one-twenty-fifth the cost, and with twenty-five times the certainty?
Nor is The Review the only one that gets much business by telegraph that might better be transmitted by mail.
Wholesale florists say they get any number of telegraph orders where a letter, by posting a little earlier, would have accomplished the result with greater assurance of accuracy.

It seems as though one of the places where the trade could save money would be by breaking away from its habit of procrastination. Use the mails instead of the telegraph.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Talking in terms of the stock exchange, one might say that the bottom fell out of the wholesale cut flower market last week. From a position of what seemed almost impregnable strength the market experienced a sudden, sheer fall the middle of last week which transformed it at a blow from a sellers' to a buyers' market. With the hot weather that suddenly came upon fur-garmented Chicago, a superabundance of stock flooded into the market and brought distress to whole-salers. City trade fell off heavily; in fact, it might almost be said without exaggeration that there was none.
Shipping trade fared a trifle better and from one or two quarters there even comes the sanguine report that it was good, but that was certainly not true of the majority. The main part of the shipping business is for school commencements, although weddings also

Probably the only exceptions to the general debility of the market are

Carnations for Memorial Day

LARGE and Fancy stock is in heavy supply with us—it may be we shall not be able to fill late orders, but we are not booked up yet by any means. Our growers seldom have had larger or finer crops, and the stock is sure to please. Remember, if we accept your order, you get the goods. Better let us hear from you without further delay.

PEONIES

The season is so backward it will greatly reduce the Peony supply for Memorial Day. Our Peonies are from the best southern grower and already are arriving in good quantity, so you will be sure of your supply if you place your order with us. The same fine stock as in other years.

FANCY ROSES

We call special attention to our supply of Ophelia, Sunburst and Milady—but we have large cuts and fine quality in other roses also.

SWEET PEAS

greens, which are scarce and are holding up stiffly in price, the tendency being toward an advance.

American Beauties, though considerably weaker than at last report, were, nevertheless, a good selling item. All other varieties of roses were in large supply and sold practically for what could be obtained for them. Russells were the best sellers, but even they were far from satisfactory. Carnations were in heavy supply, but the demand was entirely lacking and they proved a difficult item to dispose of at almost any price.

Peonies and lilies were probably as good sellers as any other item, greens excepted. Peonies were in a little larger supply than they have been. The season is again about two weeks late this year, but an ample supply is expected for Memorial day. Valley was in sufficient supply. Orchids are, if anything, a little scarce. There were plenty of stocks, but they moved slowly. Calendulas are about out. Mignonette and Spanish iris were both in large supply, but did not sell well. Baby gladioli found a fairly good market. Sweet peas were in immense supply, but there was practically no call for them and good stock was gladly disposed of at nearly any price. There was considerable waste. Lilacs were not in large supply and experienced a fair sale. Snapdragons dragged, Silver Pink being, as usual, the best seller. Some candytuft which has made its appearance is finding only a fair reception. Darwin tulips still sell moderately well.

Greens, as before stated, alone enjoy a position of strength. The weather in the south has made for a noticeable shortage. Flat ferns are easily sold at the quoted price, the tendency being towards an advance. Mexican ivy is scarce. Asparagus is just about in sufficient supply and is selling well. There is only a little smilax to be had.

Memorial Day Prospects.

The weakness of the market, coming unexpectedly, has caused some uncertainty as to Memorial day prospects, although it is the general belief that the market conditions have been solely the result of unseasonable weather. With the market heavily loaded with all kinds of seasonable stock except peonies, it is difficult to foresee a shortage for Memorial day, with the heavy shipping days now less than a week away. The weakening of the market has had some effect in checking the stream of Memorial day orders, but most of the wholesale houses have been booking orders steadily and the number now in hand probably exceeds that at this date in other seasons. Peonies are extremely late this year and it seems doubtful if there will be more than a small fraction of last year's quantity available for the opening days of next week. The result, coupled with the small supply of cape jasmines, will be to turn the demand to roses and carnations and it is quite possible that in spite of the overloaded condition of

For Memorial Day

Never before have we experienced such a heavy advance demand for Peonies as this year. We therefore suggest that you place your order with us now, as it is impossible for us to guarantee delivery on last-minute orders. Our prices are $4.00, $6.00 and $8.00 per 100.

As present indications point towards a marked shortage of Carnations and Short Roses for Memorial Day, we believe you will find the Gladiolus a welcome addition to your stock. We expect to have an exceptionally large supply, but please do not wait until the last minute in sending your order.

the market in the last few days there may be a pronounced scarcity of first-class shipping stock when the Memorial day orders are being sent out. It is a general experience that the individual orders are larger than last year. It also is apparent that many buyers who placed only one order for Mothers' day are splitting up the Memorial day orders among several houses, all of which will add to the interest taken in the situation.

Various Notes.

Adam Taylor, for many years a florist in Englewood, died May 17 at the home of his daughter, 1132 Columbia avenue. The decedent was 80 years of age and resided in Englewood for almost fifty years. He is survived by three sons, Adam, James and John, besides his daughter, Mrs. T. F. Leyden.

The retailers are making little complaint as to business since the end of Lent. For instance, W. J. Smyth says that his sales since Easter have been steadily ahead of those of last year. He notes that the wealthy class of trade is buying with conservatism, but he says that the working people and middle class of well-to-do customers are buying more frequently than ever before.

W. J. Smart, western representative for the Knight & Struck Co., New York city, has severed his connections with that firm to join the sales force of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

John Kruchten has been confined to his home with an attack of rheumatism.

One house 40x400 will be planted to Mrs. Russell this season by Meyer & Dramm Co., Elmhurst. Killarney Brilliant will be dropped to get the space. Russell has not been grown at Elmhurst heretofore.

In an average season 2,000 tons of Pocahontas coal is required to heat the 200,000 feet of glass Emil Buettner operates at Park Ridge. Last year his contract was at $1.50 per ton at the mines and the contract was fulfilled to the letter. Early in the spring Mr. Buettner renewed at from $3 to $3.50 per ton. The advance of from 100 to 133 per cent seemed large to him when signing the contract, but it looks quite different now, in the light of recent events.

F. M. Van Gieson, sales promotion manager and landscape architect, severed his connection with the George Wittbold Co., May 22, to assume charge of promotion work in the horticultural department of the H. M. Van Hoesen Co., direct advertising specialists, 5 South Wabash avenue.

Fred Lautensenlager, chairman of the Florists' Club's garden movement committee, has been advised that the Garden Bureau of Chicago, in aid of which the committee was appointed, will discontinue its work at the end of the present week. He therefore will take no further action except to ask the club to discharge the committee at the June meeting.

One of the most unusual funeral pieces seen this spring was a spray made by the E. Wienhoeber Co. The material was ranunculuses and anemones.

The American Bulb Co. has rearranged its quarters, to employ the tripled space obtained through its recent new lease, and is in much better shape than heretofore for the transaction of its steadily increasing business.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association held its monthly dinner May 17, but no business was transacted, there not being a quorum present. There was general discussion of trade conditions of much interest and value to those who attended.

Unless plans miscarry, Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, will have at least 2,000 tons of coal in storage on the place before the summer is over. It takes about 3,400 tons to run the houses through the season.

The A. L. Randall Co. has evolved a novel window display item. It is a Fort Dearborn in miniature, with a flag-staff, the flag of which is blown by air pressure forced through the staff.

The season not only is late locally, but it is considerably behind in the southern part of the state. Up to May 21, only two of the local wholesale houses had received southern peonies in greater quantity than needed for the day's trade. The two lots in storage are small.

Stielow Bros. Co., Niles Center, Ill., are building a large manure tank for their rose range.

F. H. Haeger, of the A. L. Randall Co., left for the officers' training camp, Fort Sheridan, Ill., last week, where he hopes to win a commission. Mr. Haeger is a member of the national guard and was in Texas on border duty all last summer. He says that so far as he is concerned, there is nothing to equal a soldier's life.

Mrs. V. Bezdek, Gross Point, Ill., who has been ill at the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, for some time, is reported to be doing nicely. She expects to leave the hospital this week.

More than a year ago a rule was established by P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., to the effect that the company should accept con-

Visitors.

Rolf Anderson, of the Queen City Floral Co., Traverse City, Mich., was a visitor last week.

W. A. Toole, of Baraboo, Wis., the active member of William Toole & Son, was in town May 21, it being his first visit in several years. His firm specializes in pansy seeds and plants and in hardy perennials. Most of its business is obtained in the form of mail orders from classified ads in The Review. Mr. Toole says the sales this spring have been much the largest in the firm's history. It is planned to increase the line and the output.

A. Priggooris, of the Alpha Floral Co., Lansing, Mich., was in town May 21, to get a line on Memorial day stock and other supplies.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

The market has been well supplied since Mothers' day with a choice lot of roses, carnations, bulbous stock, etc. All growers have been making large cuts as the warmer weather has brought stock along.

Mothers' day business was large and left the market and retail stores destitute of flowers. The F. T. D. business was larger than ever before. Business has kept going nicely since Mothers' day. There has been plenty of work, together with counter trade. Memorial day promises to be equally good, with a good supply of plants for cemetery use and window boxes.

Various Notes.

John Breitmeyer's Sons had a telegraph messenger boy at their Park store the Saturday before Mothers' day to rush orders to the telegraph office.

Samuel Seligman, of Wertheimer Bros., Philadelphia, Pa., was in Detroit recently calling on the trade.

Miss Boehringer, of Bay City, Mich., was a recent visitor to Detroit.

E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa., visited Detroit recently.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

It has been the fashion to find a scapegoat big enough to carry all the odium of a bad market during the worst week of May. The circus has been the scapegoat for several seasons. It is agreed that a circus takes money out of town; witness the laws in some states that will not allow the circus to spend more than a day in a small town, because it cleans that town up if allowed to stay longer, taking all the ready money with it. Somehow or other the circus seemed to make no difference this year, except possibly to the circus. It came and went without an appreciable difference to the cut flower market. Possibly the weather was too cool; maybe the attendance at the circus was not large enough. Anyway, the market has gotten through the greater part of May without serious difficulty.

Business during several days of the week ending May 23 was excellent; on several other days it was not. The average was fair, decidedly above that of last year's, most of the wholesalers thought. The fashionable stores in the city have done poorly. The stores that cater to the masses have been active. The shipping demand from out of town has formed the real strength of the market.

Carnations have been in much heavier supply than a week ago. They have sold well at moderate prices, without sacrificing. Roses have also sold fairly well at moderate prices. There has been a good demand for snapdragon—some of it is uncommonly fine—sweet peas and other flowers. Outdoor lily of the valley is now in bloom. Though it is not a competitor of the indoor-grown stock, it is most useful where ordinary grades of pretty flowers are desired. Gladioli Mrs. Francis King and America are a handsome addition. There is quite a lot of baby gladioli, which at times lag a trifle. Gardenias, mignonette, pansies and callas are nearing the end of their season. The Easter lily is an important flower in the market, but not one that is always buoyant. Beauties, orchids and indoor valley are rather dull. There are just a few daffodils and plenty of Darwin tulips, which seem to be neglected. Spanish irises will be with us until after Memorial day.

Speaking of Memorial day suggests peonies. It seems reasonably certain today that the local peony crop will not be in flower by May 30. The market will have to depend on the southern peony and a few local scouts. This means that carnations and other greenhouse flowers will form the bulk of the supply, an important fact to have beforehand.

Outdoor lilac is in full crop this week. With it came other outdoor blossoms that are highly decorative in the retail stores but highly objectionable to the hard-working salesman who has large quantities of greenhouse-grown flowers on his hands.

The Business Situation.

There has been so much scare talk since the war began that it seemed to me Review readers would welcome an expression of opinion on business conditions from one of Philadelphia's leading business men, on whose shoulders rests much responsibility. So I selected Herbert G. Tull, treasurer of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and asked him as a personal favor to make an exception of his rule not to talk for publication and to give his views on conditions of today and how we should face them. His reply, given in five minutes' talk at his desk in the second story of the building at 714 Chestnut street, follows, word for word:

"I agree with you as to the amount of hysteria which seems to have been created by the scare lines and scare articles in the daily press.

"What is needed above all else is well balanced judgment and sane behavior. Scare talk will defeat the very purpose for which it is handed out.

"School and community gardens, well superintended, will produce quantities of food supplies that will tend to keep prices down and the people fed, but 'hip-hip-hurrah' gardens, which are planted in excitement and neglected after the fever abates, will be a waste of raw materials.

"Wealthy people buying supplies in advance are simply boosting prices for the poor, who will have to buy as necessity arises, by creating an artificial scarcity. On the other hand, persons who hoard their money and unnecessarily economize are taking the means of support from the merchants and their employees by creating an artificial depression. In my judgment, if everyone would endeavor to move along as smoothly as possible, doing his part in the community, state and nation, there would be less excitement and an opportunity to use better judgment.

"Another thing, we have simply been deluged with offers of the Liberty Loan. Banks, trust companies and brokers flood the mails with circulars and letters offering these bonds at cost. The aggregate for postage and printing must be enormous. If banks would confine their offers to their own depositors, the sales would be just as large and this waste would be curtailed. After all, it seems to be America's hardest lesson to learn not to waste. I heard when a boy that Europe could be fed on what America wastes, and I have been seeing and hearing the same thing ever since.

"To recapitulate:

"Let us avoid undue excitement.

"Let us do our part.

"Let us conserve our vast resources by cutting out waste.

"Pay your bills.

"The circulation of money is not generally understood, especially by the smaller dealers. I heard of an episode at a family luncheon, which, in a small way, shows exactly the operations of business on the credit system.

"Four ladies were lunching together when Mrs. A. handed a $1 bill to Mrs. B. with the remark: 'Here's that dollar I owe you.' Mrs. B. promptly handed it to Mrs. C. with the same remark. Mrs. C. handed it over to Mrs. D. and Mrs. D. returned it to Mrs. A., from whom it started. Four bills were paid and still Mrs. A. had her dollar. Suppose Mrs. A. had thought that, on account of hard times, she should suspend payment. Four persons would have been dunning each other and each thinking times were hard. Mrs. A. would have simply prevented her own payment by refusing to pay her just debt when she had the money."

Mr. Meehan to Retire.

An amicable arrangement has been perfected by which Charles E. Meehan retires July 1 from the Pennoek-Meehan Co.

Various Notes.

J. Otto Thilow delivered his interesting lecture on "The Flora of the Hawaiian Islands" at the University of Pennsylvania for the University Botanical Society, Friday evening, May 18.

Clarence U. Liggitt, of the Pennoek-Meehan Co., says that the late planting-out season, caused by the cool weather, has greatly affected the demand for geraniums and other bedding plants. Mr. Liggitt thinks, now that warmer weather has come, there will be an improvement.

Hugo Kind has by conscientious, persevering work become one of the leading dahlia growers of Hammonton, N. J.

The King Construction Co. has built a concrete glass-covered structure for sun-drying garbage near a leading western city, which, if successful, may prove a great boon for the greenhouse building industry.

Edward Reid reports out-of-town shipping demand as being brisk.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer says that the temporary lull of a week ago has been followed by a tremendous rush of Decoration day orders.

The Leo Niessen Co. will have Spanish irises in variety for Memorial day.

John Burton has a pretty bed of lily of the valley planted in front of his home at Wyndmoor.

Berger Bros. are confident that there will be no tremendous oversupply of flowers this month.

Flowers were an important feature of materially. Sweet peas are in tremendous supply and sell cheaply.

Snapdragons, Spanish irises, mignonette, calendulas, candytuft and pansies are all more or less druggly. The last indoor tulips and daffodils are appearing this week. An abundant outdoor crop of these is now available. Gladiolus America and Mrs. King come in from several growers, and there is a good supply of Peach Blossom. Lilies are cheap. Gardenias are of inferior quality. Cattleyas are not abundant, and while there is no great demand for them they realize good prices. Warmer weather has given a fillip to the bedding plant trade.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of 100 at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club May 15. Three new members were elected. E. I. Farrington gave an interesting stereopticon lecture on "What's New in the Garden." He showed many of the newer roses, dahlias, chrysanthemums, hardy perennials, shrubs and vegetables. Eric H.
